Threats send Hanafi to jail

Washington (AP) -- Hamaas Abdul Khaalis, free since his Hanafi Moslem band held 134 hostages, was jailed Thursday after a judge was told a police wiretap recorded Khaalis making "blood-curdling threats."

Within hours after Khaalis was taken to jail, his son-in-law was arrested on a federal weapons charge and Treasury agents armed with warrants searched two houses in suburban Maryland.

"We found guns at both premises," said Warren McConnell a spokesman for Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. "We understand members of the Hanafis live there."

At one of the houses, in Hyattsville, Md., local police arrested three men on charges of carrying deadly weapons. Police in Montgomery County, Md., who accompanied the federal agents to a house in Kensington, said they had been instructed not to say anything.

The arrests and raids followed a policeman's testimony at a hearing for Khaalis that since 1973 the Hanafis have bought 40 or 50 guns.

At the hearing, the judge was told of the threats overheard on a court-ordered wiretap.

Chief Judge Harold Greene of the District of Columbia Superior Court said he did not regard the threats "as idle words" and revoked the no-money, personal recognizance bond that allowed Khaalis to get home hours after the hostages were released.

"I think there are realistic indications that the defendant, if he remains at large, poses a danger to the community," Greene said after a three-hour hearing. Revocation of the personal recognizance bond means Khaalis no longer is eligible for release on bail.

Twenty minutes after the hearing ended, Treasury agents arrested Khaalis' son-in-law, Abdul Aziz, on charges of violating federal firearms laws. Details of the charge were not available immediately. Aziz acted as the Hanafi spokesman during the 38 hours hostages were held, but took no part in the incident.

Immediately after the judge acted, U.S. marshals surrounded Khaalis and took him to jail under heavy guard. He never spoke during the hearing, but several times glanced at his veiled wife and Aziz, sitting in the second row of spectator seats in the packed courtroom.

All 12 of the Hanafis who seized three buildings three weeks ago now are in jail awaiting grand jury action. They are charged with armed kidnaping. Nine are held in lieu of $50,000 bond, two in lieu of $75,000.

U.S. Atty. Earl J. Silbert told Greene that a wiretap had been placed on Khaalis' home-headquarters in northwest Washington. On Tuesday, he said, Aziz telephoned Khaalis and said he had been searched on returning from "some Arab country."

Silbert said Khaalis shouted: "I'll kill all 200 people today. Tell them I'll let some of my men go. We're going to get the government for this. If they are going to get rough, we are going to get rough."

Khaalis' lawyer, former Superior Court Judge Harry T. Alexander, said "it takes a great stretch of imagination . . . to see Mr. Khaalis as a danger to the community."

But Greene said Khaalis' remarks "contained no serious threat if they were standing alone . . . but these threats do not stand alone. Mr. Khaalis has on previous occasions made threats and on March 9, 10, and 11 carried them out. In that case, I don't regard them as idle words."

The hostages were held at the B'nai B'rith world headquarters, the Islamic Center and the District Building, Washington's city hall.

A radio reporter was shot to death at the District Building and a city councilman and two others were wounded. Some of the hostages were beaten and cut with swords some of the intruders brandished.

Khaalis had been scheduled for a preliminary hearing before Superior Court Judge Carl H. Moultrie. Because Alexander had just become Khaalis' lawyer, Moultrie postponed that hearing until April 11. A preliminary hearing is held to determine whether there is probable cause to hold a prisoner for grand jury action.

Then Silbert filed his motion to revoke Khaalis' personal recognizance bond and Moultrie was replaced on the bench by Greene, who had freed Khaalis originally.

Judge lets Steinmark out of pen

By Deb Gray
Star Staff Writer

On Thursday morning, Donald Steinmark, handcuffed and shackled, walked outside the Nebraska Penal Complex walls for the first time in about a year.

Several hours later, at a hearing in U.S. District Court in Omaha, Steinmark laid his head on the counsel table and wept after U.S. District Court Judge Albert Schatz ruled him eligible for bond.

Members of Steinmark's family, sitting in the courtroom, hung their heads and wept with him.

Steinmark was released Thursday on $5,000 bond. Schatz allowed Steinmark to pay 10% — $500 — of the amount.

To Steinmark, this was another step toward freedom and clearing his record of crimes he claims he did not commit.

Steinmark, 39, of Kearney, entered the Penal Complex last April 19, sentenced to a total of six to 18 years.

Judge Donald Weaver found Steinmark guilty in 1975 on two counts of selling marijuana and amphetamines. He was convicted in Buffalo County District Court on the uncorroborated testimony of three-time convicted felon Dennis Landrie, who was working as an informant for the Nebraska State Patrol.

Schatz granted Steinmark a writ of habeas corpus on March 3.

Schatz' ruling overturned a Nebraska Supreme Court decision which had upheld the original ruling of the Buffalo County District Court.

Schatz ruled, in part, that the Buffalo County District Court erred when it did not allow Steinmark's attorney to properly cross-examine Landrie and that it did not consider evidence that Landrie had offered false testimony in another drug case.

Schatz ruled that, within 90 days, Steinmark must be retried in the Buffalo County District Court, or the attorney general's office must appeal Schatz's ruling to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis.

If neither agency acted within that time, Steinmark would be freed, Schatz ruled.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Pat O'Brien said that the state would not appeal Schatz's ruling.

"We do not find this an appropriate case to take to the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals," he said. "Those problems (cited in Schatz's ruling) can be rectified in the county court."

Buffalo County Atty. Gary Hogg was out of town Thursday.

A secretary in his office said, "I believe we are" filing for another trial. But she immediately amended the comment, saying all official statements had to come from Hogg.

As part of the evidence introduced on Steinmark's behalf, his attorney, Kirk Naylor of Lincoln, presented a statement signed by Buffalo County Sheriff Vernon Newbold.

Newbold said he believed Steinmark "would be no problem and would abide by the court's order if he were released on bail."

O'Brien did not object to Steinmark's release, but he questioned Steinmark about his ability to comply with the provisions of his release agreement.

Naylor also told the court that Steinmark had no previous misdemeanor or felony convictions. He added that Steinmark had been offered a job in Kearney which would help him contribute to the support of his two minor children, Rhett and Regi.

Steinmark is bitter about his imprisonment. He said court costs have battered him: "I'm broke."

"I'll live the pen for the rest of my life," he said.

Powell's bullfrog met ladies in Rose Garden.

Princesses squeal at Powell's frog

Washington (AP) — The rites of spring infected the White House Thursday as President Carter kissed some comely young ladies and Press Secretary Jody Powell started them squealing by turning loose a 10-inch Georgia bullfrog in their midst.

These departures from the usually sober round of daily White House activities came as Carter, at a Rose Garden reception, greeted princesses chosen to represent each state at Washington's annual Cherry Blossom Festival.

With temperatures balmy and a bright sun shining, Carter did not miss a single princess, exchanging handshakes and occassional kisses with the women. After greeting each of them, as they lined up like an honor guard, the President cracked, "I think I'll go back down the line."

Then, just as Carter offered what presumably was intended as a farewell wave and a declaration that "I love all of you," Powell appeared carrying the frog in a cage of the sort used for hamsters.

The President looked at the frog. Then he turned back toward the young women and suggested each one kiss the beast "and the one that turns the frog into a prince wins" and becomes queen of the Cherry Blossom Festival.

As Powell removed the frog from the cage and held it up, Georgia Princess Amelia Loomis was persuaded to step forward, ostensibly to kiss the creature.

Recoiling, Miss Loomis said to Powell, "How about you?" She settled for kissing the press secretary.

At that point, however, Powell lost his grip on the frog which hopped toward the princesses. The young ladies fled squealing and screaming until the amphibian was retrieved.

Powell has had a love affair of sorts with frogs since the 1976 Democratic presidential primary campaign in New Hampshire.

When former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox went to New Hampshire to argue that Carter was a liar, Powell said publicly that being called a liar by Maddox was like being called ugly by a frog.

That's when Powell learned that the nation has a sizable quota of frog lovers, some of them belonging to organized groups. He was forced to offer an apology — not to Maddox but to frogs in general.

The frog he carried into the Rose Garden, known around the White House as "Lester," was presented to the press secretary Wednesday night by the Society of Professional Journalists.

Powell showed the frog to Carter in the Oval Office prior to the ceremony and disclosed he was trying to find it a home at the national zoo.

"Don't you send that frog to the zoo until Amy gets home from school," Carter ordered.

However, Powell later presented the frog to two zoo officials before Amy got a chance to inspect it. But he said "Lester" would be housed in the zoo's reptile house where Amy could see him during a scheduled visit Saturday.

Airport noise problem said minimal

By Harry Jackson
Star Staff Writer

Airport noise is having a minimal impact on Lincoln, a study showed Thursday.

The word came during a special Lincoln Airport Authority meeting on the study done by the Chicago firm of Ralph H. Burke Associates.

The report showed that only a portion of the Capitol Beach area gets enough airplane noise to annoy residents.

Other areas were outside the section which would be called annoying, according to a Lancaster County Health Department evaluation of decibel levels.

Other portions of the county which had what would be considered bothersome sound were either open, industrial or railroad areas.

The study showed civilian air traffic — non-military takeoffs and landings — had almost no noise impact on Lincoln.

An Air National Guard study also showed little military airplane noise problem but when combined with civilian noise levels, loudness did affect the Capitol Beach area.

The study showed an amoeba-like computer "footprint" on a map.

The areas depicted graduations in loudness with 65 to 70 being tolerable, 70 to 75 creating some discomfort and 75 to 80 too loud for outdoor activities.

The numbers are roughly equivalent to decibels, an engineer explained. Sounds contributing to hearing loss start about 70 decibels, while annoying noise is rated about 65. A diesel train would be about 80 to 85 decibels.

Areas of the 75-plus rating were almost all on airport property.

The 65 area is bounded by Pioneers Park on the south, on the west by Huskerville and on the east by West Lincoln.

The 70 area runs north from about Middle Creek through the middle of Capitol Beach on the east, through the middle of Air Park on the west and north of the Westview County Home.

The 75 area is an oval around the outside of airport property while the 80 area is roughly within the airport.

The noise areas were derived by taking statistics on the airplane taking off and landing from the airport, then figuring the area of land the airplane is closest to at what altitude and feeding the information into a computer. The result was the "footprint" presented at the meeting.

The airport board now will await the second half of the study, which will make recommendations about how to handle land near the airport. Zoning against certain types of construction or buying some of the high noise property will be considered.

The study will be used as a guide by the airport board when making decisions about expanding or using the airport or when making reports or requests to the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

Many jet crash victims too terrorized to escape

Laguna Hills, Calif. (AP) — Jet crash survivor Floy Heck says as many as 100 of the passengers who died in the Canary Islands disaster might have survived but they were frozen in terror and unable to escape.

"They just didn't move," said the 70-year-old Mrs. Heck, whose husband dragged her from the Pan American World Airways wreckage before it exploded in flames. "On their side of the plane, the whole wall was blown away. I believe at least another 100 could have been saved but they were sitting there just transfixed."

Mrs. Heck, a resident of the Leisure World retirement community, was released from the University of California Medical Center burn center in Irvine Wednesday night. Her husband, Paul, is one of eight of the survivors still hospitalized there. Sixty-two survivors remained hospitalized at various places around the country.

"It was like the Hindenburg blowing up," Mrs Heck said, referring to the German dirigible that crashed in 1937. "It was a terrible sight. I said, 'Jesus, help me, help me,' and he did "

She said that after the Pan Am and Dutch KLM jumbo jets crashed in the fog-shrouded runway, "Someone yelled out that we had been bombed. There were splinters of wood, metal and debris and also fire. The ceiling was falling down on us. I thought for certain that this was the end."

Another survivor, John Combs, 64, of Hawaii, said: "I felt like a wienie being basted with a piece of bacon in an oven. I thought it was all over. The captains were yelling at us to get away. The plane was going to go but I couldn't leave my baby of 39 years, really. I simply had to go back and find her."

Someone helped him find his wife, Louise, 59, and pull her out of the wreckage, he said. Combs, staying at Newport Beach, was released from UCI Medical Center on Wednesday but his wife remains hospitalized with a broken back and burns.

The most seriously injured among the survivors are hospitalized at the Brooke Army Medical Center at Ft. Sam Houston in Texas, where doctors reported that the 12 burn patients spent a restful night and were in stable condition. A doctor said the first few days are the most crucial for burn patients but that the danger of infection is present until the wounds are healed.

Recordings en route to U.S. may hold key to air disaster

Santa Cruz De Tenerife, Canary Islands (AP) — Four electronic boxes and a tape recording that may answer some of the unanswered questions about aviation's worst disaster left for the United States on Thursday.

The gear was flown out of here on a Spanish military plane for a flight to Washington and a read-out Monday.

Investigators here were left to ponder how and why a KLM Royal Dutch Airlines 747 rammed a Pan American 747 as both prepared to take off from the Santa Cruz airport in patchy fog Sunday, killing more than 577 persons.

Both Pan American and KLM prepared to fly the charred bodies of the victims home for identification and burial by the weekend. Sixty-nine persons on the Pan Am plane survived the collision, and most of them have already been flown home to the United States.

The bodies, tagged but not identified, lay in rows of wooden coffins in a hangar. Both airlines said they would fly their own dead home

The tail of the KLM jet, the biggest piece of debris remaining from the Dutch plane, was pulled off the runway by cranes Thursday, and workmen turned to the Pan Am wreckage.

Announcing that cockpit voice recorders and digital flight recorders — black boxes — from both planes had been turned over to investigators by Spanish authorities, chief U.S. investigator William R Haley called the electronic evidence "important and valuable information."

He said the black boxes would tell American, Dutch and Spanish investigators the speed and direction of both planes and confirm interpretations that the KLM jet was airborne just before the crash.

But he indicated answers to these crucial questions were more likely to be found in the taped conversation of the crews and the control tower just before the accident:

—Why did the KLM jumbo apparently try to take off without clearance from the control tower?

—Did Pan Am's plane taxi beyond the runway exit that would have taken it out of the path of the oncoming Dutch jet?

—Did the Spanish control tower give unclear taxiing or take off instructions?

The Dutch investigation team has acknowledged the KLM plane was not cleared by the control tower for take off. But there has been no clarification of why the KLM jet began rolling down the runway.

Bullet fragments raise assassination questions

Washington (AP) — House Assassinations Committee investigators say they have a lead indicating there may be too many bullet fragments to support the Warren Commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in assassinating President John F. Kennedy.

Investigators also told the committee at a secret March 17 briefing, according to a transcript released accidentally, that a former Dallas night club worker is ready to testify that Jack Ruby introduced Oswald to her and others as "Lee Harvey Oswald of the CIA" two weeks before the Kennedy assassination.

The Warren Commission concluded that Ruby, who killed Oswald, did not know Oswald before the assassination. It also said it investigated numerous reports of them being seen together in Ruby's night club and "found none which merits credence."

The investigators told the committee in the secret briefing that the head nurse in the operating room the day Kennedy was killed told them four or five fragments — not one clean bullet — were removed from former Gov. John Connally.

If the fragments weigh more than a missing piece of bullet, the Warren Commission's conclusion that a single bullet went through Kennedy's body and wounded Connally would be destroyed, the investigators said.

Robert Tannenbaum, chief committee investigator of the Kennedy assassination, said such a finding would mean that "the very cornerstone and basis of the entire Warren Commission report is no longer valid."

A doctor's statement included in the Warren Commission report says "small bits of metal were encountered at various leve throughout the wound."

That statement was made by Dr. Charl Gregory, now dead, one of three doctors wl operated on Connally. He said the bits metal were turned over to Parklar Memorial Hospital's pathology departmen

Connally told the Warren Commission l did not believe the same bullet went throug Kennedy's body and then wounded him.

Investigators also said the former Dall night club worker is prepared to testify th she took pictures at Dealy Plaza during th assassination that would show the grass knoll from which an unproved conspirac theory has a second gunman firing.

They also said she would testify that tw men identifying themselves as an FBI ager and a CIA agent took the film from her tw days later and "She has never seen that fil since."

And they said the statement in the committee's interim report that Oswald ma have been associated with anti-Fidel Castr groups — not pro-Castro groups as widel believed — is based on interviews wit witnesses in Louisiana.

The investigators recommended in th report that a man who allegedly worked fo reputed Louisiana Cosa Nostra boss Carlo Marcello and who was near the scene of th Kennedy assassination should be called as witness. Marcello also should be called, the said.

Tannenbaum said police stopped the man i a building from which the investigator said shot could have been fired but let the man g when he said he was looking for a telephon to tell his wife of the assassination.

Grandma Rosalynn wants a rocker

Marietta, Ga. (UPI) — The rocking chair is returning to popularity at the White House after an absence of 15 years — this time with a Southern connection.

Mrs. Rosalynn Carter recently placed an order for five Brumby rockers, a sturdy chair made of red oak. They have been popular on Southern verandas for more than 100 years.

The late President John F. Kennedy helped return the rocking chair to vogue when he used one to help ease pains from an old back injury.

Mrs. Carole Melson, owner of the small factory at the foot of Kennesaw Mountain that makes the rockers, said Wednesday the five rocking chairs should be delivered to the White House Friday, or early next week.

Getting the Brumby rockers apparently was a priority in the Carter White House. Mrs. Melson said she first received a call March 18 from Rex Scouten, chief usher at the White House. Later, the first lady placed the order after advice from Mrs. Melson as to what finish would be most suitable.

Mrs. Carter requested a white painted finish, Mrs. Melson said, after being told the chairs would go on a porch.

Sam Jones, managing editor of the Marietta Daily Journal, who helped put Mrs. Carter in touch with Mrs. Melson, said the first lady told him the chairs would go on the Truman balcony, on the second floor of the White House's south portico.

The rockers cost $185 each and the freight charge will increase the bill to about $955, Mrs. Melson said.

The Brumby rockers were first manufactured in 1875 by the Brumby Chair Co. The firm went out of business in 1943, but manufacturing resumed in 1972 when Mrs. Melson and her husband formed a new firm, reassembling the old factory machinery and hiring some of the mountain craftsmen who had worked with the original company.

"It's a special thrill to know that our chairs are going to one of the finest houses in the land," said Mrs. Melson. "The White House has a special place in people's minds. I'm very happy about it."

Many jet crash victims too terrorized to escape

Laguna Hills, Calif. (AP) — Jet crash survivor Floy Heck says as many as 100 of the passengers who died in the Canary Islands disaster might have survived but they were frozen in terror and unable to escape.

"They just didn't move," said the 70-year-old Mrs. Heck, whose husband dragged her from the Pan American World Airways wreckage before it exploded in flames. "On their side of the plane, the whole wall was blown away. I believe at least another 100 could have been saved but they were sitting there just transfixed."

Mrs. Heck, a resident of the Leisure World retirement community, was released from the University of California Medical Center burn center in Irvine Wednesday night. Her husband, Paul, is one of eight of the survivors still hospitalized there. Sixty-two survivors remained hospitalized at various places around the country.

"It was like the Hindenburg blowing up," Mrs. Heck said, referring to the German dirigible that crashed in 1937. "It was a terrible sight. I said, 'Jesus, help me, help me,' and he did."

She said that after the Pan Am and Dutch KLM jumbo jets crashed in the fog-shrouded runway, "Someone yelled out that we had been bombed. There were splinters of wood, metal and debris and also fire. The ceiling was falling down on us. I thought for certain that this was the end."

Another survivor, John Combs, 64, of Hawaii, said: "I felt like a wienie being basted with a piece of bacon in an oven. I thought it was all over. The captains were yelling at us to get away. The plane was going to go but I couldn't leave my baby of 39 years, really. I simply had to go back and find her."

Someone helped him find his wife, Louise, 59, and pull her out of the wreckage, he said. Combs, staying at Newport Beach, was released from UCI Medical Center on Wednesday but his wife remains hospitalized with a broken back and burns.

The most seriously injured among the survivors are hospitalized at the Brooke Army Medical Center at Ft. Sam Houston in Texas, where doctors reported that the 12 burn patients spent a restful night and were in stable condition. A doctor said the first few days are the most crucial for burn patients but that the danger of infection is present until the wounds are healed.

Kremlin chill expected to last

By Hedrick Smith

(c) New York Times

Analysis

Washington – The sense in Washington Thursday was that President Carter is being put to the test by the Soviet leadership — a test that, perhaps unintentionally, he brought upon himself with his vigorous public diplomacy on human rights and arms control.

"This is Khrushchev and Kennedy all over again," commented one experienced congressional observer, recalling the testy confrontation between the late Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and President Kennedy at their first meeting in Vienna in 1961

Privately, specialists with broad experience in Soviet affairs or in negotiation with the Kremlin described the current blowup as the worst public turn in Soviet-American relations in five years a detente and possibly since President Lyndon Johnson canceled a trip to the Soviet Union after Moscow ordered the invasion of Czechoslovakia in August 1968.

"We're in for a real chill for quite a while," commented one government official.

"It's a very nasty jam psychologically," added another, "But that doesn't mean that we cannot get things back on the track."

Although some senior administrator officials insisted that the negative Soviet response to the new American arms proposals had been predictable, the vehemence of Thursday's verbal barrage from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who said American limits were unfair and inconsistent, apparently caught the administration off balance. Rather than escalate the polemics by responding, the Carter White House chose to weather the attack in silence.

Nonetheless, the confrontation with Moscow left President Carter caught between domestic support for his stand on human rights and Soviet pressure for him to back off.

He also faced charges from Gromyko that the proposals were "one-sided" and that the whole American negotiating approach was "doubtful, if not to say cheap."

In the short run, the President seems likely to find it easier to hold domestic support than to find some means out of the deadlock with Moscow.

His comment to congressional leaders Wednesday night that he intends to "hang tough" in his bargaining with the Kremlin not only brought expressions of support from Congress but the observation from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that the Soviet leadership might be playing into Carter's hands.

"He can get more support up here by being tested (by the Soviets) than if he's not tested," the burly Massahcusetts Democrat commented. "There's nothing but admiration for the President. He seems to have solid support, bipartisan support in the House" Republicans like Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee were telling associates that they intend to "stand with the President until we see what happens"

But among those who publicly support the President, some express misgivings that he miscalculated Moscow's vehement reactions and unnecessarily set back his own efforts for arms control by refusing to acknowledge that Moscow would make progress in that critical arena contingent on some relaxation of his pressures on the human rights issue, even though he thought there should be no link between the two issues.

Some congressional liberals suggested that he had "pushed a good thing too far" on human rights and then unnecessarily offended the Kremlin only last week by announcing plans to increase funding for Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, whose broadcasts have long been regarded by the Kremlin as especially offensive.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, told reporters Thursday that the proposals were not put forward on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Although he said he knew of no present plans to revive them, he suggested that they offered a "basis" for negotiation.

But skeptics here fear that so much friction and uncertainty had been generated before the new administration could establish a working relationship with the Kremlin that it will prove extremely difficult to achieve much more than an extension of the present arms ceilings, negotiated by President Nixon in 1972, before they expire next fall

2 of 'faithful five' Moonies decide to leave church

San Francisco (AP) — Two former members of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's "faithful five" said Thursday they had broken with the Unification Church after a few days away from its "mind control."

"For the first time I had the opportunity to stand apart from the system and really examine its contradictions," said Barbara Underwood, 25, first of the five to leave the church.

Miss Underwood says she decided to renounce Moon on Monday. She was followed by Leslie Brown, 24, a few hours later.

And Jeffrey Scales, one of the "deprogrammers" instrumental in their decisions, said Thursday that Jacqueline Katz, 21, also had decided to leave the church.

The three, along with Janice Kaplan, 24, and John Hovard, 23, were the objects of a bitter 12-day court battle after their parents asked a Superior Court judge for temporary custody of their children.

The parents claimed the five had been "brainwashed" by the Unification Church. Throughout the hearing, all of them, dubbed the "faithful five" by the church, steadfastly denied church leaders practiced any form of "coercive persuasion" or "mind control."

But Thursday, a week after Judge S. Lee Vavuris granted the parents 30-day conservatorships over their adult children, Miss Underwood and Miss Brown said they hadn't realized at the time that they weren't thinking for themselves.

The two women were interviewed by telephone from an undisclosed location in Northern California. Scales refused to reveal their whereabouts because he said the church had hired detectives to try to hunt them down and bring the two young women back into the fold.

Miss Brown said she feels "fantastic, it's like totally opening up a new world again. I can talk to any person, no matter whether they believe in the church." Before, she said, she was taught to believe that persons who had left the church "had been brainwashed to believe that Rev. Moon was not the messiah."

She admitted that the church does not directly teach that the Korean evangelist is the messiah but added, "There's nothing else to believe. It all leads up to that."

Both women said they still embrace many of the ideals taught by the Unification Church. Miss Underwood, a four-year veteran and fund-raising leader, acknowledged she had some apprehension about her future without the church to back her up.

"It's going to be a real challenge," she said. "It will require in me much more evaluation, much more consulting of conscience. Between myself and God now I have to deal with the world.

"In many ways it's scary, but if man doesn't have free will, one ceases to be really human."

Miss Underwood and Miss Brown both said they were not ready to decide whether they, like many ex-Moonies, would join the ranks of the professional deprogrammers hired by parents to try to break their children's attachment to the church.

Oil damage 'minimal'

Washington (UPI) — The 7.7 million gallons of oil spilled from the tanker Argo Merchant 3½ months ago off the coast of Massachusetts caused "minimal" biological and asthetic damage, a government report said Thursday.

The report said the only possible problems from one of the largest oil spills in U.S. history were the long-range effects of the oil which seeped into the ocean bottom sand and contamination of some zooplankton in the vicinity of the wreck. Zooplankton is ingested by fish.

"The overall danger is minimal," said Dr Peter Grose, a scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which compiled the study.

There had been major concern the oil would drift ashore, crippling the tourist trade at nearby resorts and have a long-lasting impact on fish and birds in the area.

Bald eagles increasing in the Midwest

Des Moines (UPI) — The number of bald eagles is increasing in the Midwest, Elton Fawks, eagle count coordinator, said.

Fawks, East Moline, Ill., said he is "very encouraged" by the comeback.

The number of eagles was down — probably because of the severe weather — but the ratio of adult birds to immatures was the highest in recent years, he said. This ratio represents a measure of the birds' breeding success and will ultimately determine the eagle's survival.

Fawks coordinated the count of 1,012 birds which took place in February throughout the Midwest.

Ranks are growing

Chicago (UPI) — Persons between 30 and 44, who comprise the country's biggest group of home buyers, also are the fastest growing age group in the population, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reports.

King Tut gets a checkup

Likeness of Egypt's fabled King Tut is examined by Egyptian curator Ibrahim El-Nawawy with magnifying glass to inspect for damages. The priceless artifact, a solid gold mask, is one of 55 treasures that will go in exhibit at Chicago's Field Museum from April 15 until Aug. 15

Kremlin chill expected to last

By Hedrick Smith

(c) New York Times

Analysis

Washington — The sense in Washington Thursday was that President Carter is being put to the test by the Soviet leadership — a test that, perhaps unintentionally, he brought upon himself with his vigorous public diplomacy on human rights and arms control.

"This is Khrushchev and Kennedy all over again," commented one experienced congressional observer, recalling the testy confrontation between the late Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev and President Kennedy at their first meeting in Vienna in 1961.

Privately, specialists with broad experience in Soviet affairs or in negotiation with the Kremlin described the current blowup as the worst public turn in Soviet-American relations in five years a detente and possibly since President Lyndon Johnson canceled a trip to the Soviet Union after Moscow ordered the invasion of Czechoslovakia in August 1968.

"We're in for a real chill for quite a while," commented one government official.

"It's a very nasty jam psychologically," added another, "But that doesn't mean that we cannot get things back on the track."

Although some senior administrator officials insisted that the negative Soviet response to the new American arms proposals had been predictable, the vehemence of Thursday's verbal barrage from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, who said American limits were unfair and inconsistent, apparently caught the administration off balance. Rather than escalate the polemics by responding, the Carter White House chose to weather the attack in silence.

Nonetheless, the confrontation with Moscow left President Carter caught between domestic support for his stand on human rights and Soviet pressure for him to back off.

He also faced charges from Gromyko that the proposals were "one-sided" and that the whole American negotiating approach was "doubtful, if not to say cheap."

In the short run, the President seems likely to find it easier to hold domestic support than to find some means out of the deadlock with Moscow.

His comment to congressional leaders Wednesday night that he intends to "hang tough" in his bargaining with the Kremlin not only brought expressions of support from Congress but the observation from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill that the Soviet leadership might be playing into Carter's hands.

"He can get more support up here by being tested (by the Soviets) than if he's not tested," the burly Massahcusetts Democrat commented. "There's nothing but admiration for the President. He seems to have solid support, bipartisan support in the House." Republicans like Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee were telling associates that they intend to "stand with the President until we see what happens."

But among those who publicly support the President, some express misgivings that he miscalculated Moscow's vehement reactions and unnecessarily set back his own efforts for arms control by refusing to acknowledge that Moscow would make progress in that critical arena contingent on some relaxation of his pressures on the human rights issue, even though he thought there should be no link between the two issues.

Some congressional liberals suggested that he had "pushed a good thing too far" on human rights and then unnecessarily offended the Kremlin only last week by announcing plans to increase funding for Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, whose broadcasts have long been regarded by the Kremlin as especially offensive.

Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, told reporters Thursday that the proposals were not put forward on a take-it-or-leave-it basis. Although he said he knew of no present plans to revive them, he suggested that they offered a "basis" for negotiation.

But skeptics here fear that so much friction and uncertainty had been generated before the new administration could establish a working relationship with the Kremlin that it will prove extremely difficult to achieve much more than an extension of the present arms ceilings, negotiated by President Nixon in 1972, before they expire next fall.

2 of 'faithful five' Moonies decide to leave church

San Francisco (AP) — Two former members of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's "faithful five" said Thursday they had broken with the Unification Church after a few days away from its "mind control."

"For the first time I had the opportunity to stand apart from the system and really examine its contradictions," said Barbara Underwood, 25, first of the five to leave the church.

Miss Underwood says she decided to renounce Moon on Monday. She was followed by Leslie Brown, 24, a few hours later.

And Jeffrey Scales, one of the "deprogrammers" instrumental in their decisions, said Thursday that Jacqueline Katz, 21, also had decided to leave the church.

The three, along with Janice Kaplan, 24, and John Hovard, 23, were the objects of a bitter 12-day court battle after their parents asked a Superior Court judge for temporary custody of their children.

The parents claimed the five had been "brainwashed" by the Unification Church. Throughout the hearing, all of them, dubbed the "faithful five" by the church, steadfastly denied church leaders practiced any form of "coercive persuasion" or "mind control."

But Thursday, a week after Judge S. Lee Vavuris granted the parents 30-day conservatorships over their adult children, Miss Underwood and Miss Brown said they hadn't realized at the time that they weren't thinking for themselves.

The two women were interviewed by telephone from an undisclosed location in Northern California. Scales refused to reveal their whereabouts because he said the church had hired detectives to try to hunt them down and bring the two young women back into the fold.

Miss Brown said she feels "fantastic, it's like totally opening up a new world again. I can talk to any person, no matter whether they believe in the church." Before, she said, she was taught to believe that persons who had left the church "had been brainwashed to believe that Rev. Moon was not the messiah."

She admitted that the church does not directly teach that the Korean evangelist is the messiah but added, "There's nothing else to believe. It all leads up to that."

Both women said they still embrace many of the ideals taught by the Unification Church. Miss Underwood, a four-year veteran and fund-raising leader, acknowledged she had some apprehension about her future without the church to back her up.

"It's going to be a real challenge," she said. "It will require in me much more evaluation, much more consulting of conscience. Between myself and God now I have to deal with the world.

"In many ways it's scary, but if man doesn't have free will, one ceases to be really human."

Miss Underwood and Miss Brown both said they were not ready to decide whether they, like many ex-Moonies, would join the ranks of the professional deprogrammers hired by parents to try to break their children's attachment to the church.

Oil damage 'minimal'

Washington (UPI) — The 7.7 million gallons of oil spilled from the tanker Argo Merchant 3½ months ago off the coast of Massachusetts caused "minimal" biological and asthetic damage, a government report said Thursday.

The report said the only possible problems from one of the largest oil spills in U.S. history were the long-range effects of the oil which seeped into the ocean bottom sand and contamination of some zooplankton in the vicinity of the wreck. Zooplankton is ingested by fish.

"The overall danger is minimal," said Dr. Peter Grose, a scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which compiled the study.

There had been major concern the oil would drift ashore, crippling the tourist trade at nearby resorts and have a long-lasting impact on fish and birds in the area.

Bald eagles increasing in the Midwest

Des Moines (UPI) — The number of bald eagles is increasing in the Midwest, Elton Fawks, eagle count coordinator, said.

Fawks, East Moline, Ill., said he is "very encouraged" by the comeback.

The number of eagles was down — probably because of the severe weather — but the ratio of adult birds to immatures was the highest in recent years, he said. This ratio represents a measure of the birds' breeding success and will ultimately determine the eagle's survival.

Fawks coordinated the count of 1,012 birds which took place in February throughout the Midwest.

Ranks are growing

Chicago (UPI) — Persons between 30 and 44, who comprise the country's biggest group of home buyers, also are the fastest growing age group in the population, the U.S. League of Savings Associations reports.

No big surprise: arms talks fold

The arms talks in Moscow collapsed this week, but that is no reason for the Carter administration to shy away from its tough position on human rights. Nor are all hopes gone that the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. can come to terms on significant reduction in the strategic arms stockpile and an end to the introduction of new weapons systems.

The quick end to this round of talks in a way was predictable, the elements on the agenda and the background of events notwithstanding.

Take a message back to Washington. U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was in effect told by party leader Leonid Brezhnev and Foreign Minister Gromyko. The message is that the Soviets are unhappy with all the attention directed at their treatment of dissidents, and that bargaining down the arms race will not be easy.

Observers believe this is more of a test of Carter's resolve than a signal that the American President's human rights approach is a permanent stumbling block to progress in other areas or an indication that the Russians will make no compromises in attempts to achieve a permanent and comprehensive strategic arms limitations agreement.

Immediate acceptance of the U.S. initiatives presented by Vance and foregoing mention of Carter's posture on human rights — or "interference in internal affairs," as the Soviets call it — would have been unusual. That would have made the Russians look somewhat like patsies, and limited their options.

So this is not the time for Carter to back down on human rights or from bold measures in the arms control area. From his first reactions to what happened in Moscow, it looks as if he will hold firm.

Carter said he is in no hurry to consider a speedup of the development and deployment of additional weapons. He says he has no evidence that the Soviet Union is not negotiating in good faith, and he believes the Soviets want more time to consider American proposals.

Carter also says he "will not modify my human rights stands. They are consistent with the conscience of this country." And he said he would "hang tough" in his quest for a comprehensive arms treaty.

We think there is as much chance now for comprehensive agreement on arms over the long term as there was before Secretary Vance went to Moscow.

The next round of talks will be between Vance and Gromyko in Switzerland in May. Further testing of the new American President can be expected, but the commitment of the Soviets to arms reductions will be more apparent at that time.

Go-ahead given, narrowly

The House select committee on the assassinations of John Kennedy and Martin Luther King sacrificed its chief investigator this week to stay in business.

It is a curious twist. The chief counsel and investigator, Richard Sprague, although considered a "snake in the grass" by former committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, was reputed to be an honest, capable, fearless go-getter. But he had to resign so that the investigation could remain in business.

The House Wednesday narrowly voted to give the assassinations committee two more years of life. The mood in Washington last week clearly was against continuing the controversial investigation. The resignation of the equally controversial staff chief apparently turned the tide.

It is hoped that the investigation can move forward as effectively as it might have under Sprague — had he been given the chance to do the job.

There are said to be new leads and new witnesses in both investigations. Perhaps both will dead-end without the revelation of any startling new conclusions. But the investigations must proceed.

Public disbelief in conclusions drawn from the investigations or prosecutions resulting from the killings of Kennedy and King does not die back but increases with the passage of time.

The role of some of the government's secret agencies in pre- and post-assassination investigations has come into question.

"It would be a tragedy if this committee were not reconstituted because the American people would not be able to have these questions answered," said Chairman Louis Stokes during debate on renewing the committee.

In the end, the House agreed to extending the panel's life. This should at least convince many people that the government in good faith is willing to take another look at conspiracy and coverup charges.

There have been too many efforts to bury this investigative effort. Why? The House decided this week to pursue an answer to that question, and it is in the best interests of the nation that it be pursued.

To catch a flea

William Safire

Hong Kong — With informal discussions already under way regarding a trip by President Carter to Peking, here is what America's policy planners should keep in mind regarding the Chinese outlook on the world:

(1) ON THE SOVIET UNION. A high Chinese official familiar with negotiations on border clashes said: "They refuse to recognize any disputed areas on the borders. The Soviet Union maintains that the boundary alignment drawn by them is a law that China should abide by."

But had not the Soviets maintained the border status quo, as promised, in recent years? "They only maintain the status quo because we will fire at them if they don't."

Strong words. But two years ago, when Teng Hsaio-ping was heir apparent, a Soviet helicopter crew that crossed the border was released. "Undoubtedly," the official conceded. "This was a gesture of good will toward the Soviet people." Now Teng is on the way back to a fairly high post, the likelihood is that state relations (not the party ideological clash) will gradually improve.

(2) ON THE TWO SUPER POWERS. China does not want America to lower its guard: "Disarmament and SALT talks are all frauds to hoodwink the people," the official said. "Each side is trying to limit the other in order to gain superiority."

In China's national interest, the official urged Americans to shun appeasement.

(3) ON THE NEW OPPORTUNITY IN INDIA: A veteran Chinese diplomat now in Shanghai said: "Personally speaking, I think it was quite natural that Mrs. Gandhi was defeated. Since she came to office, she brought disaster to the Indian people.

"In international affairs," the Shanghai official continued, "her government followed the Soviet social imperialist line, and dismembered Pakistan. If the new government wants to be popular with the people, and desires to meet their needs, it must develop friendly relations between China and India."

(4) ON THE U.S., TAIWAN, AND "NORMALIZATION". "In order to carry (the Shanghai communique) out, the U.S. must sever its relationship from Taiwan, abrogate its defense treaty and withdraw its troops," said the Peking foreign ministry official. "This is a civil war and has nothing to do with the U.S."

That's been the standard position. But when the official was reminded of Premier Chou En-lai's indication that the solution would be peaceful — a hint that was the basis for some Americans' hopes for a deal — he came back sharply.

"We have never said we would eliminate Taiwan only by peaceful means. We have expressed the hope that if a peaceful solution is possible, we would like to have it, but there is a big bunch of counter-revolutionaries in Taiwan who do not want Taiwan liberated, so the only other alternative is to liberate it by force."

Question: What, then, is the Chinese test of friendship? Their answer is in their invitations. For example, though known to be anti-abrogation, I was issued a coveted newsman's visa, given an audience in the Great Hall of the People, complete with smiling picture in People's Daily — primarily because they see this former Nixon speechwriter as "correct" on the Soviet Union.

Asked directly which comes first in the making of a "foreign friend," the Peking official put it plainly. "In terms of the magnitude of the issues, the international situation is more important."

The direction of Chinese foreign policy is to persuade the Americans to stay strong enough to balance the Soviets. First things first.

"If you try to catch 10 fleas with 10 fingers," said the man in the foreign ministry, "then you will catch none. Our principle is to use 10 fingers to catch one flea."

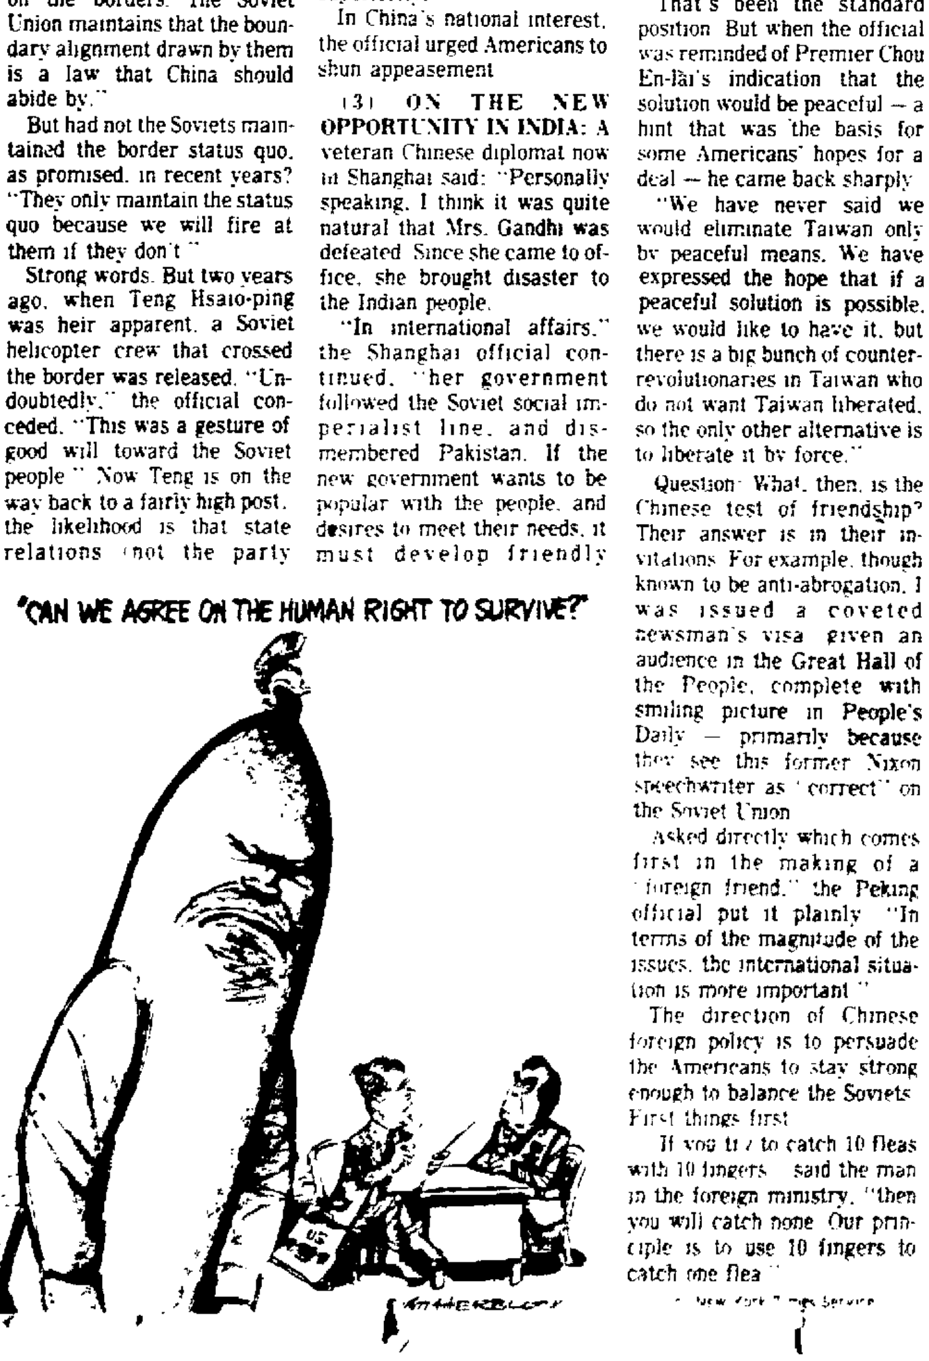
"CAN WE AGREE ON THE HUMAN RIGHT TO SURVIVE?"



Jerry Brown — color him changed

Marquis Childs

Sacramento — The Jerry Brown of today is quite another Jerry Brown from the young novice who came into the governor's office two years ago. His was then a non-political image and we all came out from the East to write about this 37-year-old who looked with rather amused detachment at being chief executive of the largest state in the union.

Now he comes on as a hard-charger. Affairs of state appear to be uppermost in the mind of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. After all, the election is only two years away and no one here doubts that he will run for a second term.

In the presidential primaries last year, he had the enviable record of winning six out of six. The fresh young man from the West had to talk very little about issues.

Robert Strauss, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said privately that if Brown, a late starter, had begun 30 days earlier he would have won the Democratic nomination for president and Brown is inclined to agree. Pennsylvania, yes, Ohio, yes, and that would have been enough.

To turn on the hard-charger you have only to repeat to him what many of his critics out here say: You talk a lot, but you have done very little about what needs to be done in California.

His reply comes out with a rush of his accomplishments, ranging from the state labor relations act to the California Conservation Corps. And he has a raft of figures to show that California is the fastest-growing state in employment next to Texas with the rate of unemployment 7.8% as against around 10% when he came into office.

Gov. Brown says that without the labor act, the agreement between Caesar Chavez and Frank Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters Union over the organizing of farm workers would not have been possible.

The agreement signed the other day ended 10 years of feuding with widespread violence as Chavez — with national support — held out for the rights of his workers, many of whom were Chicanos.

Brown is building up a substantial record on the appointment of women and blacks and that will be an important asset, he believes, when he runs two years from now. In one conspicuous instance he put his Republican rival in 1978, Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, in a tight spot.

Brown had nominated for chief justice of the state Supreme Court 40-year-old Rose Elizabeth Bird who — following her legal experience, which included teaching at the Stanford University law school — has for two years been Brown's secretary of agriculture and services.

But the nomination had to be passed on by the three-member State Commission on Judicial Appointments. Younger, a member of the commission, was put in the position of casting the deciding vote for Miss Bird.

Younger did this in spite of stiff opposition from Republicans. A spokesman for the right wing of the party said they could never vote for Younger if he voted for Bird. At the same time, just to tidy things up, Brown named a black, Wiley Manuel, to be an associate justice on the court.

With Ronald Reagan lurking in the background and his lieutenants muttering that he intends to run for president again in 1980, Younger will not have an easy task. But he is a powerful campaigner, making much of the law-and-order issue in a state racked by crime.

Brown, as I talked with him, was leaving to preside over the graduation of the first class of the California Conservation Corps. Eventually there will be 18 CCC training centers taking in blacks, whites, men, women. When they finish their training, they will go to work on various natural resource projects.

Brown gave Carter comparatively little help in the campaigning in this state last fall and his indifferent behavior at the Madison Square Garden convention was hardly likely to make them bosom pals.

But when Brown was in Washington, Carter invited him to stay at the White House and sleep overnight in the Lincoln bed. That was a gesture of good will that could overcome some of the chill that has existed between them.

The governor has no illusions about the seriousness of the drought from which California is suffering. It underscores his belief that the American people must realize that there are limits to growth. Limits, he says with the emphasis of one who has looked at the human predicament out of his long Jesuit training.

If Brown is daunted by what lies ahead, and in the gloomiest perspective it is grim indeed, he shows no sign of it. Bloodied in the rough-and-tumble of very rough politics, Brown is no longer an amateur.

ConRail looks back over one year

Richard Worsnop

Washington — When the Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail) assumed control of six bankrupt eastern railroads a year ago, many observers thought the takeover date was peculiarly apt. It was April Fool's Day. The six lines were collectively losing $1 million a day, and yet ConRail executives were predicting that the consolidated concern would report an operating profit of $1 billion within a decade.

Now, on ConRail's first anniversary, incredulity has given way to respect. In its first six months of service, the corporation reported a net loss of $64.4 million on operating revenues of $1.6 billion. That is nothing to boast about, to be sure, but it represents considerable progress toward the goal of profitability. Losses for the second six months are expected to be far greater. Autumn and winter constitute the off-peak season for shipping, and the record cold and snow of January and February delayed or immobilized many trains.

ConRail moved quickly to economize by merging the operations of the six formerly separate and competitive lines. New routing patterns were devised, and yards were consolidated at some terminals. New work rules put into effect in the northern New Jersey terminal area facilitated freight movement and trimmed manpower costs.

At the same time, ConRail is spending millions of dollars for new rolling stock and to repair damaged track. "From Massachusetts to southern Illinois," U.S. News & World Report stated, "22,000 people — the equivalent of two Army divisions — are replacing tens of millions of rotted crossties, putting down thousands of miles of new rail and tamping trainloads of ballast. Another 22,000 are tackling years of neglected maintenance on ConRail's 154,529 cars and 4,768 locomotives."

The modernization program will take years to complete, despite all the manpower involved. ConRail comprises 17,000 miles of track, much of which is in such poor condition that trains can operate on it only at reduced speed. Even so, derailments are frequent and costly.

Meanwhile, a special three-judge court in Washington, D.C., is trying to decide how much, if anything, the federal government owes the former owners of the six lines in the ConRail network for forcing them to operate at big losses while the government was attempting to work out a solution to the Northeast rail crisis.

Both sides agree on two points: (1) If a railroad has a chance of turning itself around within a reasonable time, it must remain in operation and bear the losses; (2) but if the losses mount and the hope of recovery fades, the owners are entitled to shut down. The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution prohibits the taking of private property for public use "without just compensation."

The debate, then, centers on the date when the bankrupt lines' losses became unconstitutional and hence should be repaid by the government, which compelled the railroads to keep operating until ConRail took them over. The owners say they should be compensated for all losses after Oct. 1, 1973, but the government disagrees. Settling the dispute may be as difficult a task for the court as running a railroad is for ConRail.

This is to encourage The Star to repeat the particular format used on Page 37 of the Mar. 23 issue. It was almost a complete page on "Human rights — a world view" which collected items under that theme from several sources: one long article by Douglas Stanglin of UPI, a shorter item concerning Sakharov from Moscow UPI, and an item from Washington and AP concerning Carter's lack of fear to debate the Russians. In this case the news items supplemented the article.

I do wish The Star could repeat this format since a thematic grouping of the news such as this intensifies the readers' attention to the subject. Congratulations! More! More! More!

Airport security

Lincoln, Neb.

As a member of the Lincoln Airport Authority I read with interest the enlightening editorial in the Mar. 30 Star regarding security at the airport terminal. The facts outlined concerning security provisions and those responsible for them will be helpful to all Lincoln air travelers.

While the searching of carry-on luggage is an inconvenience, the resulting goal of this and other security measures in the elimination of hijacking in the United States makes the process well worthwhile. The safety of the passenger is the ultimate concern of the FAA, as it is that of the Lincoln Airport Authority. The Star's effort in bringing this to the public's attention is most appreciated.

Crossing hazard

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to reply to Mr. Mrs. "Live Pedestrian's" comment of Mar. 28. I am not an "incompetent" state employe. I have to cross both K and L Streets at least four times a day between the Capitol and the State Office Building. Every day I become increasingly perturbed with inconsiderate motorists who are in such a hurry to get to their homes or offices that they cannot stop for just a minute to let pedestrians cross at these mid-street crosswalks. Pedestrians are in just as much of a hurry to get where they are going as the motorist who is probably afraid that he will miss the next light.

While I do not advocate anything so ridiculous as a tunnel, I do think that increased motorist consideration or possibly crossing lights for these two busy streets are far more feasible.

TIRED OF BEING PATIENT

Tree-planting

Lincoln, Neb.

Where were the members of Trees Inc. when the large cottonwood tree fell across the highway at Linoma Beach several years ago? Did they trim the top so workers could use the road to get to work?

They haven't even disposed of the tree's "torso" or given it a proper burial. It still lies where it fell — right in the front yard of Trees, Inc.

Did this organization incorporate to limit its liability when a motorist slides off an icy road and into a tree — a tree that Trees, Inc. had been instrumental in preserving?

It seems that the members of Trees, Inc. consider tree sap to be more important than the blood of humans.

I would like to donate trees to Trees, Inc. These could be locusts, Chinese elms or mulberries. I think many farmers (not to be confused with Mrs. Farmer) would also be glad to give some trees because they are weeds on many farms.

Now, don't ask me to plant trees because I have probably planted more trees than all the members of Trees, Inc. But I didn't plant them on highway rights-of-way.

I intend to plant more trees this spring but, again, I will not plant them where they will endanger motorists.

WALTER ZICH

In the soup

Lincoln, Neb.

It appears to me that where the voice of reason is drowned out by the boom of power, ridiculous things come to pass. When the United States carried the seventh highest oil reserves in the world, it was producing more of this irreplaceable crude mineral oil than any other nation in the world and to do so, it had imposed tariffs to keep out the cheaper foreign oil. Because of this, we are now told the remaining reserves are so difficult to find that it will require extraordinary profits to finance this search. We had to subsidize them to create the problem and now we have to subsidize them to solve the problem.

I think we have been had and betrayed by the petroleum industry because in the ground it represented an appreciating reserve that would have been a buffer against cartels, shortages that will affect our security and way of life. It just doesn't make sense to me to allow them to have it both ways. I think we were damn fools to permit the tariffs before and we are the same to let them haul off exceedingly high profits with threats and intimidations. I am tired of their yelling and cry-babying while they are loading up their pockets and buying up large entities unrelated to energy.

I have access to one company's records and observed the earnings increased 138% in the past five years, or at an annual compound rate of 18% plus, and I think that is well in excess of inflation contributing to inflation and no sign that it is losing money in the quest for oil and gas. If there is any ratio between high profits and the availability fo fuel, we ought to have plenty of fuel with these unparalleled margins. In 1971 this company had a goal of an eight to 10% annual increase in earnings. If we are willing to be led around like penguins, we will surely end up in the soup kettle.

When the people speak

Arcadia, Neb.

About The Star editorial the other day on defeat of common situs picketing, I do not believe credit was given to the people who were responsible for its defeat.

Ever hear of the National Right to Work Committee? That organization together with a lot of reasonable people put a lot of pressure on the Congress to vote against a common situs picket bill. Some 217 people in the House listened to the voice of the voters back home, not that of labor leaders. Now some of them will hear from labor, but good. Labor thought it had it in its grasp.

About President Ford's veto of a similar bill: It was not, as The Star said, his anticipating a challenge from the right in his party that changed his mind. The National Right to Work Committee generated three-quarters of a million letters asking him to veto the bill. These letters came from all over the country and from Democrats as well as Republicans and conservatives. That is where the opposition came from. With a victory like that, I hope The Star does not think the NRTW Committee sat on their hands this time around. When the people speak in large enough numbers, the Congress AND the President will listen.

I believe a person should be able to work where he wishes and at whatever job he may choose without government or some labor organization forcing him to join a union.

No big surprise: arms talks fold

The arms talks in Moscow collapsed this week, but that is no reason for the Carter administration to shy away from its tough position on human rights. Nor are all hopes gone that the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. can come to terms on significant reduction in the strategic arms stockpile and an end to the introduction of new weapons systems.

The quick end to this round of talks in a way was predictable, the elements on the agenda and the background of events notwithstanding.

Take a message back to Washington, U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance was in effect told by party leader Leonid Brezhnev and Foreign Minister Gromyko. The message is that the Soviets are unhappy with all the attention directed at their treatment of dissidents, and that bargaining down the arms race will not be easy.

Observers believe this is more of a test of Carter's resolve than a signal that the American President's human rights approach is a permanent stumbling block to progress in other areas or an indication that the Russians will make no compromises in attempts to achieve a permanent and comprehensive strategic arms limitations agreement.

Immediate acceptance of the U.S. initiatives presented by Vance and foregoing mention of Carter's posture on human rights — or "interference in internal affairs," as the Soviets call it — would have been unusual. That would have made the Russians look somewhat like patsies, and limited their options.

So this is not the time for Carter to back down on human rights or from bold measures in the arms control area. From his first reactions to what happened in Moscow, it looks as if he will hold firm.

Carter said he is in no hurry to consider a speedup of the development and deployment of additional weapons. He says he has no evidence that the Soviet Union is not negotiating in good faith, and he believes the Soviets want more time to consider American proposals.

Carter also says he "will not modify my human rights stands. They are consistent with the conscience of this country." And he said he would "hang tough" in his quest for a comprehensive arms treaty.

We think there is as much chance now for comprehensive agreement on arms over the long term as there was before Secretary Vance went to Moscow.

The next round of talks will be between Vance and Gromyko in Switzerland in May. Further testing of the new American President can be expected, but the commitment of the Soviets to arms reductions will be more apparent at that time.

Go-ahead given, narrowly

The House select committee on the assassinations of John Kennedy and Martin Luther King sacrificed its chief investigator this week to stay in business.

It is a curious twist. The chief counsel and investigator, Richard Sprague, although considered a "snake in the grass" by former committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez, was reputed to be an honest, capable, fearless go-getter. But he had to resign so that the investigation could remain in business.

The House Wednesday narrowly voted to give the assassinations committee two more years of life. The mood in Washington last week clearly was against continuing the controversial investigation. The resignation of the equally controversial staff chief apparently turned the tide.

It is hoped that the investigation can move forward as effectively as it might have under Sprague — had he been given the chance to do the job.

There are said to be new leads and new witnesses in both investigations. Perhaps both will dead-end without the revelation of any startling new conclusions. But the investigations must proceed.

Public disbelief in conclusions drawn from the investigations or prosecutions resulting from the killings of Kennedy and King does not die back but increases with the passage of time.

The role of some of the government's secret agencies in pre- and post-assassination investigations has come into question.

"It would be a tragedy if this committee were not reconstituted because the American people would not be able to have these questions answered," said Chairman Louis Stokes during debate on renewing the committee.

In the end, the House agreed to extending the panel's life. This should at least convince many people that the government in good faith is willing to take another look at conspiracy and coverup charges.

There have been too many efforts to bury this investigative effort. Why? The House decided this week to pursue an answer to that question, and it is in the best interests of the nation that it be pursued.

To catch a flea

William Safire

Hong Kong — With informal discussions already under way regarding a trip by President Carter to Peking, here is what America's policy planners should keep in mind regarding the Chinese outlook on the world:

(1) ON THE SOVIET UNION. A high Chinese official familiar with negotiations on border clashes said: "They refuse to recognize any disputed areas on the borders. The Soviet Union maintains that the boundary alignment drawn by them is a law that China should abide by."

But had not the Soviets maintained the border status quo, as promised, in recent years? "They only maintain the status quo because we will fire at them if they don't."

Strong words. But two years ago, when Teng Hsaio-ping was heir apparent, a Soviet helicopter crew that crossed the border was released. "Undoubtedly," the official conceded, "This was a gesture of good will toward the Soviet people." Now Teng is on the way back to a fairly high post; the likelihood is that state relations (not the party ideological clash) will gradually improve.

(2) ON THE TWO SUPER POWERS. China does not want America to lower its guard: "Disarmament and SALT talks are all frauds to hoodwink the people," the official said. "Each side is trying to limit the other in order to gain superiority."

In China's national interest, the official urged Americans to shun appeasement.

(3) ON THE NEW OPPORTUNITY IN INDIA: A veteran Chinese diplomat now in Shanghai said: "Personally speaking, I think it was quite natural that Mrs. Gandhi was defeated. Since she came to office, she brought disaster to the Indian people.

"In international affairs," the Shanghai official continued, "her government followed the Soviet social imperialist line, and dismembered Pakistan. If the new government wants to be popular with the people, and desires to meet their needs, it must develop friendly relations between China and India."

(4) ON THE U.S., TAIWAN, AND "NORMALIZATION". "In order to carry (the Shanghai communique) out, the U.S. must sever its relationship from Taiwan, abrogate its defense treaty and withdraw its troops," said the Peking foreign ministry official. "This is a civil war and has nothing to do with the U.S."

That's been the standard position. But when the official was reminded of Premier Chou En-lai's indication that the solution would be peaceful — a hint that was the basis for some Americans' hopes for a deal — he came back sharply:

"We have never said we would eliminate Taiwan only by peaceful means. We have expressed the hope that if a peaceful solution is possible, we would like to have it, but there is a big bunch of counter-revolutionaries in Taiwan who do not want Taiwan liberated, so the only other alternative is to liberate it by force."

Question: What, then, is the Chinese test of friendship? Their answer is in their invitations. For example, though known to be anti-abrogation, I was issued a coveted newsman's visa, given an audience in the Great Hall of the People, complete with smiling picture in People's Daily — primarily because they see this former Nixon speechwriter as "correct" on the Soviet Union.

Asked directly which comes first in the making of a "foreign friend," the Peking official put it plainly: "In terms of the magnitude of the issues, the international situation is more important."

The direction of Chinese foreign policy is to persuade the Americans to stay strong enough to balance the Soviets. First things first.

"If you try to catch 10 fleas with 10 fingers," said the man in the foreign ministry, "then you will catch none. Our principle is to use 10 fingers to catch one flea."

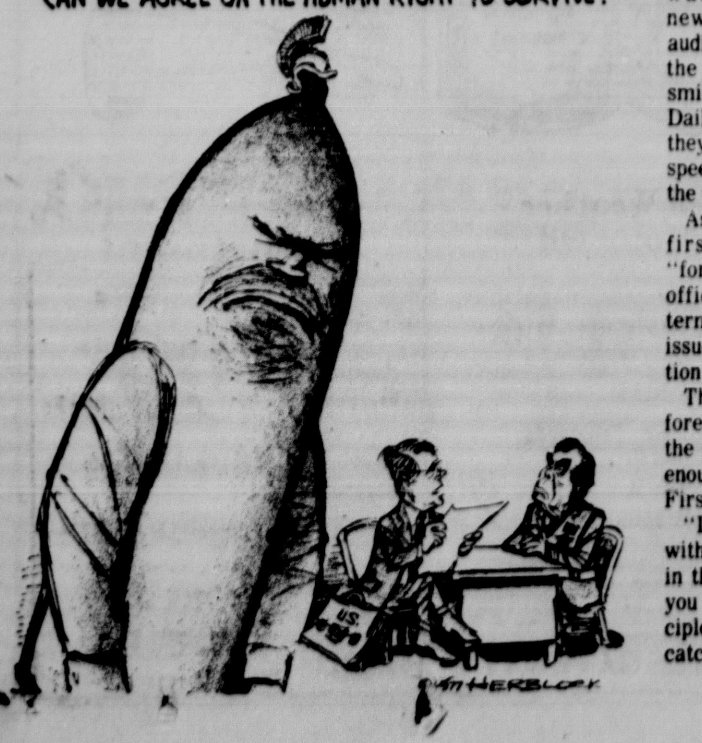
"CAN WE AGREE ON THE HUMAN RIGHT TO SURVIVE?"



Jerry Brown — color him changed

Marquis Childs

Sacramento — The Jerry Brown of today is quite another Jerry Brown from the young novice who came into the governor's office two years ago. His was then a nonpolitical image and we all came out from the East to write about this 37-year-old who looked with rather amused detachment at being chief executive of the largest state in the union.

Now he comes on as a hard-charger. Affairs of state appear to be uppermost in the mind of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. After all, the election is only two years away and no one here doubts that he will run for a second term.

In the presidential primaries last year, he had the enviable record of winning six out of six. The fresh young man from the West had to talk very little about issues.

Robert Strauss, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee, said privately that if Brown, a late starter, had begun 30 days earlier he would have won the Democratic nomination for president and Brown is inclined to agree. Pennsylvania, yes, Ohio, yes, and that would have been enough.

To turn on the hard-charger you have only to repeat to him what many of his critics out here say: You talk a lot, but you have done very little about what needs to be done in California.

His reply comes out with a rush of his accomplishments, ranging from the state labor relations act to the California Conservation Corps. And he has a raft of figures to show that California is the fastest-growing state in employment next to Texas with the rate of unemployment 7.8% as against around 10% when he came into office.

Gov. Brown says that without the labor act, the agreement between Caesar Chavez and Frank Fitzsimmons of the Teamsters Union over the organizing of farm workers would not have been possible.

The agreement signed the other day ended 10 years of feuding with widespread violence as Chavez — with national support — held out for the rights of his workers, many of whom were Chicanos.

Brown is building up a substantial record on the appointment of women and blacks and that will be an important asset, he believes, when he runs two years from now. In one conspicuous instance he put his Republican rival in 1978, Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, in a tight spot.

Brown had nominated for chief justice of the state Supreme Court 40-year-old Rose Elizabeth Bird who — following her legal experience, which included teaching at the Stanford University law school — has for two years been Brown's secretary of agriculture and services.

But the nomination had to be passed on by the three-member State Commission on Judicial Appointments. Younger, a member of the commission, was put in the position of casting the deciding vote for Miss Bird.

Younger did this in spite of stiff opposition from Republicans. A spokesman for the right wing of the party said they could never vote for Younger if he voted for Bird.

At the same time, just to tidy things up, Brown named a black, Wiley Manuel, to be an associate justice on the court.

With Ronald Reagan lurking in the background and his lieutenants muttering that he intends to run for president again in 1980, Younger will not have an easy task. But he is a powerful campaigner, making much of the law-and-order issue in a state racked by crime.

Brown, as I talked with him, was leaving to preside over the graduation of the first class of the California Conservation Corps. Eventually there will be 18 CCC training centers taking in blacks, whites, men, women. When they finish their training, they will go to work on various natural resource projects.

Brown gave Carter comparatively little help in the campaigning in this state last fall and his indifferent behavior at the Madison Square Garden convention was hardly likely to make them bosom pals.

But when Brown was in Washington, Carter invited him to stay at the White House and sleep overnight in the Lincoln bed. That was a gesture of good will that could overcome some of the chill that has existed between them.

The governor has no illusions about the seriousness of the drought from which California is suffering. It underscores his belief that the American people must realize that there are limits to growth. Limits, he says with the emphasis of one who has looked at the human predicament out of his long Jesuit training.

If Brown is daunted by what lies ahead, and in the gloomiest perspective it is grim indeed, he shows no sign of it. Bloodied in the rough-and-tumble of very rough politics, Brown is no longer an amateur.

ConRail looks back over one year

Richard Worsnop

Washington — When the Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail) assumed control of six bankrupt eastern railroads a year ago, many observers thought the takeover date was peculiarly apt: It was April Fool's Day. The six lines were collectively losing $1 million a day, and yet ConRail executives were predicting that the consolidated concern would report an operating profit of $1 billion within a decade.

Now, on ConRail's first anniversary, incredulity has given way to respect. In its first six months of service, the corporation reported a net loss of $64.4 million on operating revenues of $1.6 billion. That is nothing to boast about, to be sure, but it represents considerable progress toward the goal of profitability. Losses for the second six months are expected to be far greater. Autumn and winter constitute the off-peak season for shipping, and the record cold and snow of January and February delayed or immobilized many trains.

ConRail moved quickly to economize by merging the operations of the six formerly separate and competitive lines. New routing patterns were devised, and yards were consolidated at some terminals. New work rules put into effect in the northern New Jersey terminal area facilitated freight movement and trimmed manpower costs.

At the same time, ConRail is spending millions of dollars for new rolling stock and to repair damaged track. "From Massachusetts to southern Illinois," U.S. News & World Report stated, "22,000 people — the equivalent of two Army divisions — are replacing tens of millions of rotted crossties, putting down thousands of miles of new rail and tamping trainloads of ballast. Another 22,000 are tackling years of neglected maintenance on ConRail's 154,529 cars and 4,768 locomotives."

The modernization program will take years to complete, despite all the manpower involved. ConRail comprises 17,000 miles of track, much of which is in such poor condition that trains can operate on it only at reduced speed. Even so, derailments are frequent and costly.

Meanwhile, a special three-judge court in Washington, D.C., is trying to decide how much, if anything, the federal government owes the former owners of the six lines in the ConRail network for forcing them to operate at big losses while the government was attempting to work out a solution to the Northeast rail crisis.

Both sides agree on two points: (1) If a railroad has a chance of turning itself around within a reasonable time, it must remain in operation and bear the losses; (2) but if the losses mount and the hope of recovery fades, the owners are entitled to shut down. The Fifth Amendment to the Constitution prohibits the taking of private property for public use "without just compensation."

The debate, then, centers on the date when the bankrupt lines' losses became unconstitutional and hence should be repaid by the government, which compelled the railroads to keep operating until ConRail took them over. The owners say they should be compensated for all losses after Oct. 1, 1973, but the government disagrees. Settling the dispute may be as difficult a task for the court as running a railroad is for ConRail.

This is to encourage The Star to repeat the particular format used on Page 37 of the Mar. 23 issue. It was almost a complete page on "Human rights — a world view" which collected items under that theme from several sources: one long article by Douglas Stanglin of UPI, a shorter item concerning Sakharov from Moscow UPI, and an item from Washington and AP concerning Carter's lack of fear to debate the Russians. In this case the news items supplemented the article.

I do wish The Star could repeat this format since a thematic grouping of the news such as this intensifies the readers' attention to the subject. Congratulations! More! More! More!

Airport security

Lincoln, Neb.

As a member of the Lincoln Airport Authority, I read with interest the enlightening editorial in the Mar. 30 Star regarding security at the airport terminal. The facts outlined concerning security provisions and those responsible for them will be helpful to all Lincoln air travelers.

While the searching of carry-on luggage is an inconvenience, the resulting goal of this and other security measures in the elimination of hijacking in the United States makes the process well worthwhile. The safety of the passenger is the ultimate concern of the FAA, as it is that of the Lincoln Airport Authority. The Star's effort in bringing this to the public's attention is most appreciated.

Crossing hazard

Lincoln, Neb.

I would like to reply to Mr./Mrs. "Live Pedestrian's" comment of Mar. 28. I am not an "incompetent" state employe. I have to cross both K and L Streets at least four times a day between the Capitol and the State Office Building. Every day I become increasingly perturbed with inconsiderate motorists who are in such a hurry to get to their homes or offices that they cannot stop for just a minute to let pedestrians cross at these mid-street crosswalks. Pedestrians are in just as much of a hurry to get where they are going as the motorist who is probably afraid that he will miss the next light.

While I do not advocate anything so ridiculous as a tunnel, I do think that increased motorist consideration or possibly crossing lights for these two busy streets are far more feasible.

TIRED OF BEING PATIENT

Tree-planting

Lincoln, Neb.

Where were the members of Trees, Inc. when the large cottonwood tree fell across the highway at Linoma Beach several years ago? Did they trim the top so workers could use the road to get to work?

They haven't even disposed of the tree's "torso" or given it a proper burial. It still lies where it fell — right in the front yard of Trees, Inc.

Did this organization incorporate to limit its liability when a motorist slides off an icy road and into a tree — a tree that Trees, Inc. had been instrumental in preserving?

It seems that the members of Trees, Inc. consider tree sap to be more important than the blood of humans.

I would like to donate trees to Trees, Inc. These could be locusts, Chinese elms or mulberries. I think many farmers (not to be confused with Mrs. Farmer) would also be glad to give some trees because they are weeds on many farms.

Now, don't ask me to plant trees because I have probably planted more trees than all the members of Trees, Inc. But I didn't plant them on highway rights-of-way.

I intend to plant more trees this spring but, again, I will not plant them where they will endanger motorists.

In the soup

Lincoln, Neb.

It appears to me that where the voice of reason is drowned out by the boom of power, ridiculous things come to pass. When the United States carried the seventh highest oil reserves in the world, it was producing more of this irreplaceable crude mineral oil than any other nation in the world and to do so, it had imposed tariffs to keep out the cheaper foreign oil. Because of this, we are now told the remaining reserves are so difficult to find that it will require extraordinary profits to finance this search. We had to subsidize them to create the problem and now we have to subsidize them to solve the problem.

I think we have been had and betrayed by the petroleum industry because in the ground it represented an appreciating reserve that would have been a buffer against cartels, shortages that will affect our security and way of life. It just doesn't make sense to me to allow them to have it both ways. I think we were damn fools to permit the tariffs before and we are the same to let them haul off exceedingly high profits with threats and intimidations. I am tired of their yelling and cry-babying while they are loading up their pockets and buying up large entities unrelated to energy.

I have access to one company's records and observed the earnings increased 138% in the past five years, or at an annual compound rate of 18% plus, and I think that is well in excess of inflation contributing to inflation and no sign that it is losing money in the quest for oil and gas. If there is any ratio between high profits and the availability fo fuel, we ought to have plenty of fuel with these unparalleled margins. In 1971 this company had a goal of an eight to 10% annual increase in earnings. If we are willing to be led around like penguins, we will surely end up in the soup kettle.

Trade mission: No complaints against U.S. wheat

During the past three years, the quality of grain delivered to America s export customers has vastly improved Nebraska Farm Bureau President Wendell Gangwish of Wood River reported Thursday upon his return from a two-week Farm Bureau trade expansion mission to Western Europe

Gangwish said the chairman of the Royal Netherlands Trade Commodity Commission at Rotterdam, the port where most of Europe s grain imports are unloaded, told the group the commission has not had a written, verified complaint against U S grain or soybean quality in the past two years He said complaints must be submitted in writing and verified

Gangwish said grain is weighed in Rotterdam on delivery now thus eliminating arguments about short weights

There is no doubt that U S farmers are now delivering quality products as represented," Gangwish commented

The trade mission headed by American Farm Bureau President Allan Grant, including 10 other state Farm Bureau presidents visited top trade officials of the European Community (Common Market) at Brussels, West German agricultural officials at Bonn and U S and foreign trade negotiators and officials at the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) Conferences at Geneva

The trade mission s visit coincided with the 20th anniversary of the European Economic Community and of GATT talks for the international trading community Gangwish said the group sought to convey that U S farmers remain dedicated to a market oriented system

U S farmers can compete in agricultural production efficiency with any country in the world Gangwish stated, but the problem is in overcoming the various trade barriers and restrictions imposed by foreign economies

He said the European Community is highly protective of its agricultural economy and the trade mission is convinced that negotiations to lower trade barriers have to be conducted considering agricultural and industrial products together

He said the present exception in restraints are U S soybeans which seem to have a clear track They need our soybeans to meet both their human and animal protein requirements Gangwish pointed out

FFA members present awards

Nebraska Future Farmers of America presented their highest awards to several individuals and firms for their service to the youth group at the organizations annual banquet Thursday night.

FFA members are high school vocational-agriculture students taking courses aimed at providing a career in agriculture, either as a farmer-rancher or in some business related to agriculture.

Honored for distinguished service were Maple Dell Farms at Crab Orchard, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Ward of Auburn and Sunland Plans Inc. of Concordia, Ks.

The organization's highest award to non-members, the honorary state farmer degree, was presented to Vernon Thomsen, superintendent of schools at Sutherland; Dominick Costello, farm editor of the Lincoln Journal and Star; Paul Gustman, a vocational-agricultural instructor at Randolph; and Larry Shavlik, vocational agricultural instructor at Elgin.

An appreciation award went to Roy Equall, administrator of vocational education for the State Department of Education.

A special award was presented to U.E. Wendorff, associate professor of agricultural education at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. A recognition certificate went to Robert Bebout of Nebraska City.

The group also presented honorary state farmer degrees to the fathers of all the state officers and special certificates of appreciation to the mothers.

During the first session of the state convention Thursday afternoon, the St. Edward and Leigh chapters were given awards as the two top chapters in promoting farm safety.

The Rock County Chapter at Bassett, the St. Edward and Kimball chapters were also presented awards by Robert Andersen, executive secretary of the Nebraska Co-Op Council, for their activities related to cooperatives.

Eight members named area star farmers are Steve Zimmerman, 18, of Fairbury; Jack Warner, 17, of Allen; Mark Fenske, 18, of Sargent; Dale Large, 18, of Wauneta; Darwin Godemann, 18, of Falls City; David D. Phipps, 18, of Pierce; Randy Allen of Blue Hill; and Rodney Johnson, 20, of Gordon. The first four listed were named area star farmers in production, while the other four are area star farmers in agribusiness.

First atlas of 3 is on agriculture

An "Agricultural Atlas of Nebraska," the first volume of the Nebraska Atlas Project, soon will be available from the University of Nebraska (NU) Press.

Scheduled for publication in May, the atlas is edited by James H. Williams and Doug Murfield.

The Nebraska Atlas Project, directed by Merlin P. Lawson, associate professor of geography at NU, is intended to provide an understanding of the relationship between man and his environment, particularly in the Great Plains.

The agricultural atlas outlines the nature and characteristics of farming in Nebraska. It includes information on soil and water resources and historical trends, the status and future prospects in animal and crop production and marketing, farm expenditures, irrigation and soil improvement.

The atlas includes 17 color and 10 black-and-white photos with 110 color maps.

Two more atlases are scheduled for inclusion in the project.

The "Economic Atlas of Nebraska," edited by Richard Lonsdale, will be published in June. It considers the state's konomic development and general character, major economic sectors and predictions of the future.

This atlas includes 116 maps and graphs with 51 statistical tables.

The third atlas is the "Climatic Atlas of Nebraska," edited by Lawson, Kenneth F. Dewey and Ralph E. Neild.

The authors describe Nebraska's past and present climate and area weather variations. It discusses climatic controls and weather measurement, temperature, atmospheric humidity and precipitation, wind and climatic change.

Photographs in this atlas includes seven in color and 17 black-and-white. The atlas also includes 68 maps and is scheduled for publication in November.

Trade mission: No complaints against U.S. wheat

During the past three years, the quality of grain delivered to America's export customers has vastly improved, Nebraska Farm Bureau President Wendell Gangwish of Wood River reported Thursday upon his return from a two-week Farm Bureau trade expansion mission to Western Europe.

Gangwish said the chairman of the Royal Netherlands Trade Commodity Commission at Rotterdam, the port where most of Europe's grain imports are unloaded, told the group the commission has not had a written, verified complaint against U.S. grain or soybean quality in the past two years. He said complaints must be submitted in writing and verified.

Gangwish said grain is weighed in Rotterdam on delivery now, thus eliminating arguments about short weights.

"There is no doubt that U.S. farmers are now delivering quality products as represented," Gangwish commented.

The trade mission headed by American Farm Bureau President Allan Grant, including 10 other state Farm Bureau presidents, visited top trade officials of the European Community (Common Market) at Brussels, West German agricultural officials at Bonn, and U.S. and foreign trade negotiators and officials at the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) Conferences at Geneva.

The trade mission's visit coincided with the 20th anniversary of the European Economic Community and of GATT talks for the international trading community. Gangwish said the group sought to convey that U.S. farmers remain dedicated to a market-oriented system.

"U.S. farmers can compete in agricultural production efficiency with any country in the world," Gangwish stated, "but the problem is in overcoming the various trade barriers and restrictions imposed by foreign economies."

He said the European Community is highly protective of its agricultural economy, and the trade mission is convinced that negotiations to lower trade barriers have to be conducted considering agricultural and industrial products together.

He said the present exception in restraints are U.S. soybeans which seem to have a clear track. "They need our soybeans to meet both their human and animal protein requirements," Gangwish pointed out.

State Digest

Chadron editor named

Sidney (AP) — Con Marshall, editor of the Sidney Telegraph for the past year, will return in mid-April to his former post as editor of the Chadron Record. He will succeed Don Winningham, who will become editor of the Crawford Tribune, recently purchased by Chadron Newspapers Inc., which also owns the Record.

Young Demos to confer

Omaha (AP) — The Nebraska Young Democrats state convention will be held in Omaha this weekend. At the sessions, which begin today, the Young Democrats will consider resolutions, conduct seminars and elect officers. Gov. J. James Exon and Rep. John Cavanaugh, D-Neb., will speak to the group.

Blaze damages shop

Omaha (AP) — Fire caused an estimated $30,000 damage Thursday at the Janousek Bros. flower shop. Firemen who answered the two alarms said an overheated boiler may have been responsible for the blaze, but investigation was continuing.

Educational program set

Fremont — Dr. Raymond Beach of Fremont, president of the Nebraska Chiropractic Physicians Association, Thursday announced an expanded, post-graduate study program to be held April 2-3 in conjunction with the association's semi-annual convention at Kearney. Dr. David S. Walther of Pueblo, Colo., will be the instructor.

ETV grant revealed

Kearney (AP) — The Nebraska Committee for the Humanities will provide a grant for $11,146 to the Nebraska Educational Television Council for Higher Education, Nebraska committee chairman Keith Blackledge said Thursday. The grant will be used to develop a two-part television series titled "The Legacies of the Depression on the Great Plains," which will examine the events of the 1930s to determine how those events affected the development of the institutions and patterns which still influence current society.

Convention drive dims

Grand Island (AP) — The Nebraska Coalition for Life will not actively pursue a call for a constitutional convention in the Nebraska Legislature at this time, the group said. In a news release, the group said the decision was reached after hearing the pro and con of a constitutional convention at the NCL's monthly board meeting in Wahoo.

One highway remains blocked due to snow

Only one highway remained blocked Thursday as the result of a three-day snowstorm earlier in the week in northern and northwestern Nebraska.

Highway 97 from Nenzel south to McKelvie National Forest was still impassable.

Winds finally calmed down Thursday after the snowfall stopped, enabling crews to open highways.

However, several roads were limited to one-way traffic in spots. The State Roads Department said these were Highway 2 south of Crawford, Highway 27 north of Gordon, U.S. 20 from Gordon to Nenzel, Highway 61 south of Merriman and Highway 12 northeast of Valentine.

Scottsbluff's 59 degrees was the highest temperature recorded in the state Thursday, while Valentine's 7 was the lowest. In Lincoln the high was 50, the low 26.

Voc-ag teachers not up to demand

There aren t enough students graduating from the Agricultural Education program at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to fill the vacancies for vocational agriculture teachers in Nebraska

This conclusion is the result of research involving 227 agricultural education graduates, according to Wayne W Oberg, instructor of agricultural education at UNL

The demand for teachers far surpasses the supply of trained personnel he says "Each year, agricultural education graduates have had many opportunities from which to select a job "

Never, in the past 25 years, Oberg points out, has Nebraska had a sufficient number of graduates to meet the needs within the state

The starting salary for a vocational agricultural teacher is around $11 000 Oberg says Of the 227 graduates from the fall of 1970 to the spring of 1976 37 of the graduates became voc-ag instructors, while 29 entered the farming or ranching business Twenty percent entered agribusiness, the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA), the Production Credit Assn or Federal Land Bank Two percent entered graduate school and one percent of the total are now county extension agents The other 11 percent includes those who entered another field or on which information is unavailable Oberg says

NEA head to address convention

The president of the National Education Association, John Ryor, will speak to members of the Nebraska State Education Association at their annual convention in Omaha Saturday morning

Ryor 40, was a high school math teacher in Battle Creek, Mich , before he assumed his post with the 1,900,000-member NEA He was the subject of much controversy among teachers when he urged the group to break a 118-year history and finally endorse a contender in the 1976 presidential election The NEA endorsed the Carter-Mondale candidacy

He is an advocate of collective bargaining for teachers, as outlined in pending federal legislation

"We can negotiate with the Russians and Chinese and negotiate grain and arms deals all over the world," he said, "but teachers in numerous places across this country do not have the right to sit down with their boards of education to negotiate conditions of employment and what they need to effectively teach "

The convention is the 110th meeting of the Nebraska group since it was founded in 1867 Membership is currently more than 19,000, representing about 90% of the state's teachers, according to NSEA officials

Wall will visit schools

Lincoln School Board candidate Milan Wall has begun a series of lunchtime "listening post" visits designed to take him into schools all across the city before May's general election

Wall, of 1260 S 22nd, initiated similar visits when he ran for the board two years ago, and said he found them to be "a highly effective means to get a first-hand view" of the school's programs

Mortensen: Problems national

Mrs Lynn Mortensen, Lincoln school board candidate, recently attended the national convention of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development in Houston

She reports that problems such as basics, cost of education and the needs of special interest groups are national problems "We in Lincoln are leading from the front We have an excellent innovative school system," she said

Slaikeu files finance report

Lincoln Board of Education candidate Steve Slaikeu has filed a campaign finance report with the election commissioner's office

The filing of the report was a voluntary action of Slaikeu's part he said "I think the citizens of Lincoln should know the financial facts regarding a Board of Education election I hope other candidates follow my lead "

Slaikeu listed $665 in contributions and $499 in expenses in the report

Mortensen: Problems national

Mrs. Lynn Mortensen, Lincoln school board candidate, recently attended the national convention of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development in Houston.

She reports that problems such as basics, cost of education and the needs of special interest groups are national problems. "We in Lincoln are leading from the front. We have an excellent innovative school system," she said.

Slaikeu files finance report

Lincoln Board of Education candidate Steve Slaikeu has filed a campaign finance report with the election commissioner's office.

The filing of the report was a voluntary action of Slaikeu's part, he said. "I think the citizens of Lincoln should know the financial facts regarding a Board of Education election. I hope other candidates follow my lead."

Slaikeu listed $665 in contributions and $499 in expenses in the report.

Bill to end death penalty nixed

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Although it attracted the most legislative support in memory, a bill to abolish the death penalty in Nebraska failed to clear its first Unicameral floor hurdle Thursday.

Needing 25 votes to jump its initial barrier, the propsal fell short on a 20-29 vote.

Now the measure, LB64, faces the possibility of being transformed into a stricter death penalty law than the one already on the books.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said he will present amendments to provide for automatic capital punishment for conviction of specific crimes under certain conditions.

His proposal will offer the Legislature "a very strict death penalty law," he said, one which removes the inequity of death sentences in specified circumstnaces.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, sponsor of the proposal to end the death penalty, said he may attempt to amend his bill to seek a five-year moratorium on capital punishment in the state.

Three convicted murderers currently are scheduled to die in Nebraska's electric chair during a five-day period in late June and early July. A fourth awaits an execution date.

Refusal to advance the bill Thursday followed the Legislature's second day of emotional debate on the issue and centered on doubts about earlier action seeking a 30-year minimum sentence for first degree murderers.

DeCamp said operation of Nebraska's good time laws would automatically reduce that sentence to about 15 years and five months.

Other senators said they were concerned about the undiminished constitutional authority of the Board of Pardons to commute sentences in spite of the proposed 30-year minimum.

The Legislature had amended the bill on Wednesday to provide for a minimum 30-year sentence without the possibility of parole for each count of first degree murder.

Since many mass murderers are charged with only one count of murder, Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha said, the cumulative effect of the amendment on mass killers might never be operative

Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams said he is fearful that abolition of the death penalty would only "encourage police to inflict capital punishment on the streets."

With the use of hollow point bullets, which Burrows called "an executioner's weapon," police in Omaha and Lincoln already have disposed of a number of accused persons in this manner in recent years, he said.

Sen. Sam Cullan of Hemingford said the law's most important responsibility is to protect society, and he would feel more secure if a certain 30-year imprisonment could be written into the state constitution.

Other senators said abolition of the death penalty would provide no protection for prison guards or other prisoners who come in contact with a murderer sentenced to prison for life.

Chambers repeated his earlier arguments that there is no evidence that the death penalty acts as a deterrent either in prison or on the streets.

Sen. Neil Simon of Omaha, author of the proposed 30-year minimum sentence, said the death penalty is too often "used unjustly . . . against the poor, Negroes and members of unpopular groups."

DeCamp argued that it is "a reasonable tool in the arsenal of government to enforce its laws."

Here is the vote on Chambers' motion to advance the bill:

For: Boughn, Brennan, Carsten, Chambers, Cullan, Dworak, Fowler, Kelly, Keyes, Koch, Kremer, F. Lewis, Marsh, Marvel, Newell, Reutzel, Rumery, Simon, Swigart, Warner

Against: Barnett, Bereuter, Burrows, Clark, Cope, DeCamp, Duis, Fitzgerald, George, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Hefner, Kahle, Labedz, Lamb, R Lewis, Luedtke, Maresh, Maxey, Merz, Mills, Moylan, Murphy, Nichol, Rasmussen, Savage, Schmit, Stoney, Venditte.

State aid to schools debate forthcoming

United Press International

Debate will open on the state aid to schools bill Tuesday, Speaker Roland Luedtke, Lincoln, advised the Legislature Thursday.

He said an hour a day will be devoted to discussion of the legislation, sponsored by Ralston Sen Gerald Roch.

The bill, LB33, proposes increasing state aid to schools by $20 million annually until state funding reaches 40% of the operational costs of public elementary and secondary schools.

The proposal is similar to those which have come close to passage the past two years. Gov. J. James Exon vetoed those measures,

Associated Press

The Legislature Thursday rejected an Appropriations Committee request to introduce a bill that would allow the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute in Omaha, a part of the University of Nebraska, to charge counties for part of the costs of care for patients from those counties.

The bill needed 30 votes for introduction; the vote was 21-13.

Committee Chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly said without the bill, more state tax money than expected will be needed to support the institute. He said he did not know how much more might be needed.

The Justice Department ruled previously that the institute could not continue to charge the counties 29% of costs for care of patients from those counties.

The requested bill would allow the institute to charge the counties the same fees as the state regional centers, $15 per day for the first 30 days and $3 per day thereafter.

Warner said he will try again to introduce the bill.

He said most of the patients at the institute were from Douglas County, "so some of the Omaha senators were a little reluctant."

The Legislature voted to allow introduction of another Appropriations Committee bill, LB526, which would require the governor to submit a budget within the first 10 days of each legislative session.

The governor must submit the budget within 30 legislative days; that deadline is retained in the bill for a governor's first year in office.

Spine insurance coverage killed

United Press International

The Legislature refused Thursday to revive a bill that would have placed spinal adjustment treatment under Blue Cross-Blue Shield medical coverage.

LB207 was killed on a 5-0 vote in the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee.

Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes tried to get the bill reported to the floor, despite the committee action, but couldn't generate enough support.

Gov. Exon 'favors' present death law

United Press International

Gov. J. James Exon Thursday said he supports Nebraska's existing capital punishment law, which provides for the death sentence in certain cases.

While Exon was discussing the death penalty at a news conference, the state's lawmakers also were addressing the issue of capital punishment

This year the Legislature is considering Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers' bill to abolish capital punishment in Nebraska. The lawmakers amended the bill, LB64, Wednesday, but were unable Thursday to give it first-round approval.

In 1973, Exon signed a law that permits capital punishment for persons convicted of murder in the course of rape, arson, robbery, kidnapping, hijacking and burglary.

Chambers' proposal, as amended, would require a minimum 30-year sentence for persons convicted of first-degree murder.

"I have not changed what has been my traditional position on that matter," Exon said. The bill should be allowed to "take its course," he added.

"I do favor the existing law . . . I have supported it and will continue to do so," Exon said. "I have no quarrel with those who are making a case against," capital punishment, he said.

Exon, however, refused to predict what action he would take if the Legislature passes a bill outlawing capital punishment.

Bill to end death penalty nixed

By Don Walton
Star Staff Writer

Although it attracted the most legislative support in memory, a bill to abolish the death penalty in Nebraska failed to clear its first Unicameral floor hurdle Thursday.

Needing 25 votes to jump its initial barrier, the propsal fell short on a 20-29 vote.

Now the measure, LB64, faces the possibility of being transformed into a stricter death penalty law than the one already on the books.

Sen. John DeCamp of Neligh said he will present amendments to provide for automatic capital punishment for conviction of specific crimes under certain conditions.

His proposal will offer the Legislature "a very strict death penalty law," he said, one which removes the inequity of death sentences in specified circumstnaces.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha, sponsor of the proposal to end the death penalty, said he may attempt to amend his bill to seek a five-year moratorium on capital punishment in the state.

Three convicted murderers currently are scheduled to die in Nebraska's electric chair during a five-day period in late June and early July. A fourth awaits an execution date.

Refusal to advance the bill Thursday followed the Legislature's second day of emotional debate on the issue and centered on doubts about earlier action seeking a 30-year minimum sentence for first degree murderers.

DeCamp said operation of Nebraska's good time laws would automatically reduce that sentence to about 15 years and five months.

Other senators said they were concerned about the undiminished constitutional authority of the Board of Pardons to commute sentences in spite of the proposed 30-year minimum.

The Legislature had amended the bill on Wednesday to provide for a minimum 30-year sentence without the possibility of parole for each count of first degree murder.

Since many mass murderers are charged with only one count of murder, Sen. Larry Stoney of Omaha said, the cumulative effect of the amendment on mass killers might never be operative.

Sen. George "Bill" Burrows of Adams said he is fearful that abolition of the death penalty would only "encourage police to inflict capital punishment on the streets."

With the use of hollow point bullets, which Burrows called "an executioner's weapon," police in Omaha and Lincoln already have disposed of a number of accused persons in this manner in recent years, he said.

Sen. Sam Cullan of Hemingford said the law's most important responsibility is to protect society, and he would feel more secure if a certain 30-year imprisonment could be written into the state constitution.

Other senators said abolition of the death penalty would provide no protection for prison guards or other prisoners who come in contact with a murderer sentenced to prison for life.

Chambers repeated his earlier arguments that there is no evidence that the death penalty acts as a deterrent either in prison or on the streets.

Sen. Neil Simon of Omaha, author of the proposed 30-year minimum sentence, said the death penalty is too often "used unjustly . . . against the poor, Negroes and members of unpopular groups."

DeCamp argued that it is "a reasonable tool in the arsenal of government to enforce its laws."

For: Boughn, Brennan, Carsten, Chambers, Cullan, Dworak, Fowler, Kelly, Keyes, Koch, Kremer, F. Lewis, Marsh, Marvel, Newell, Reutzel, Rumery, Simon, Swigart, Warner.

Against: Barnett, Bereuter, Burrows, Clark, Cope, DeCamp, Duis, Fitzgerald, George, Goodrich, Hasebroock, Hefner, Kahle, Labedz, Lamb, R. Lewis, Luedtke, Maresh, Maxey, Merz, Mills, Moylan, Murphy, Nichol, Rasmussen, Savage, Schmit, Stoney, Venditte.

State aid to schools debate forthcoming

United Press International

Debate will open on the state aid to schools bill Tuesday, Speaker Roland Luedtke, Lincoln, advised the Legislature Thursday.

He said an hour a day will be devoted to discussion of the legislation, sponsored by Ralston Sen. Gerald Roch.

The bill, LB33, proposes increasing state aid to schools by $20 million annually until state funding reaches 40% of the operational costs of public elementary and secondary schools.

The proposal is similar to those which have come close to passage the past two years. Gov. J. James Exon vetoed those measures.

Associated Press

The Legislature Thursday rejected an Appropriations Committee request to introduce a bill that would allow the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute in Omaha, a part of the University of Nebraska, to charge counties for part of the costs of care for patients from those counties.

The bill needed 30 votes for introduction; the vote was 21-13.

Committee Chairman Jerome Warner of Waverly said without the bill, more state tax money than expected will be needed to support the institute. He said he did not know how much more might be needed.

The Justice Department ruled previously that the institute could not continue to charge the counties 29% of costs for care of patients from those counties.

The requested bill would allow the institute to charge the counties the same fees as the state regional centers, $15 per day for the first 30 days and $3 per day thereafter.

Warner said he will try again to introduce the bill.

He said most of the patients at the institute were from Douglas County, "so some of the Omaha senators were a little reluctant."

The Legislature voted to allow introduction of another Appropriations Committee bill, LB526, which would require the governor to submit a budget within the first 10 days of each legislative session.

The governor must submit the budget within 30 legislative days; that deadline is retained in the bill for a governor's first year in office.

Spine insurance coverage killed

United Press International

The Legislature refused Thursday to revive a bill that would have placed spinal adjustment treatment under Blue Cross-Blue Shield medical coverage.

LB207 was killed on a 5-0 vote in the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee.

Springfield Sen. Orval Keyes tried to get the bill reported to the floor, despite the committee action, but couldn't generate enough support.

Restriction on patrol lawyers approved

Associated Press

The Legislature Thursday passed bills restricting Nebraska State Patrol counsels from prosecuting drug cases and setting up a special legislative committee to review postsecondary education coordination.

The amended patrol bill, LB294, passed 42-4. It restricts the patrol's attorneys to preparation of drug cases and also removes the $20,000 minimum salary for assistant attorneys general.

As introduced by Big Springs Sen. Jack Mills for the governor, it would have placed patrol attorneys under Justice Department authority.

Waverly Sen. Jerome Warner's special interim study committee introduced LB459, passed on a 47-0 count. That bill gives life to the Nebraska Postsecondary Education Advisory Committee until July 1, 1978. That committee will review the roles and missions of state colleges, technical community colleges and the University of Nebraska.

It also will make recommendations on statutory changes or restrictions to the full Legislature.

Senators also passed:

—LB419, a Public Works Committee bill allowing prestige license plates for commercial trucks that don't exceed four tons gross weight, 45-0. The plates will cost $50 for the first year and $25 thereafter in addition to all other registration fees each year.

—LB481, a Public Health and Welfare Committee bill that changes requirements for membership on the Douglas County Hospital Board, 42-0. Now, one member of that board must be a county resident who lives outside Omaha's corporate limits.

Improvement districts win 1st round

United Press International

A bill which Omaha Sen. Warren Swigart said would provide "a new tool with which a community within a community could pick itself up" won 28-2 preliminary approval in the Legislature Thursday.

LB61 would permit businessmen to assess themselves for the purpose of forming an improvement district. The revenue would be used for such things as parking lots, refurbishing storefronts and landscaping to make a commercial area more attractive to shoppers.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said small improvement projects were what sponsors of the legislation had in mind.

The bill would not permit the issuance of bonds to finance the improvements.

Given first-round approval on a 30-0 vote was LB238 which would permit Omaha to create off-street parking in business areas.

Current law authorizes such lots only on land adjacent to city property or under interstate highway overpasses.

Sen. John Savage said the bill would be especially helpful to the Benson and South Omaha areas.

The measure provides that a petition of property owners in the area would have to be obtained before a special assessment district could be formed.

Hamilton considers bid for Congress

Lancaster County Board of Commissioners Chairman Bruce Hamilton said Thursday he is seriously considering running for Congress in 1978.

He admitted to the congressional ambitions when asked to verify an Associated Press story that reported a conversation between Hamilton and 2nd District Rep. John Cavanaugh last week in Washington, D.C.

According to the story, Hamilton walked into Cavanaugh's office while reporters and photographers were clustered around the Omaha congressman.

The story said Hamilton told Cavanaugh he was considering running for Congress — for the seat now held by Charles Thone.

What actually happened, Hamilton said Thursday, was that the minute he stepped into the room Cavanuagh asked, "What are you running for?" Hamilton blurted out, "Congress."

The question took him by surprise, but his answer wasn't exactly a slip of the tongue. He was intending to bring up the subject himself, he said.

Hamilton said Thursday that while he was in Washington for a conference of county officials, he looked up Cavanaugh and Omaha Sen. Ed Zorinsky to ask their advice on planning a possible campaign.

"They both wished me well," Hamilton said.

Embezzlement nets 2 years

A Florida man was sentenced in federal district court Thursday to two years in prison for embezzling funds from a York trucking firm.

Billy Starnes, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., pleaded guilty to embezzling from Kelco Foods Transportation Inc. in 1976 while he was a driver for that firm. Three other embezzling charges against Starnes were dropped by the U.S. attorney's office.

Lancaster County woman's death ruled apparent suicide by officers

The shooting death of a rural Lancaster County woman was apparently suicide, according to officers of the county sheriff's office.

Authorities said the body of Harriet A. Wilhelm, 37, was found in the bedroom of her farm house near 1st Street and Saltillo Road, south of Lincoln, by her 15-year-old daughter late Wednesday afternoon.

The girl called her father who called the sheriff's office, according to reports. Reports on the incident have been turned over to the county attorney's office on a routine basis, authorities said.

Senators also passed:

—LB419, a Public Works Committee bill allowing prestige license plates for commercial trucks that don't exceed four tons gross weight, 45-0. The plates will cost $50 for the first year and $25 thereafter in addition to all other registration fees each year.

—LB481, a Public Health and Welfare Committee bill that changes requirements for membership on the Douglas County Hospital Board, 42-0. Now, one member of that board must be a county resident who lives outside Omaha's corporate limits.

Improvement districts win 1st round

United Press International

A bill which Omaha Sen. Warren Swigart said would provide "a new tool with which a community within a community could pick itself up" won 28-2 preliminary approval in the Legislature Thursday.

LB61 would permit businessmen to assess themselves for the purpose of forming an improvement district. The revenue would be used for such things as parking lots, refurbishing storefronts and landscaping to make a commercial area more attractive to shoppers.

Lincoln Sen. Steve Fowler said small improvement projects were what sponsors of the legislation had in mind.

The bill would not permit the issuance of bonds to finance the improvements.

Given first-round approval on a 30-0 vote was LB238 which would permit Omaha to create off-street parking in business areas.

Current law authorizes such lots only on land adjacent to city property or under interstate highway overpasses.

Sen. John Savage said the bill would be especially helpful to the Benson and South Omaha areas.

The measure provides that a petition of property owners in the area would have to be obtained before a special assessment district could be formed.

Hamilton considers bid for Congress

Lancaster County Board of Commissioners Chairman Bruce Hamilton said Thursday he is seriously considering running for Congress in 1978.

He admitted to the congressional ambitions when asked to verify an Associated Press story that reported a conversation between Hamilton and 2nd District Rep. John Cavanaugh last week in Washington, D.C.

According to the story, Hamilton walked into Cavanaugh's office while reporters and photographers were clustered around the Omaha congressman.

The story said Hamilton told Cavanaugh he was considering running for Congress — for the seat now held by Charles Thone.

What actually happened, Hamilton said Thursday, was that the minute he stepped into the room Cavanuagh asked, "What are you running for?" Hamilton blurted out, "Congress."

The question took him by surprise, but his answer wasn't exactly a slip of the tongue. He was intending to bring up the subject himself, he said.

Hamilton said Thursday that while he was in Washington for a conference of county officials, he looked up Cavanaugh and Omaha Sen. Ed Zorinsky to ask their advice on planning a possible campaign.

"They both wished me well," Hamilton said.

Embezzlement nets 2 years

A Florida man was sentenced in federal district court Thursday to two years in prison for embezzling funds from a York trucking firm.

Billy Starnes, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., pleaded guilty to embezzling from Kelco Foods Transportation Inc. in 1976 while he was a driver for that firm. Three other embezzling charges against Starnes were dropped by the U.S. attorney's office.

Lancaster County woman's death ruled apparent suicide by officers

The shooting death of a rural Lancaster County woman was apparently suicide, according to officers of the county sheriff's office.

Authorities said the body of Harriet A. Wilhelm, 37, was found in the bedroom of her farm house near 1st Street and Saltillo Road, south of Lincoln, by her 15-year-old daughter late Wednesday afternoon.

The girl called her father who called the sheriff's office, according to reports. Reports on the incident have been turned over to the county attorney's office on a routine basis, authorities said.

Trucker wins rehearing after high court ruling

The Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) decided Thursday to hold another hearing on an Iowa trucker's application for a permit to truck anhydrous ammonia in Nebraska.

The commission's action followed a State Supreme Court ruling in February which held that the PSC erred when it denied the application two years ago.

Dilts Trucking Co. of Crescent, Iowa, had been transporting ammonia to points in Nebraska from the pipeline terminal located near Greenwood.

Although the firm had been in business in Nebraska since 1972, the PSC did not order Dilts to halt its action until April, 1975. The commission claimed Dilts was violating the law by not having a Nebraska permit.

The trucking company argued it thought it had the authority to do business in Nebraska, since in 1969 it was given a certificate of convenience and necessity by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Supreme Court found the PSC action which denied the application to be illegal, arbitrary and unreasonable.

The court said an applicant who had been operating under the "color of authority" need not make the same showing as a company which had never operated.

Although the PSC decided to hold another hearing, its staff still is recommending denial under the guidelines set down by the Supreme Court in its order.

The staff report noted that during the time Dilts has been banned from shipping ammonia, another company picked up the business. Initially, eight other Nebraska trucking firms opposed the application.

No date has been set for the rehearing.

In other business the PSC approved the application of Virgil Stutzman of Lincoln to transport sand, gravel, rock and dam construction materials throughout the state.

Stutzman, who operates Triple "S" Salt and Grain, Inc., 1801 Yolande, will acquire the permit granted to Darrell and Lillie Bomberger of Hickman. No one objected to the license transfer.

Man gets 15 years for shooting officer

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas County District Court Judge John Murphy Thursday issued a 15-year prison sentence to a Giltner man who shot at nearly point-blank range a policeman wearing a bulletproof vest.

"This charge came very close to being first-degree murder," Murphy told the defendant, Steven L. Herdt, 22.

Herdt has pleaded guilty to shooting Sgt. Charles Parker with intent to kill, wound or maim on the night of Dec. 1 when Parker stopped a jeep on a North Omaha street.

Parker, wearing a protective vest under his uniform shirt, suffered only a bruise from the pistol shot.

Parker said he stopped the jeep because the vehicle and its license number matched a description broadcast that evening in connection with a fugitive warrant.

Herdt faces legal action in Hastings for allegedly purchasing the jeep with a bad check.

Herdt escaped from the scene of the Parker shooting and took a bus to Grand Island, where a friend drove him to his parents' home in Giltner. The next day, Herdt surrendered without resistance to law officers who were summoned to the home by his family.

During the Dec. 1 incident, another officer responding to a call to help Parker shot a person not involved in the original stop of Herdt's vehicle.

David Sauer, 18, Omaha, drove up in an auto just as Parker was being shot. He was driving away, not knowing Parker had been shot, when Officer Richard Siebken arrived on the scene.

Siebken, who thought Sauer had fired the shot at Parker, shot four times at the Sauer car, striking Sauer once in the shoulder.

Sauer recovered from the wound, and Siebken was returned to duty without discipline following a police internal affairs investigation.

Herman man killed in wreck

Herman (AP) — The State Patrol said Joe T. Alvarez, 46, of Herman, was killed Wednesday night in a one-car accident about 1.8 miles west of Herman in Washington County.

The patrol said Alvarez was driving west on a county road when he apparently lost control of the car.

The death raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 71, or nine ahead of the figure on this date a year ago.

Burning refuse requires permit

Burning refuse without a permit is against the law for Lincoln residents and those living within three miles of the city.

The permits are issued by the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department Air Pollution Control Section. The department will not issue permits where other means of disposal are available, but encourages the use of refuse collection services or recycling centers.

Peters rejects Adams County tax assessment

Hastings (AP) — The Adams County tax assessor's office learned Thursday that State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters has refused to approve the county's 1977 property appraisals.

Peters told County Assessor Roscoe Storey in a letter that the "rollback formula" the county was using to arrive at this year's appraisals by adding a formula-derived figure to 1976 appraisals was illegal because the county board was not sitting as a board of equalization when it was approved, Storey said.

Peters also said in the letter that Western Appraisal Co. had failed to send property owners appraisal notices, as required in the company's contract, and the notices sent by the county were improper because they showed assessed rather than actual value of the property.

Storey said Peters offered to return to Adams County to hold another public hearing on the appraisals if the appraisal firm sends out notices showing actual rather than assessed values.

Arts Festival fills 146 booths

Perhaps Sam Davidson can predict the future.

Davidson, executive director of the Lincoln Arts Council, showed his foresight in ordering more booths for the second annual Lincoln Community Arts Festival.

He ordered 146 booths for the festival, which will be held on Centennial Mall April 23 and 24.

On Thursday, which was the deadline for booth applications, Davidson had received an exact total of 146 requests for booths, 133 artists' booths and 13 arts organizations' booths.

Visual artists from 12 states and from 22 Nebraska communities will participate in the festival.

Public libraries to be closed Easter

Lincoln public libraries will be closed during regular Sunday service hours (1:30-5:30 p.m.) on April 10, Easter Sunday.

Three men sour Omaha club's bingo night with robbery

Omaha (AP) — Three men — their faces covered — beat, threatened and robbed six persons at a club Wednesday night, then locked them in a storage room and stole an estimated $567 from a locked desk, police said.

The six persons said they had stayed late at the Belvedere Club to clean up after bingo night, when the three men entered about 11 p.m.

Police said Lester M. Hulbert, 67, was hit over the head with a leather sap and robbed of $8; Charles J. Nepodal, 61, was robbed of $30 by one of the men, who held a gun to Nepodal's head; Jeanette Nepodal, 69, was knocked out of a chair, kicked and robbed of $8; Harry Conrad, 68, was punched in the face, choked and robbed of $48, Robert Hoff, 36, was hit over the head with a soft drink bottle and robbed of $3; and Phyllis Valian, 56, was robbed of a ring and $43.

Police said the six were not seriously injured.

The three robbers, all black, drove away in a late model maroon Cadillac, police said.

Trucker wins rehearing after high court ruling

The Nebraska Public Service Commission (PSC) decided Thursday to hold another hearing on an Iowa trucker's application for a permit to truck anhydrous ammonia in Nebraska.

The commission's action followed a State Supreme Court ruling in February which held that the PSC erred when it denied the application two years ago.

Dilts Trucking Co. of Crescent, Iowa, had been transporting ammonia to points in Nebraska from the pipeline terminal located near Greenwood.

Although the firm had been in business in Nebraska since 1972, the PSC did not order Dilts to halt its action until April, 1975. The commission claimed Dilts was violating the law by not having a Nebraska permit.

The trucking company argued it thought it had the authority to do business in Nebraska, since in 1969 it was given a certificate of convenience and necessity by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Supreme Court found the PSC action which denied the application to be illegal, arbitrary and unreasonable.

The court said an applicant who had been operating under the "color of authority" need not make the same showing as a company which had never operated.

Although the PSC decided to hold another hearing, its staff still is recommending denial under the guidelines set down by the Supreme Court in its order.

The staff report noted that during the time Dilts has been banned from shipping ammonia, another company picked up the business. Initially, eight other Nebraska trucking firms opposed the application.

No date has been set for the rehearing.

In other business the PSC approved the application of Virgil Stutzman of Lincoln to transport sand, gravel, rock and dam construction materials throughout the state.

Stutzman, who operates Triple "S" Salt and Grain, Inc., 1801 Yolande, will acquire the permit granted to Darrell and Lillie Bomberger of Hickman. No one objected to the license transfer.

Three men sour Omaha club's bingo night with robbery

Omaha (AP) — Three men — their faces covered — beat, threatened and robbed six persons at a club Wednesday night, then locked them in a storage room and stole an estimated $567 from a locked desk, police said.

The six persons said they had stayed late at the Belvedere Club to clean up after bingo night, when the three men entered about 11 p.m.

Police said Lester M. Hulbert, 67, was hit over the head with a leather sap and robbed of $8; Charles J. Nepodal, 61, was robbed of $30 by one of the men, who held a gun to Nepodal's head; Jeanette Nepodal, 69, was knocked out of a chair, kicked and robbed of $8; Harry Conrad, 68, was punched in the face, choked and robbed of $48; Robert Hoff, 36, was hit over the head with a soft drink bottle and robbed of $3; and Phyllis Valian, 56, was robbed of a ring and $43.

Police said the six were not seriously injured.

The three robbers, all black, drove away in a late model maroon Cadillac, police said.

Man gets 15 years for shooting officer

Omaha (UPI) — Douglas County District Court Judge John Murphy Thursday issued a 15-year prison sentence to a Giltner man who shot at nearly point-blank range a policeman wearing a bulletproof vest.

"This charge came very close to being first-degree murder," Murphy told the defendant, Steven L. Herdt, 22.

Herdt has pleaded guilty to shooting Sgt. Charles Parker with intent to kill, wound or maim on the night of Dec. 1 when Parker stopped a jeep on a North Omaha street.

Parker, wearing a protective vest under his uniform shirt, suffered only a bruise from the pistol shot.

Parker said he stopped the jeep because the vehicle and its license number matched a description broadcast that evening in connection with a fugitive warrant.

Herdt faces legal action in Hastings for allegedly purchasing the jeep with a bad check.

Herdt escaped from the scene of the Parker shooting and took a bus to Grand Island, where a friend drove him to his parents' home in Giltner. The next day, Herdt surrendered without resistance to law officers who were summoned to the home by his family.

During the Dec. 1 incident, another officer responding to a call to help Parker shot a person not involved in the original stop of Herdt's vehicle.

David Sauer, 18, Omaha, drove up in an auto just as Parker was being shot. He was driving away, not knowing Parker had been shot, when Officer Richard Siebken arrived on the scene.

Siebken, who thought Sauer had fired the shot at Parker, shot four times at the Sauer car, striking Sauer once in the shoulder.

Sauer recovered from the wound, and Siebken was returned to duty without discipline following a police internal affairs investigation.

Herman man killed in wreck

Herman (AP) — The State Patrol said Joe T. Alvarez, 46, of Herman, was killed Wednesday night in a one-car accident about 1.8 miles west of Herman in Washington County.

The patrol said Alvarez was driving west on a county road when he apparently lost control of the car.

The death raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 71, or nine ahead of the figure on this date a year ago.

Burning refuse requires permit

Burning refuse without a permit is against the law for Lincoln residents and those living within three miles of the city.

The permits are issued by the Lincoln-Lancaster County Health Department Air Pollution Control Section. The department will not issue permits where other means of disposal are available, but encourages the use of refuse collection services or recycling centers.

Peters rejects Adams County tax assessment

Hastings (AP) — The Adams County tax assessor's office learned Thursday that State Tax Commissioner Bill Peters has refused to approve the county's 1977 property appraisals.

Peters told County Assessor Roscoe Storey in a letter that the "rollback formula" the county was using to arrive at this year's appraisals by adding a formula-derived figure to 1976 appraisals was illegal because the county board was not sitting as a board of equalization when it was approved, Storey said.

Peters also said in the letter that Western Appraisal Co. had failed to send property owners appraisal notices, as required in the company's contract, and the notices sent by the county were improper because they showed assessed rather than actual value of the property.

Storey said Peters offered to return to Adams County to hold another public hearing on the appraisals if the appraisal firm sends out notices showing actual rather than assessed values.

Arts Festival fills 146 booths

Perhaps Sam Davidson can predict the future.

Davidson, executive director of the Lincoln Arts Council, showed his foresight in ordering more booths for the second annual Lincoln Community Arts Festival.

He ordered 146 booths for the festival, which will be held on Centennial Mall April 23 and 24.

On Thursday, which was the deadline for booth applications, Davidson had received an exact total of 146 requests for booths, 133 artists' booths and 13 arts organizations' booths.

Visual artists from 12 states and from 22 Nebraska communities will participate in the festival.

Public libraries to be closed Easter

Lincoln public libraries will be closed during regular Sunday service hours (1:30-5:30 p.m.) on April 10, Easter Sunday.

Boys Town not guilty in employe suit

Omaha (UPI) — The federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has found Boys Town innocent of a discrimination charge filed by a former employe a year ago.

Carl Knight, 26, Omaha, alleged in his February 1976 complaint he was discriminated against because he was black.

Knight first took his case to the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission which sided with Boys Town, and in its ruling, the federal commission said it gave "substantial weight" to the state commission's findings.

Knight said in October 1975 he and other members of the orientation department at Boys Town were notified they would be laid off on Jan. 1, 1976 because of a surplus of employes.

"However, we were encouraged to apply for other positions at Boys Town," Knight said in his complaint, "and told we would be given first consideration for these positions."

Knight said all other members of his department were placed in jobs.

"I, the only black male, have not been placed," Knight said, "and my applications for placement have been met with rejection allegedly because no positions were available or because my applications were lost.

"In the meantime, new employes have been hired to perform duties similar to those I had performed."

Lobbying law forces employe to register

Lincoln-Lancaster County Human Services Coordinator Bob Clark told County Commissioners Jan Gauger and Bob Colin Thursday that state law requires him to register as a lobbyist.

Clark's duties often require him to "pull a senator off the floor" of the Legislature to talk about crucial legislation affecting the county, Clark said.

Technically, no one — even a private citizen — may attempt to influence senators in this way without being listed as a lobbyist. Registration costs $25 for two legislative sessions.

Up to now, only Commissioner Jan Gauger has been registered. When other commissioners or staff were on the floor of the Legislature, they were acting as her agents, Clark said.

Colin said, "As minority leader of the county board, I will demand equal rights," adding that he thought the requirement was "silly."

Mrs. Gauger agreed, however, that Clark has no choice but to comply.

The $25 will come from Clark's operating budget, so no special appropriation of county funds will be needed.

College wins three awards in journalism

Fremont (AP) — Midland Lutheran College has won three awards at the national convention for the Society for College Journalists held in Nashville, Tenn., according to Mrs. Marilyn Peterson, chairperson of Midland's Journalism Department.

Rating first in newspaper photography on a national level was sophomore John Haxby for his work on "The Midland."

Honorable mention in yearbooks for reporting in words and for display or layout was given to the 1976 "Warrior" yearbook at Midland and its editor, senior Kathy Glaser of Columbus.

The 1976 "Warrior" yearbook also has been awarded a first class rating by the Associated Collegiate Press.

Board reinstates Lincoln fireman

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln fireman Charles Baker got his job back Thursday, but only after the City Personnel Board had gone into executive session to sort things out

Board member William Fleischman asked for the executive session during a two-hour hearing on Baker's appeal of his November 1976 termination as a fireman. Fleischman said he had some doubts about the "credibility" of information presented during the hearing

Baker was terminated after his sick leave ran out last October, according to Assistant Fire Chief De Wayne McIntyre. McIntyre said that Baker was fired when he failed to show up for work after being advised that his leave had run out.

McIntyre said the first notice the department received that Baker could return to work was in a conversation with Baker's doctor on Nov. 15. He said the doctor told him Baker could return to work "carefully" until Dec. 1 when he could assume a normal work load.

Baker's attorney, Jim Shada, said that Baker hand-delivered a doctor's release to McIntyre's office on Nov. 4, the day it was signed by the doctor. McIntyre said he couldn't "swear to that," and held that the first written notification of Baker's physical release came from the city attorney's office on Nov. 16

Shada further claimed that Baker filled out a leave of absence request in McIntyre's office. Fleischman asked where the original copy of that leave was, but received no definite answer.

The absence of that document, some question about the exact date of the doctor's release, and a question about the exact time of Baker's meeting with McIntyre all led Fleischman to request the executive session

When the board reconvened, member R. E Hall moved that Baker be reinstated, without back pay, as soon as possible, providing he is physically able. He suggested that the fire department determine how that physical ability was to be decided.

Board Chairman Larry Hart seconded the motion, which passed unanimously. Fleischman said, "I guess I'm voting for a new physical (for Baker) more than anything."

Hospital ownership is unresolved issue

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

Who owns the top three floors of Lincoln General Hospital — the City of Lincoln or the Lincoln Hospital Association, a private corporation charged with the financial support of the hospital?

Although there are varying opinions on the situation, uncertainty became apparent at the association's meeting Thursday night

Records indicate that in the mid-1960s, when the hospital was being built, the association initially planned to pay for the construction of the top three floors, according to the association's legal counsel, Norman Krivosha

At that time, "a special warranty deed," giving title to the three floors to the association, was drawn up by the City Council, he said

However, after the deed was awarded to the association, the group reversed its original decision, opting not to financially back the three-story construction.

Consequently, the entire hospital structure was financed through city-issued revenue bonds and "the City Council passed a resolution to rescind the deed," Krivosha said.

But, "the grantor of the deed cannot take action to rescind the deed," Krivosha contended. "And nobody got the association to convey the deed back" to the city, so "the rescinding of the deed was meaningless" and the association still holds the title to the top three floors.

On a motion by J.D. Schiermeyer, chairman of the association's finance committee, the association board voted to have Krivosha meet with City Attorney Charles Humble to resolve the issue.

During a subsequent meeting of the Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees, members mulled over the idea of open discussions on potential candidates for the board.

Acting Chairman Breta Dow said that since the board does not actually name new board members — that power lies with the city council and the mayor — the board traditionally has discussed potential candidates in closed sessions.

"It seems to me, that this is a rather academic exercise," said board member and City Councilman John Robinson. "I would imagine that each person has been contacted to see if they would serve on the board, so I don't know why we have to go into executive session."

Board member David L. Patrick suggested that the board postpone discussions of board candidates, since "all were assured confidentiality" when their names were brought up for preliminary discussions.

Following a motion from Janet Coleman, the board went into executive session discussing candidate recommendations for five vacancies.

Council candidate eyes city program priorities

City Council candidate Joe Hampton said Thursday that city government has its priorities mixed up in cutting the firefighter force by 10 men and then establishing a carpooling program

Hampton said that although federal funds are being used for the program, which requires a coordinator, secretary and assistant, "We have no way of knowing whether these funds will be available again for another year."

Once the programs are established, they seldom are abondoned and usually become additional burdens on local taxpayers, Hampton said.

Mansion restoration under way

Restoration of the Ferguson mansion, 16th and H, starts at the top as construction workers repair the roof. Completion of the house and property restoration project is expected in 1979. The project is commissioned by the State Historical Society which, along with the Lincoln Junior League, hopes to convert the building into an arts center.

Judge orders reinstatement of candidate pending decision

Sanders McCandless has apparently won the first round of his battle against City Hall

District Judge William Blue ordered Thursday that McCandless be reinstated as a city water meter reader pending the outcome of his suit against city charter provisions.

The 23-year-old part-time student at the University of Nebraska brought the action against the city when he was fired from his job on the grounds that he was a candidate for the City Council The charter specifically prohibits city employes from running for public office.

Blue noted, "The right to run for public office involves two important freedoms, the freedom of individual expression and the freedom of association."

Blue ruled that the city did not meet its burden of proof at a preliminary hearing on McCandless's grievance. City Personnel Director Walt Mitchell said at the hearing that an employe's candidacy might upset city control over disciplining that employe

The judge's decision answered that statement, saying, "I suggest that department heads of the city frequently find themselves in situations where they are subject to even greater pressures which they must resist, and hopefully do"

Blue noted that two federal decisions cited by the city don't apply since they deal with public employes' participation in partisan politics, while McCandless is seeking a nonpartisan office

Until the answer to McCandless question about the constitutionality of the provisions is resolved, Blue said the charger provision should not be enforced against him.

Contacted at a candidate forum sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, McCandless said he had been expecting the ruling, although "you never know what a judge is going to do"

McCandless said he plans to report for work Friday morning He said he is planning to tell any customer who asks him questions on the council race that he is not available for political comment while he is doing his job

Council hopefuls report funds raised

Leo Scherer holds the lead for the most money raised so far in the City Council race, according to campaign finance statements filed Thursday.

Not all 15 candidates met the legal filing deadline for the second reporting period, but they are not subject to criminal penalties until five days after they receive notice that the report is required

The reports submitted so far, in order of amount contributed, show Scherer with $3,714 collected; John Robinson, the former fund leader, $3,442, Dorothy Walker, $2,570, Sue Bailey, $2,188; Joe Hampton, $1,925; William R. Smith, $450, Mrs. Sherri Patzel Purdy and Mrs Ann Murphy, none.

Spending totals show that Scherer is also the spending leader, with a total of $2,451 78 He is followed closely by Walker, who has spent $2,315 Other totals are Bailey, $1,734, Smith, $762 51, Robinson, $632, Hampton, Purdy and Murphy none.

Reports from other candidates presumably will be filed within the next few days. Only John V. King has failed to file any of the required reports. A letter informing him of the requirement was mailed Tuesday.

Board reinstates Lincoln fireman

By J. L. Schmidt
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln fireman Charles Baker got his job back Thursday, but only after the City Personnel Board had gone into executive session to sort things out.

Board member William Fleischman asked for the executive session during a two-hour hearing on Baker's appeal of his November 1976 termination as a fireman. Fleischman said he had some doubts about the "credibility" of information presented during the hearing.

Baker was terminated after his sick leave ran out last October, according to Assistant Fire Chief De Wayne McIntyre. McIntyre said that Baker was fired when he failed to show up for work after being advised that his leave had run out.

McIntyre said the first notice the department received that Baker could return to work was in a conversation with Baker's doctor on Nov. 15. He said the doctor told him Baker could return to work "carefully" until Dec. 1 when he could assume a normal work load.

Baker's attorney, Jim Shada, said that Baker hand-delivered a doctor's release to McIntyre's office on Nov. 4, the day it was signed by the doctor. McIntyre said he couldn't "swear to that," and held that the first written notification of Baker's physical release came from the city attorney's office on Nov. 16.

Shada further claimed that Baker filled out a leave of absence request in McIntyre's office. Fleischman asked where the original copy of that leave was, but received no definite answer.

The absence of that document, some question about the exact date of the doctor's release, and a question about the exact time of Baker's meeting with McIntyre all led Fleischman to request the executive session.

When the board reconvened, member R. E. Hall moved that Baker be reinstated, without back pay, as soon as possible, providing he is physically able. He suggested that the fire department determine how that physical ability was to be decided.

Board Chairman Larry Hart seconded the motion, which passed unanimously. Fleischman said, "I guess I'm voting for a new physical (for Baker) more than anything."

Hospital ownership is unresolved issue

Star Staff Writer

Who owns the top three floors of Lincoln General Hospital — the City of Lincoln or the Lincoln Hospital Association, a private corporation charged with the financial support of the hospital?

Although there are varying opinions on the situation, uncertainty became apparent at the association's meeting Thursday night.

Records indicate that in the mid-1960s, when the hospital was being built, the association initially planned to pay for the construction of the top three floors, according to the association's legal counsel, Norman Krivosha.

At that time, "a special warranty deed," giving title to the three floors to the association, was drawn up by the City Council, he said.

However, after the deed was awarded to the association, the group reversed its original decision, opting not to financially back the three-story construction.

Consequently, the entire hospital structure was financed through city-issued revenue bonds and "the City Council passed a resolution to rescind the deed," Krivosha said.

But, "the grantor of the deed cannot take action to rescind the deed," Krivosha contended. "And nobody got the association to convey the deed back" to the city, so "the rescinding of the deed was meaningless" and the association still holds the title to the top three floors.

On a motion by J.D. Schiermeyer, chairman of the association's finance committee, the association board voted to have Krivosha meet with City Attorney Charles Humble to resolve the issue.

During a subsequent meeting of the Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees, members mulled over the idea of open discussions on potential candidates for the board.

Acting Chairman Breta Dow said that since the board does not actually name new board members — that power lies with the city council and the mayor — the board traditionally has discussed potential candidates in closed sessions.

"It seems to me, that this is a rather academic exercise," said board member and City Councilman John Robinson. "I would imagine that each person has been contacted to see if they would serve on the board, so I don't know why we have to go into executive session."

Board member David L. Patrick suggested that the board postpone discussions of board candidates, since "all were assured confidentiality" when their names were brought up for preliminary discussions.

Following a motion from Janet Coleman, the board went into executive session discussing candidate recommendations for five vacancies.

Council candidate eyes city program priorities

City Council candidate Joe Hampton said Thursday that city government has its priorities mixed up in cutting the firefighter force by 10 men and then establishing a carpooling program.

Hampton said that although federal funds are being used for the program, which requires a coordinator, secretary and assistant, "We have no way of knowing whether these funds will be available again for another year."

Once the programs are established, they seldom are abondoned and usually become additional burdens on local taxpayers, Hampton said.

Aquatics is her first love

By Gracia McAndrew
Star Staff Writer

Give Phyllis Todd a pool full of water and a few swimming students and she is one happy lady.

In fact, without the two, Mrs. Todd has discovered, her life is less than complete.

"I guess aquatics is my first love," she explained. "It's fun. It's super."

For the mother of five children, swimming is a natural part of life. She began helping with swimming lessons when she was 14, and for many years she was aquatics director for the local YMCA.

"After I left the 'Y,' I realized I still loved swimming," she said.

So, on the advice of her friends and children, she added an enclosed swimming pool, 18 by 36 feet and eight feet at the deep end, to the back of her house.

Now as a part-time job, she gives weekly swimming lessons to approximately 160 preschoolers, children, adults and handicapped persons.

"I spend quite a bit of time in the water," she said, inspecting her hands. "I'm really clean."

The pool was completed last June. "I had the classes ready to start the day after I had water in the pool," she said, grinning and biting her lower lip as though urprised at her own anxiousness.

Mrs. Todd's affinity for water and teaching swimming is deeply ingrained. A native of Chicago, she attended George Williams College, a YMCA school from which she received a degree in physical education. At the college she also met her late husband, Oliver Todd, who was director of the now-defunct Southeast YMCA until his death in a car accident nine years ago.

"I believe in the YMCA," she said repeatedly. "I teach YMCA swimming skills."

Mrs. Todd said she enjoys teaching swimming because "I like to see people accomplish something they thought was impossible. It is a lifesaving skill that you teach. Your students' lives may depend on the skills you teach."

And, no matter what the age of the students, "If they are willing to try, they can learn to swim," she said confidently.

"You have to teach each person individually, even in a group situation," she explained. "You have to let people progress at their own rate."

Even adults who have lost all hope of ever learning to swim are not outside the reach of an understanding teacher, according to Mrs. Todd.

"Adults are a lot of fun to teach," she said. "They really get excited when they learn to swim.

"If you can gain their confidence, so they know that you're not going to let anything happen to them, you get a big barrier out of the way.

"Once some adults gain a little confidence they can move faster (than children) in the first few lessons because they have the strength," she said.

Currently, Mrs. Todd says she has the names of more people than she can handle in her classes.

"People call and say, 'I know your classes are full, but I'd like you to put my name on your list,' " she said.

But come this summer Mrs. Todd may have some help from her two youngest children — Debby, 13, a student at Millard Lefler Junior High, and Dianna, 15, a sophomore at Lincoln High School.

Black Americans' homes picked as landmarks

Washington (UPI) — The homes of Scott Joplin, Duke Ellington and W.E.B. DuBois are among 33 sites associated with black Americans to be designated as national historic landmarks, it was announced.

Also included was the apartment where Jackie Robinson lived in Brooklyn when he broke major league baseball's color barrier.

Their selection concludes a three-year study of sites and structures that possess national significance because of their part in black American history, Undesecretary of Interior James Joseph said.

The newly dsignated landmarks are located in 10 states and the District of Columbia, and they recognize black Americans who have been prominent in such fields as art, music, sports, law, literature, religion and architecture, he said.

They include a St. Louis apartment formerly occupied by Joplin, who helped make ragtime a unique part of American music; the St. Nicholas Avenue residence in New York City where jazz musician Ellington lived between 1939 and 1961, and the Great Barrington, Mass., boyhood homesite of DuBois, the Afro-American scholar and author who helped found the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Twenty-eight other sites associated with black Americans were approved in 1974 and 1975 on the basis of a study commissioned by the National Park Service, a spokesman said.

The designation is an honorary recognition by the secretary of interior of sites and buildings "deemed to possess exceptional value in U.S. history."

Aquatics is her first love

Give Phyllis Todd a pool full of water and a few swimming students and she is one happy lady.

In fact, without the two, Mrs. Todd has discovered, her life is less than complete.

Before re-entry, nurses may take refresher course

By H. L. Hoffmaster
Star Staff Writer

Re-entry is a space age term for astronauts and, now, thanks to Southeast Community College, for nurses.

Fifteen registered nurses are trying to revive their careers in a refresher course designed basically for women and men who have been out of the profession for several years.

The course got its impetus from a 1976 Unicameral bill which said that all nurses who have not worked for five years must re-educate themselves in new techniques and be reminded of old practices.

While the legislation doesn't take effect until 1980, many certified nurses who have been out of nursing only a short time are taking the course.

With the help of nurses from all Lincoln hospitals and some extended care facilities, project director Carol Eggland put together the 11-week SCC course which costs $100.

She said the average age of the students for the first two go-arounds has been in the mid-40s.

The oldest in the present class is Mrs. Pearl Sletten, 65, who, ironically, is going to work for Madonna Professional Care Center when she finishes her re-entry work. Madonna is a facility for the elderly.

Mrs. Sletten got her nursing degree in 1934 at Sprague Hospital in Huron, S D., and did her last full-time nursing two and a half years ago at Oklahoma City University Hospital.

She isn't the only member of her family who hasn't given up a career because of age. Her husband, Dr. Owen Sletten, retired from the State Health Department, has gone back to school at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to study educational psychology He has his doctorate in civil ingineering, but his wife says he has so many degrees it's hard to keep track of them.

The youngest student in the re-entry into nursing course is Coleen Focht, 29. She is married, has one child, and her husband is a mail carrier. She did her last nursing four and a half years ago at Lincoln General Hospital and received her nursing degree from St. Elizabeth Health Center in 1970.

Neither Mrs. Focht nor Mrs. Sletten said they are returning to nursing because of economics. Mrs. Focht said she misses helping others. Mrs Sletten was looking for the opportunity to gain more experience under "terrific instructors."

Unfortunately, there is a glut of nurses in Linoln, Mrs Eggland said The best job market is in Nebraska's smaller cities and towns. Few of the 17 nurses from the first class who graduated late last year have found work, she said.

The future of the course looks secure, she said, since she expects the requirement for continued education to spread to nurses who have kept working.

How would you bid these hands?

By B. Jay Becker

Bridge

You are South, vulnerable against non-vulnerable opponents. East deals and bids Three Hearts. What would you bid with each of the following four hands?

1.♠KQ873 ♥A54 ♦Q6 ♣Q82
2.♠AQ92 ♥85 ♦KJ93 ♣AKJ
3.♠AK ♥QJ942 ♦832 ♣A94
4.♠Q4 ♥K3 ♦AKQ985 ♣AJ6

1. Pass. It might be best to agree first on the meaning of the many calls you can make over a preemptive three bid. Let's assume that East is making a nuisance bid with some holding such as seven hearts to the K-Q-10 and very little else on the side (which is the way most people play). His purpose is to make bidding difficult for you and your partner.

If you overcall in a new suit, that's where you're willing to play the hand. If you bid three notrump, you want to play it there. And if you double, it's for takeout and you expect partner to bid — though he may pass whenever he thinks that three hearts doubled is the best spot.

With this hand you should pass. You simply don't have the values for three spades or any other bid, and should not stick your neck out just to show how fearless you are.

2. Double. You can't afford to pass with this 18-point hand, and the best way to show your values is by a double. However, you must be careful of what you do next when partner responds in minimum terms, as he may have a very poor hand.

3. Pass. Of course, there's a great temptation to double, but because partner would read this as a request for him to bid — which is exactly what you don't want him to do — it is more prudent to pass. The best strategy, by far, is to pass and hope partner will double for takeout after the next player passes. If this happens — it's a lovely dream — you would of course pass.

It can be argued that the popular method of treating the double as takeout fails when you hold this type of hand. This is true enough, but you have to play the double one way or the other, and you must expect whichever method of bidding you adopt to fail occasionally. You can't have your cake and eat it too.

4. Three notrump. With eight probable tricks after the expected heart lead, it is certainly reasonable to hope that partner will provide that little bit extra you need to make up the deficit. You don't double for takeout because you don't want partner to bid, and you don't bid four diamonds because that would take you past three notrump.

Women enjoy go-go dancers

San Francisco (AP) — There weren't many raucous yells or lewd shouts when the two topless dancers gyrated on the stage at the crowded non-commissioned officers' club at the Presidio of San Francisco.

Instead, the performance by the perspiring, bikini-clad duo attracted lots of squeals and giggles.

On stage were Terry Jaume and Robbie Para, both males, who performed for $10 an hour, plus tips, before about 50 women.

"This is a first for the West Coast," said Sgt. 1st Class Leo Meneghetti, manager of the NCO club at the Army post He said the club regularly featured female go-go dancers.

How long should you stay in market?

It's Your Money

By
Quinn

New York — A number of readers have written to say that it's all very well to think that mutual funds are the best way for small investors to participate in the stock market. But since they're just now getting even on the fund they bought in the 1960s, why should they hold it any longer? And if they do stay in the market, how do they find funds that will do the best job?

Fair questions. Here is my best shot at answers.

Mutual funds are a reflection of the stock market in general, and it's not unknown for stocks to go nowhere over 10 years. Starting in the Depression, there was even a 15-year period (1935-1950) when the market was mainly flat-to-down. But 20 and 25-year periods are another story.

Yale Hirsch, publisher of the stock market letter, Smart Money, has studied all 25-year periods in the stock market, starting with 1928-1954 (continuing to 1929-1955, 1930-1956, etc), and compared them with returns from savings accounts over the same time. In every instance, the long-term investor did better than the long-term saver, usually by tremendous margins. Furthermore, the stock market usually kept ahead of inflation, while savings accounts rarely did.

Maybe all this has changed.

Maybe the long-term growth of American industry is over. But I doubt it. It still seems to me that stocks in good companies, or a reputable mutual fund, are the investment of choice for young people building their future and for middle-aged people looking toward retirement.

On the second point — how to choose a mutual fund: Reporter Linda Rubey interviewed a number of people in the fund business for this column. They made the following suggestions:

(1) Buy a no-load fund, which means a fund that doesn't charge sales commissions. "Load" fund — those usually sold by stockbrokers — take an 8.5% commission off the top to cover sales expenses, which means you have to gain 8 5% just to break even.

Brokers often argue that it's not the sales commission but the performance that counts. On that I agree. Another study by Yale Hirsch, covering the bull-market years of 1950-1970, showed that no-load funds went up an average of 11.5% a year, while load funds did only 10%.

(2) Reflect on your investment objectives. Do you want your money to throw off an annual income? If so, get an income fund that buys stock for high dividends and keeps a good portfolio of bonds Are you after long-term capital growth? Look for growth funds, which buy promising stocks even though their dividens may be low. There are also funds that shoot for both income and growth.

But what's in a name? Depending on the market, "income" funds may show more growth than "growth" funds. The experts advise that you divide your money among two or three funds with different objectives, to hedge your bets.

(3) Choose a well-established, medium-sized fund. A fund with assets in the billion-dollar range often has trouble adapting to rapidly changing market conditions. On the other hand, funds smaller than $50 million may lack the money to pay for good management and research. (An exception is the small fund that belongs to a large fund group.) Small, agressive growth funds that really fly in good markets are better for short-term investors than people in the market for the long haul.

(4) Check the annual Aug 15 issue of Forbes magazine, which rates how the funds perform in good markets and bad. You should be able to find a copy of last year's report in your local library.

(5) Compare the funds' short and long-term track records, as they appear in the prospectus. Give weight to a fund that doesn't fall as far as the general averages during declines. That shows the management pays more attention than others trying to preserve an investor's capital in difficult times.

Profs suggest erecting bubble over Acropolis

Athens (AP) — Five Swiss professors and architects have presented Greek authorities a plan to cover the 2,500-year-old Acropolis monuments with a $40 million glass bubble designed to save them from pollution decay

The team of experts was invited here by a local group after revealing the plan in Geneva

The Swiss met with the minister of culture and science, Constantine Tirpanis, the head of the committee for the Acropolis rescue, and the director of the Acropolis antiquities. They also expect to meet with Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

George Plytas, former Athens mayor who heads the movement for the adoption of the glass bubble project, said the Greek officials "have accepted the idea, but object to the cost They also want to see more before being convinced of its technical feasibility "

The plan is offered as a superior and more permanent alternative to a current $15 million project foreseeing the removal of certain antiquities for protection in museums Removals have already began.

The projected glass dome is anti-glaze and anti-smear with internal air conditioning to clear the atmosphere of pollutants and preserve constant mild temperatures It would cover the entire surface of the Acropolis.

Furthermore, the stock market usually kept ahead of inflation, while savings accounts rarely did.

Maybe all this has changed.

Maybe the long-term growth of American industry is over. But I doubt it. It still seems to me that stocks in good companies, or a reputable mutual fund, are the investment of choice for young people building their future and for middle-aged people looking toward retirement.

On the second point — how to choose a mutual fund: Reporter Linda Rubey interviewed a number of people in the fund business for this column. They made the following suggestions:

(1) Buy a no-load fund, which means a fund that doesn't charge sales commissions. "Load" fund — those usually sold by stockbrokers — take an 8.5% commission off the top to cover sales expenses, which means you have to gain 8.5% just to break even.

Brokers often argue that it's not the sales commission but the performance that counts. On that I agree. Another study by Yale Hirsch, covering the bull-market years of 1950-1970, showed that no-load funds went up an average of 11.5% a year, while load funds did only 10%.

(2) Reflect on your investment objectives. Do you want your money to throw off an annual income? If so, get an income fund that buys stock for high dividends and keeps a good portfolio of bonds. Are you after long-term capital growth? Look for growth funds, which buy promising stocks even though their dividens may be low. There are also funds that shoot for both income and growth.

But what's in a name? Depending on the market, "income" funds may show more growth than "growth" funds. The experts advise that you divide your money among two or three funds with different objectives, to hedge your bets.

(3) Choose a well-established, medium-sized fund. A fund with assets in the billion-dollar range often has trouble adapting to rapidly changing market conditions. On the other hand, funds smaller than $50 million may lack the money to pay for good management and research. (An exception is the small fund that belongs to a large fund group.) Small, agressive growth funds that really fly in good markets are better for short-term investors than people in the market for the long haul.

(4) Check the annual Aug. 15 issue of Forbes magazine, which rates how the funds perform in good markets and bad. You should be able to find a copy of last year's report in your local library.

(5) Compare the funds' short and long-term track records, as they appear in the prospectus. Give weight to a fund that doesn't fall as far as the general averages during declines. That shows the management pays more attention than others trying to preserve an investor's capital in difficult times.

Profs suggest erecting bubble over Acropolis

Athens (AP) — Five Swiss professors and architects have presented Greek authorities a plan to cover the 2,500-year-old Acropolis monuments with a $40 million glass bubble designed to save them from pollution decay.

The team of experts was invited here by a local group after revealing the plan in Geneva.

The Swiss met with the minister of culture and science, Constantine Tirpanis, the head of the committee for the Acropolis rescue, and the director of the Acropolis antiquities. They also expect to meet with Premier Constantine Caramanlis.

George Plytas, former Athens mayor who heads the movement for the adoption of the glass bubble project, said the Greek officials "have accepted the idea, but object to the cost. They also want to see more before being convinced of its technical feasibility."

The plan is offered as a superior and more permanent alternative to a current $15 million project foreseeing the removal of certain antiquities for protection in museums. Removals have already began.

The projected glass dome is anti-glaze and anti-smear with internal air conditioning to clear the atmosphere of pollutants and preserve constant mild temperatures. It would cover the entire surface of the Acropolis.

Joan Mondale is 'free agent'

Washington (AP) — Joan Mondale is unpretentious. She answers her own doorbell and still buys her food in a cooperative with neighborhood friends. But she's also aware that as wife of the vice president, she's in a position to make her voice heard.

"I'm a free agnet," said Mrs. Mondale, who hopes to be "a spokesperson for the arts" and "a champion of individual artists — the craftperson, the performer, the ballet dancer."

She added, "I feel that I can be a person who brings people together who have similar problems."

Mrs. Mondale was interviewed in the Admiral's House, the vice president's official residence, where loud stereo music was playing while her 17-year-old daughter, Eleanor, sunbathed on a porch.

Mrs. Mondale has filled the Victorian mansion with 52 pieces of art borrowed from museums, including an Andy Warhol "Soup Can."

Mrs. Mondale, 46, lived nearby for a dozen years while her husband served as a senator from Minnesota. She now spends about half her time on official duties, "which is quadruple what I did before. I had regular life like anyone else," she recalled

"I've always gone to museums and I've always been interested in the arts, but I haven't had the attention paid to me that I have now," she said. "The disadvantages are that I have little empty time . . . . Our lives are much more organized, much more scheduled, must more formal. There is much less opportunity for spontaneity."

Mrs. Mondale said her husband comes home most nights for dinner with her and their three teenagers. Dinnertable conversations usually center around motorcycles, horses and lacrosse, Mrs. Mondale said.

The 19-year-old son, Teddy, works in a motorcycle shop; Eleanor owns two horses that she keeps in suburban Maryland, and 15-year-old William plays lacrosse.

Some aspects of her life have not changed, Mrs. Mondale said. She still takes a pottery lesson once a week, plays teenis regularly and buys her fruits, vegetables and eggs through the neighborhood coop.

Asked why the Mondales send their children to private schools when President Carter has made a point of sending his 9-year-old daugher to public school, Mrs. Mondale explained that their older son was not much of a student, and they thought he would benefit from private school.

"We felt he needed a special touch so we put him in Georgetown Day School," she said. "They caught him up and he graduated . . . . With the others, we just followed suit."

She said she feels marijuana should be decriminalized, but doesn't want her children to smoke it.

"I don't like it if they smoke cigarettes; I don't like it if they drink beer, and I wouldn't like it if they smoked marijuana," she said. "I just don't like a lot of those things. But they most likely do or will or have done all of that . . . . We've asked them not to smoke marijuana, but that doesn't mean they haven't. I can't be that puritanical and check their every act."

ERA now at standstill

(c) New York Times

New York — Five years after it was passed by Congress and three months into a year that its advocates had hoped would see final ratification, the equal rights amendment appears to be suffering from a case of arrested growth.

Now three votes short of the ratification by 38 states that is necessary to put it into effect, the proposed 27th amendment to the Constitution, which would ban discrimination on the basis of sex, has been ratified by only one state since March 1975.

Although last Jan. 18 saw Indiana become the 35th state to ratify, three of the states that previously approved it — Idaho, Nebraska and Tennessee — have voted to rescine. That is an action of debatable validity, but one that is indicative of the tide of resistance and reconsideration that has followed an early rush — in which 30 states voted in favor of the amendment — the first year after Congress approved it

If the amendment is to take effect, ratification must be achieved by March 22, 1979.

Advocates of the amendment, whose substance consists of the words, "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex," had been hopeful of achieving ratification in 1977.

Legislative sessions were scheduled this year in all 15 states where the amendment had not previously been ratified and proponents were hopeful of passage in several. But after Indiana voted to ratify on Jan 18, Idaho voted to rescind; Nevada's Assembly voted the amendment down; it was tabled in the Georgia's Senate, despite an effort to pass it to honor Rosalynn Carter, the President's wife, it died in a Senate committee vote in Mississippi; it was defeated in the Senate in North Carolina, where supporters had been optimistic; the Virginia Senate rejected it, and other defeats were encountered in Oklahoma, Missouri and in Illinois, where proponents had been optimistic.

Some states may not consider it at all this year, but the next major battleground will be Florida.

There, the legislature meets April 5, and the proponents are looking for a narrow victory in the Senate.

Despite the preponderance of setbacks this year, Sheila Greenwald, executive director of ERA America, a coalition of more than 120 groups supporting ratification, remains optimistic not only about the outcome in Florida, but also about the ultimate fate of the amendment. But she does not foresee ratification in 1977.

"I think we'll probably have to go down to '79," she said, "but it will go."

Phyllis Schlafly, author of the monthly newsletter called The Phyllis Schlafly Report and a prime mover behind the Stop ERA campaign, says flatly, "I don't think it's going to be ratified "

"I think momentum against the amendment is growing all the time," she said.

Miss Greenwald attirbutes the present state of the amendment to a combination of factors These involve some normally conservative rural Southern and Western states, where, she said, tough going for the ratification could have been expected.

Cowboy excuse fails

Oklahoma City (UPI) — Oklahoma Thursday sought $1,774 in pay differential for a woman who said she was denied a public relations job at the National Cowboy Hall of Fame on grounds she wouldn't be able to relate to old men who cuss and chew and put their boots on her desk.

The Oklahoma Human Rights Commission ruled March 15 that Emma Jean Hollingsworth was not hired because she was a woman. The commission said she was entitled to the $1,774 as the difference between her earnings and that paid to a man who was hired as public relations director.

The attorney general filed the District Court suit asking the court to enforce the rights commission ruling.

The rights commission said Miss Hollingsworth was informed the public relations director was required "to deal with a lot of old men and they are not well mannered; they chew, they cuss, they put their feet up on your desk and, quite frankly, they have a difficult time relating with women "

"I was not considered because I am a woman," she said. "I was advised that they had raised the salary to attract a man."

Gourmet guide downgrades 4 London restaurants

Postcard

By Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — A famous gourmet guide to London — the Social Register of the restaurants — has just downgraded four of the most distinguished ones:

Down went Rule's. For many years it was my favorite. One thing that made Rule's — (it dates back to the 1700s) — was its regiment of antique English waiters.

"The jugged 'are is very good this evening, sir."

Gradually they retired. Young Englishmen don't go in the waiter business. "Not the lesiurely life it was in the olds days," said the last of the old guard. He'd been raised to head waiter by then.

"Not like it was when we knew the clients and they knew us."

London restaurants are manned these days by imported Italians. Italian waiters are made for serving pasta. They just don't go with jugged hare.

London friend writes me: "They also tore a strip off Simpson's-in-the-Strand. (Where they rolled the roast beef to your table. And you tipped the carver a lordly sixpence.)

"Also cut down the Savoy Grill." (Always known as the best and most elegant in England.)

"And Lockets."

Lockets, so old and established that it had a line in a play written in 1696:

Fop. "Why then, Ladies, I go to Dinner at Lockets, and there you are so nicely and delicately served that, stap my vitals, they can compose you a Dish, no bigger than a Saucer, shall come to Fifty Shillings."

I looked up the clips. Find I last had dinner at Lockets — (stap my vitals!) — nine years ago.

It's the talk of the town, he said. Stone's Chop House escaped the chop. And the Capital Hotel's French restuarant was raised to the honors list.

The guillotine job was something as if Michelin's Guide pulled one star off four three-star restaurants of Paris.

Maybe not that bad. The English aren't as shook up by restaurant ratings. A couple of years ago, a simple one-star French restaurant lost that single star.

The owner went out and shot himself.

Sorry about Rule's. It's a wonderful old place. Just up the narrow street from the Savoy. There's a three-table tiny bar in front. The walls are cluttered with ancient prints.

In the corner, a cast-iron Cupid is drawing an arrow bead on the door where the waiters come out. There's a fine smell of pheasant pie. Red wine and roasting chops.

I wrote about Rule's whenever I went to London. Mentioned its "chandeliered elegance." (I must have liked the phrase.)

Until one time the owner said to me: "Do you notice anything different?" He said: "We fianlly put in chandeliers. You see, we didn't have chandeliers. But you wrote about them so bloody often, I had to put some up."

(The eye witness is usually wrong as any cop can tell you It felt like it had chandeliers.)

Maybe wrong about the cast-iron Cupid. Probably turn out it's Mercury. And he's got a machine gun instead of a bow-and-arrow.

A few weeks ago, I put Queen Boadicea's statue at Hyde Park Corner. And you'd be surprised how many people took time to write me it's at Westminster Bridge. And why don't I get my facts right, for heaven's sake?

Gateway Shopping Center

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Is it possible to find out a person's name and address if you have his automobile license number? Or will you have to answer a lot of questions first?

You see, I was kind of wandering around a shopping center during my lunch break, when a beautiful older man caught my eye. He went into a jewelry store and I followed him. I was drawn to him like a magnet. He was shopping for an anniversary gift for his wife, and I offered to help him select something. We kidded around and he said he had a daughter in college about my age.

Abby, you're going to think I'm crazy, but I have never met a man who attracted me the way this one did. I can't get him out of my mind. I don't even know his name, but I walked him to his car and took down his license number. I've just got to see him again! I'm 22 and believe me, this was love at first sight. I even dream about him.

Can you help me?

IN A DAZE IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR IN: It's possible to find out a person's name if you have his license number in Minnesota, but you will have to answer a lot of questions first, so I don't recommend trying. The magnetism you experienced is "physical attraction," and it happens every day. For your sake (and his) forget him, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's ex-wife and children live in another city. When he visits them, he sleeps at his ex-wife's house, in a separate bedroom. His ex is unmarried, and although he insists that their relationship is now platonic, I feel insecure and uncomfortable.

When I met my husband he was already divorced and insisted he wanted nothing more to do with his ex-wife. Now when he visits her he goes on picnics with her and the children, and takes them to dinner, just like old times.

I know my husband loves me, but this situation bugs me. He has asked me to accompany him on those trips and try to be friends with his ex-wife. I refuse to go. Am I being unreasonable?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Yes. Perhaps if you went, you'd no longer feel insecure and uncomfortable. It's worth a try.

We kidded around and he said he had a daughter in college about my age.

Abby, you're going to think I'm crazy, but I have never met a man who attracted me the way this one did. I can't get him out of my mind. I don't even know his name, but I walked him to his car and took down his license number. I've just got to see him again! I'm 22 and believe me, this was love at first sight. I even dream about him.

Can you help me?

IN A DAZE IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR IN: It's possible to find out a person's name if you have his license number in Minnesota, but you will have to answer a lot of questions first, so I don't recommend trying. The magnetism you experienced is "physical attraction," and it happens every day. For your sake (and his) forget him, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My husband's ex-wife and children live in another city. When he visits them, he sleeps at his ex-wife's house, in a separate bedroom. His ex is unmarried, and although he insists that their relationship is now platonic, I feel insecure and uncomfortable.

When I met my husband he was already divorced and insisted he wanted nothing more to do with his ex-wife. Now when he visits her he goes on picnics with her and the children, and takes them to dinner, just like old times.

I know my husband loves me, but this situation bugs me. He has asked me to accompany him on those trips and try to be friends with his ex-wife. I refuse to go. Am I being unreasonable?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Yes. Perhaps if you went, you'd no longer feel insecure and uncomfortable. It's worth a try.

ORDINANCE NO. 11928

An ordinance accepting and approving the replat designated as HOPPE REPLAT OF BRIARHURST WEST as an addition to the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, filed in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, upon certain conditions herein specified and providing for sureties conditioned upon the strict compliance with such conditions.

WHEREAS, BRIAR WEST, INC., a Nebraska corporation, owner of a tract of land legally described as: a replat of Lot 1, Block 3, Briarhurst West 2nd Addition and Outlot A, Briarhurst West 3rd Addition located in the Southeast Quarter of Section 7, Township 9 North, Range 7 East of the 6th Principal Meridian, Lincoln, Lancaster County, Nebraska has filed said replat in the office of the Planning Department of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, with a request for approval and acceptance thereof, in the manner and form as by ordinance required; and

WHEREAS, it is for the convenience of the inhabitants of said City and for the public that said replat be approved and accepted as filed.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED by the City Council of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska:

Section 1. That the plat of HOPPE REPLAT OF BRIARHURST WEST, as an addition to the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, filed in the office of the Planning Department of said City by BRIAR WEST, INC., a Nebraska corporation, as owner, is hereby accepted and approved, and said owner is hereby given the right to plat said HOPPE REPLAT OF BRIARHURST WEST as an addition to said City in accordance therewith. Such acceptance and approval are conditioned upon the following:

First: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the construction of sidewalks to be constructed along the north side of Old Cheney Road and the west side of South 40th Street adjacent to this subdivision. The construction of said sidewalks shall be completed not later than March 1, 1981.

Second: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, engineering, and inspection costs in connection with the construction of a low flow lining in the drainage-way in Outlot A. Said low flow lining shall be constructed in conformance with the official Design Standard for Storm Sewers of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, as adopted by Resolution No. A-63122 on September 20, 1976. Construction of said low flow lining shall be completed not later than March 1, 1979.

Third: That said owner shall at its own cost and expense pay for all labor, material, and related costs in connection with the installation of a landscape planting screen along Outlot A, said installation to be completed within two planting seasons following the issuance of occupancy permits to 60 percent of the number of lots in Briarhurst West 3rd Addition abutting Outlot A.

Fourth: That prior to the passage of this ordinance, said owner shall enter into a written agreement with City which shall provide as follows:

(a) That said owner shall agree to have this proposed subdivision included within an assessment district, only at the City's option, or furnish a bond or escrow or security agreement to guarantee construction of the public sanitary sewers and manholes to serve Lot 1. Said sanitary sewers shall be constructed in conformance with the official Design Standard for Sanitary Sewers of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska, as adopted by Resolution No. A-63122 on September 20, 1976.

Section 2. That said owner shall, prior to final passage of this ordinance, execute and deliver to the City of Lincoln:

(A) A bond in the sum of $9,000 conditioned upon the strict compliance by said owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "first" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

(b) A bond in the amount of $3,000 conditioned upon the strict compliance by said owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "second" of the next preceding section of this ordinance;

(c) A bond in the amount of $4,900 conditioned upon the strict compliance by said owner with the conditions contained in paragraph designated "third" of the next preceding section of this ordinance.

The bonds required above shall be subject to approval by the City Attorney. In the event said owner or its surety shall fail to satisfy the conditions herein set forth within the time specified in this ordinance, the City Council may order the required work to be performed by the City and recover the cost thereof from said owner and its surety. Such work shall be performed in the manner set forth in Title 26 of the Lincoln Municipal Code known as the Land Subdivision Ordinance as now existing or as may hereafter be amended.

Section 3. Immediately upon the taking effect of this ordinance, the City shall cause the final plat and a certified copy of this ordinance together with the written agreement required herein to be filed in the office of the Register of Deeds of Lancaster County, Nebraska. Filing fees shall be paid by said owner.

Section 4. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and publication according to law.

Chinese order soybeans from U.S.

Washington (UPI) — The Agriculture Department announced Thursday that China has ordered 390,000 metric tons of soybeans valued at about $122 million from American traders.

Agricutlure Secretary Bob Bergland told reporters that the sale — the first soybean deal between the two countries since 1974 — won't trigger any export embargo.

The department said the Chinese order included 200,000 tons, or about 7.3 million bushels, for delivery through Sept. 30. The remaining 190,000 tons is to be delivered in the 1977-78 marketing year beginning Oct. 1.

Officials stressed that the sales were made on an "optional origin" basis. This means the unidentified export firms can fill the order from American stocks, which are currently tight and dwindling toward a bare "pipeline" level, but they can also fill all or part of the order from this year's record Brazilian crop.

Earlier, Bergland had refused to rule out the possibility of an export embargo if a "new" customer tried to raise the dwindling U.S. supply, denying needed supplies for domestic users and "old" foreign customers like Japan.

But Bergland said the possibility that the soybeans just sold to China may come from the United States "is no cause for alarm . . . we're not panicking" and will not produce an embargo on exports.

The 200,000 tons scheduled for delivery in the current season, he noted, compares with a predicted Sept. 30 carryover reserve stock of 1.8 million metric tons. Total American soybean exports for the current season are currently estimated at 14.3 to 15.4 million metric tons.

"If we got word they were looking for 5 million tons, we'd have to start looking more carefully. But there is no evidence that this is taking place, Bergland added."

Soybean growers and foreign buyers of the crop, including Japan, have been concerned about threats of export embargoes because of their memories of 1973 when the Nixon administration temporarily cut off soybean exports when bean prices rose to record levels.

Bergland said U.S. officials have no way of knowing whether further Chinese orders will be placed, but he said there is no current evidence that China plans continuing purchases.

Soybean prices currently are high — $7.84 a bushel in mid-March compared with $4.46 a year ago — because the 1976 crop was not big enough to meet strong domestic and foreign demand for the bean which yields a high protein meal for feeding livestock in addition to food oil.

The U.S. carryover reserve which stood at 6.7 million metric tons last Oct. 1 is expected to dwindle to about 1.8 million tons by Sept. 30. As a result, farmers have increased plantings for this year's crop.

Bergland said he had no way to tell whether the Chinese purchases would come from the United States or Brazil. One official pointed out, however, that between now and Sept. 30 Brazil will be moving a record crop at a time when American supplies are tight and presumably would be in position to fill part or all of the initial 200,000 ton order.

After Oct. 1, a bigger 1977 American soybean harvest may be on hand when the second 190,000-ton phase of the Chinese order is ready to move.

China, a major producer of soybeans which it uses largely for human food, made heavy purchases of American beans in 1973 and 1974 but had bought none from the United States since then.

INDEPENDENCE DAY
Directed by Bobby Roth

"INDEPENDENCE DAY is the true story of a young black couple who came to Los Angeles from the South seeking a new life. The film depicts their struggle for self-determination in the working class community; a struggle against unemployment and poverty; a struggle for better education, better housing, and better relations with each other. INDEPENDENCE DAY is a chronicle of the difficulties that often befall black people trying to better their lives, both individually and collectively."

Questions only get wink from Trudeau

Ottawa (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau only winked Thursday when asked about a report that he and his wife Margaret were separating after six years of marriage.

The 28-year-old Margaret turned up missing again, and Canadian newspaper reports that she was in New York could not be confirmed.

Toronto's CFTO television station said in a midnight bulletin, "The prime minister and Margaret have decided to end their marriage."

Trudeau's office discounted the reports and refused to comment on Mrs. Trudeau's whereabouts.

The 57-year-old prime minister, leaving the annual National Prayer Breakfast on Parliament Hill, ignored questions from newsmen about the reports. Pressed to respond, Trudeau winked at a woman reporter and walked away.

"We don't comment on this sort of thing," Jean Charpentier, the prime minister's press secretary, said. "But if the Trudeaus were going to separate, we would be informed."

"If she's gone on a private trip I don't know where she is — never have," said Marie-Helene Fox, Margaret's personal secretary.

"If she's out of the country she's on private business and I have no comment." That's none of my business," Miss Fox said.

Margaret shook even broad-minded Candians four weeks ago when, on her sixth wedding anniversary, she flew alone to Toronto to attend nightclub appearances by the Rolling Stones rock group.

She stayed and partied at the same hotel as the British group, traveled in their limousine to and from the club and snapped photographs of the fans and musicians during the concerts.

The same week she flew to New York, where Stones leader Mick Jagger and Ron Wood were visiting.

Faye Dunaway's looks 'don't really need makeup'

New York (UPI) — Academy Award-winning actress Faye Dunaway's prominent cheekbones have a lot to do with her "natural beauty," a noted cosmetician said Thursday.

"With cheekbones like Faye's a woman does not really need to wear much makeup, and I was not one bit surprised to learn that Faye, indeed, uses none," makeup expert Mark Traynor said of the Best Actress of 1976.

That's not particularly good for his business, but Traynor, who created makeup for Sophia Loren and Marilyn Monroe, says with relief, "not all women have Faye Dunaways's natural looks.

"She is the epitome of 'fresh,' 'natural,' and all the other adjectives strictly reserved for that charmed handful of women whose beauty is genuinely real."

Summer theater program announced

Sarasota, Fla. (UPI) — The Asolo State Theater summer repretory program includes Anouilh's "Waltz of the Toreadors" (April 1 — July 9), O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms" (April 8 — July 19), "My Love to Your Wife," a musical version of Wycherly's "The Country Wife" (May 6 — Sept. 4); Rostand's "Cyrano De Bergerac" (June 3 — Sept. 3) and Eduardo De Filippo's "Saturday, Sunday, Monday" (July 1 — Sept. 2).

Questions only get wink from Trudeau

Ottawa (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau only winked Thursday when asked about a report that he and his wife Margaret were separating after six years of marriage

The 28-year-old Margaret turned up missing again, and Canadian newspaper reports that she was in New York could not be confirmed.

Toronto's CFTO television station said in a midnight bulletin, "The prime minister and Margaret have decided to end their marriage "

Trudeau's office discounted the reports and refused to comment on Mrs Trudeau's whereabouts

The 57-year-old prime minister, leaving the annual National Prayer Breakfast on Parliament Hill, ignored questions from newsmen about the reports. Pressed to respond, Trudeau winked at a woman reporter and walked away.

"We don't comment on this sort of thing," Jean Charpentier, the prime minister's press secretary, said. "But if the Trudeaus were going to separate, we would be informed."

"If she's gone on a private trip I don't know where she is — never have," said Marie-Helene Fox, Margaret's personal secretary

"If she's out of the country she's on private business and I have no comment." That's none of my business," Miss Fox said

Margaret shook even broad-minded Candians four weeks ago when, on her sixth wedding anniversary, she flew alone to Toronto to attend nightclub appearances by the Rolling Stones rock group.

She stayed and partied at the same hotel as the British group, traveled in their limousine to and from the club and snapped photographs of the fans and musicians during the concerts

The same week she flew to New York, where Stones leader Mick Jagger and Ron Wood were visiting

Faye Dunaway's looks 'don't really need makeup'

New York (UPI) — Academy Award-winning actress Faye Dunaway's prominent cheekbones have a lot to do with her "natural beauty," a noted cosmetician said Thursday

"With cheekbones like Faye's a woman does not really need to wear much makeup, and I was not one bit surprised to learn that Faye, indeed, uses none," makeup expert Mark Traynor said of the Best Actress of 1976.

That's not particularly good for his business, but Traynor, who created makeup for Sophia Loren and Marilyn Monroe, says with relief, "not all women have Faye Dunaways's natural looks.

"She is the epitome of 'fresh,' 'natural,' and all the other adjectives strictly reserved for that charmed handful of women whose beauty is genuinely real "

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

TO ALL PERSONS INTERESTED:

Re: Application No. 31658, Citizens of Ashland, Ashland, Nebraska, for extended area service between Ashland, Nebraska and Lincoln, Nebraska common service area.

Interested persons are hereby notified that public hearing on the above-captioned application will be held on April 4, 1977, at 9:30 a.m., in the Commission Hearing Room, 301 Centennial Mall South, First Floor, Lincoln, Nebraska.

This hearing will be concerned with two subjects: First, the communications requirements of Ashland subscribers to interchange telephone calls, on a non-toll basis, with the Lincoln Common Service Area; and Second, whether or not subscribers of Lincoln and other exchanges in the Common Service Area should bear any or part of the cost of extended area service through increased rates. Exchanges in the Common Service Area, in addition to Lincoln, are Alvo-Eagle, Bennet, Cortland, Davey, Denton, Firth, Greenwood, Hallam, Hickman, Lincoln Air Park West, Malcolm, Martell, Palmyra, Panama, Pleasant Dale, Raymond, Valparaiso and Waverly.

If need for extended area service is established in this hearing, a second hearing will be scheduled at a later date to determine the amount of increased rate required and the acceptance of such rate by the subscribers affected.

NFL moves Seahawks to west division

Phoenix (AP) — The National Football League officially placed the Seattle Seahawks in the American Conference West Thursday and established its roster cutdown dates for the 1977 season.

The Associated Press reported Wednesday that the proposal would be made by Herman Sarkowsky, managing partner of the Seahawks. It was passed by unanimous voice vote of the 28 club owners.

"We appreciate the suggestion of The Associated Press," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "I think it's a very logical thing to do. The fans will become accustomed to seeing Seattle as well as Tampa Bay in the standings where they'll be for the future."

The decision to place Seattle in the AFC West with Oakland, Denver, San Diego and Kansas City for 1977 season changes the NFL's Tuesday night announcement when Rozelle said Tampa Bay would be in the National Conference Central and Seattle would be in the AFC Central.

Tampa Bay will remain in the NFC Central permanently.

Since the Seahawks will play all 13 AFC teams plus Tampa Bay in 1977 rather than home and home games against division opponents, the suggestion was made to move Seattle into its permanent home one year ahead of schedule, thereby listing both the Seahawks and Bucs in their permanent divisions at the same time.

By a 23-5 vote, the NFL voted to cut the roster of training camp players to 60 on Aug. 9; to reduce it to 52 on Aug. 30; to put the maximum at 48 on Sept. 6, and make the final cut to 43 active players on Sept. 12. The regular season begins Sept. 18.

Another proposal, to install a cut to 40 players, then later allow the addition of three to the regular-season total of 43, was voted down by a 12-15 vote with one abstention. That plan would have forced all teams to cut some players they might have kept—and given the weaker ones the opportunity to sign some players they now will not get a chance to sign.

Jim Kensil, executive director of the league, also said the cutdown dates apply only to the 1977 season "because the teams want to take a closer look at the numbers and see how they might apply to 1978," when the league shifts from six exhibition games and 14 in the regular season to four preseason and 16 regular-season games.

The NFL also set Thursday, Sept. 15, at 4 p.m., EST, as the time each team must notify the league office of which players it is placing on its two-man inactive squad (often known as a taxi squad). Those two are in addition to the 43-man active roster. They can come from the active squad (in which case the team can replace them on that list) or they can come from available free agents around the league.

There can be unlimited movement of players from the inactive to the active squad and the other way round, up to an hour prior to a regular-season or playoff game. But a team may not sign a free agent within two days of an upcoming game.

As in the past, the league decided Thursday that if a player is placed on the injured reserve list, he may not return to the same club for the remainder of the season, although he could be dealt or waived to another team, which could use him.

Thompson keys Nugget win

Associated Press

David Thompson scored 33 points, including 11 in the fourth period, as the Denver Nuggets raced to a 110-95 win over the Buffalo Braves Thursday night in Denver.

In other NBA action Thursday, the New York Knicks outscored Indiana 135-131 and Atlanta defeated the New York Nets 95-81.

The Braves had moved to within five points on Bird Averitt's jump shot with four minutes to play, but Thompson and Mack Calvin combined to lead Denver's fast-break offense as the Nuggets pulled away in the closing minutes.

Calvin had 19 points and Bobby Jones had 21 for Denver. Rookie Adrian Dantley scored 20 points, before fouling out with 2:58 remaining, and Gus Gerard and Randy Smith added 16 each for Buffalo.

At Indianapolis, Walt Frazier hit a season-high 41 points, handed out 11 assists and made six steals as the Knicks choked off a second-half Indiana rally and beat the Pacers.

The Knicks built a 47-30 lead early in the second quarter, before Billy Knight and Dave Robisch rallied the Pacers to a one-point lead at the start of the final period.

Knight, the league's second-leading scorer, also scored 41 points and Robisch matched his career high with 30 points. Bob McAdoo contributed 30 points for the Knicks, who set a single-game high for the season with their 135 points.

At Atlanta, John Drew hit three baskets in the last three minutes, to help the Hawks hand the Nets their 10th straight loss. Drew was the game's high scorer with 38 points.

Ken Charles and Steve Hawes each had 15 points for Atlanta. New York was led by Jan van Breda Kolff with 18. Al Skinner and Mike Bantom each added 15 for the Nets.

In a late game at Oakland, Rich Barry broke loose for 12 points in the final quarter and finished with 25 to lead the Golden State Warriors past the San Antonio Spurs 125-116.

Jamaal Wilkes scored 24 and Clifford Ray had a season-high 23 for the Warriors. George Gervin scored 28 points, 17 in the third quarter, for San Antonio.

St. Cloud St. spoils NWU home opener

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

St. Cloud State has been forced to practice baseball inside since January. And since starting on its season opening "southern trip" last Sunday the Huskies had been able to play only one of six scheduled games.

So when Jim Stanek's club had an opportunity to play two games Thursday the team took advantage of the situation.

The Huskies, from Minnesota, behind the two-hit pticing of junior righthander Dave Nilson, edged Nebraska Wesleyan 3-1, and then pounded the Plainsmen 9-3 in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Sherman Field in NWU's home opener.

Nilson, a 6-5, 210-pound fast and curve ball pitcher, held Nebraska Wesleyan hitless until the fourth inning of the opening game when Gerry Seitz singled.

Wesleyan's only other hit was a 340-foot solo home run by NWU senior shortstop Scott Votava in the bottom of the seventh inning with two out.

The Huskies scored their theree runs in the fifth off sophomore righthander Doug dawson, who had allowed just one hit in the first four innings.

St. Cloud State shortstop Bob Hegman led off the fifth inning with a single, followed by Linus Dumont, who singled and stole second. Hegman then scored on an error and Gary Frericks doubled to right center field, bringing in two more runs.

With two outs in the seventh, Votava blasted his fourth home run of the year and NWU first baseman Bruce Reed hit his first pitch over the right field wall, but the ball curved foul just before the pole, and four pitches later Reed popped out to left field.

"We almost let that one get away just like we did on Tuesday against Nebraska," said Stanke, referring to St. Cloud's 11-7 loss to the Huskers, after the Minnesotans, held a 5-1 lead in the fifth inning of that game.

"We've been so anxious to get outside and play some games. I guess we got a little over excited with the prospect of winning today," said Stanke.

"We were rained out of our opener last Monday against Northwest Missouri State, then had a doubleheader against Nebraska changed to a single game on Tuesday and rained out again on Wednesday," said Stanek. "Even though it was cold today, I don't think any of our players would have wanted to sit out another game."

St. Cloud jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning off the second game on two hits and two errors, and scored two unearned runs in the second on two more errors and two singles.

Freshman lefthander Jim Stubbs allowed just three baserunners, all on walks in the first three innings of the second game, before NWU designated hitter Greg Peterson doubled with bases loaded to close the score to 7-2 in the Huskies' favor.

Wesleyan scored one run in the fifth when Scott Votava doubled and scored on a single by Bruce Reed.

John Svehla followed with a single, but Stubbs struck out the next two batters to end the inning.

Stubbs picked up the win, pitching all seven innings, allowing six hits, four walks and striking out 12 NWU batters.

The Plainsmen committed seven errors and the three NWU pitchers gave up a total of 10 walks in the second game.

"We got some good experience today, not two losses," said NWU coach Ron Bachman. "We've got to hit better and there's got to be less mistakes.'

"But we got to pitch three freshmen in the second game and our batters got to face some very good pitching, which should help us in our conference games," Bachman said.

St. Cloud State faces UNO in a doubleheader in Omaha Friday, while Wesleyan opens its Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday in a twinbill against Concordia Saturday at 1 p.m. at Sherman Field.

Weather saves state waterfowl

By Michael Fowler
Associated Press Writer

The numbers of dead waterfowl in Nebraska's "rain basin area" have dwindled in the past few days, and wildlife officials hope that with warm weather, an "orderly migration" of ducks and geese out of the area will bring this winter's outbreak of fowl cholera to an end.

But U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service scientist Dr. Milton Friend says he fears the disease, which first appeared in the state three years ago, may become an annual epidemic — claiming birds "we can't afford to lose".

At least 4,000 birds, most of them white-fronted geese and Canada geese, mallards and pintail ducks, were claimed by the quick-acting and fatal disease in the state's south-central lake region this year — a figure officials say is "quite conservative."

An early winter outbreak near the Wyoming border killed hundreds of others, and many more were reported dead along the Platte River, in areas where the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission was too short handed to stage major carcass pickup efforts, commission wildlife chief Ken Johnson says.

Numbers of dead birds picked up by commission crews in the Sacramento-Wilcox Game Management Area south of the Platte River dwindled from more than 300 a day a week ago to 89 Wednesday, Johnson said.

"If we get an orderly migration out of the area we can hopefully be out of the worst of it this year," Johnson said.

The serious outbreak in the past few weeks was prolonged, Johnson said, by the recent blizzard. Birds that had begun to migrate out of the area were turned back to the dense bird populations in Nebraska's southern lakes by the heavy snow to the north.

Friend, director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service laboratory in Madison, Wisc., who has been working with state officials for the three years Nebraska has suffered cholera outbreaks, said the cause of the disease "is a question nobody can answer."

But, he said, it has spread because "of a deteriorating environment."

The water areas where the birds rest during their migrations have been reduced by development for farming, packing the fowl into ever smaller areas, he said. In addition, deteriorating water quality has made it easier for cholera organism to breed.

"The water basins are drained because they make excellent farmland, there are fewer places for the birds to go, and then you have more birds trying to use less water," he said.

Diseased birds carry cholera to a lake packed with migrating birds, he said, and the concentration of birds and water dirtied by siltation and other pollution spreads the disease around quickly, he said.

The drought has aggravated the problem, he said.

Although fowl cholera epidemics are new to Nebraska, they have become a nationwide problems since first showing up in central California in the 1940s, Friend said. There, he added, the outbreaks have become a yearly problem, killing as many as 70,000 birds a year.

Ridding Nebraska of the disease is vitally important, he said, because the state is "a major staging area" for migrating waterfowl heading north to Canada — including the almost-extinct whooping crane.

Bean leads Greensboro golf meet

Greensboro, N.C. (UPI) — Andy Bean, who three weeks ago took home his first winner's check, played the windy Forest Oaks Country Club course Thursday in a five-under par 67 for a one-stroke lead in the first round of the $235,000 Greater Greensboro Open.

"After I won Doral that kind of eased some pressure on me," Bean said of his play Thursday. " "I seem to play more at ease. You know you don't have to worry about qualifying and about making the cut."

The 24-year-old Georgia native, who now lives in Lakeland, Fla., had seven birdies on the 6,894-yard, par-72 course for a one-stroke lead over George Burns and Danny Edwards. In sole possession of third place was former Duke University golfer Bill Mallon with a 69.

Handful of lettermen carry Lincoln High girls track hopes

Lincoln East girls track coach Myron Oehlerking says you can almost count Lincoln High's returning letterwinners on one hand.

But he quickly adds, "Try and take some points away from them and you'll find out pretty quick just how tough they really are."

While Lincoln High coach George Ayoub admits he's got some outstanding individuals, including all of the state meet scorers which led the Links to a runner-up position last year, he's concerned with numbers.

Lack of depth in Ayoub's major problem in trying to become a statewide contender.

"We only have 18 girls right now who will be competing for us," Ayoub says. "To be honest, with the second place finish at state last year, I thought we'd have more girls out.

"But the ones we do have, really want to be out," he adds. "They've all been working extremely hard getting ready for this season."

Lincoln High and East will get their first taste of competition Friday in the City Relays at Stuart Stadium while the other three Capital City schools have already competed at least once this year.

"We had a dual scheduled that got rained out," Ayoub says. "We really wanted to compete. You just don't know how good you're going to be until you get into competition."

Lack of depth will undoubtedly hurt Lincoln High in Friday's relays. Field events start at 1 p.m. with relays starting at 2:30 p.m. in the co-ed meet.

One record that is likely to be shattered under the right conditions is the discus relay with Lincoln High returning Robin Hruby, Karen Wilson and Julie McEwen.

Hruby captured the gold medal at the state track meet last spring with a record-setting toss of 144-0, the all-time best in the state of Nebraska.

Hruby's effort landed her No. 1 among girls discus throwers in the nation on the National Federation Honor Roll according to the Nebraska Schools Activities Assn.

Wilson's 128-8 completed a 1-2 sweep for the Links at state last year and place her among the top 10 all-time discus throwers.

But according to Ayoub, McEwen could be tough to reckon with.

"She's been working on weights since last season," Ayoub says. Her efforts include a power weightlifting title in statewide competition.

"When those three get together among themselves in practice," Ayoub adds. "There's some pretty fierce competition."

Ayoub has a second gold-medalist from a year ago, junior miler Theresa Schoonover, who he also considers a fierce competitior. Besides her mile title and record time, Schoonover finished second in the half at state.

"If the weather holds out this year, it should be a great one for girls track in the state of Nebraska," Ayoub says.

Pius' girls will not be a participant in the City Relays this year for the first time in girls because of a conflict with the band program.

Pius probably would have competed favorably with all the depth Genrich has. The Thunderbolts had just two second place finishes and no firsts while winning at Kearney.

East returns the most letterwinners from a year ago with seven seniors and 12 juniors led by high jumper Joni Gray, shot putter Sandy Putnam and sprinter Becky Grant.

"The other schools will have to scrap for the points Lincoln High doesn't get, Oehlerking says. "We'll try to get our share."

While Jerry Harkrader doesn't have as many returners at Southeast, the Knights should be in good position to try and defend their relay title Friday.

Harkrader has juniors Meg Gildersleeve (sixth at state in the 100) and Suzanne Sutton and Ann Burton, half of the second place mile relay team last year returning.

Northeast coach Nancy Bishop is looking at a young team led by junior Terri Woods, the second place finisher in the shot put at state last year.

"We've got some good young girls who could help us out," Bishops says. "But sometimes I tend to take Terri for granted a little. She does an awfully good job for us."

NFL moves Seahawks to west division

Phoenix (AP) — The National Football League officially placed the Seattle Seahawks in the American Conference West Thursday and established its roster cutdown dates for the 1977 season

The Associated Press reported Wednesday that the proposal would be made by Herman Sarkowsky, managing partner of the Seahawks It was passed by unanimous voice vote of the 28 club owners

"We appreciate the suggestion of The Associated Press," NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said "I think it's a very logical thing to do The fans will become accustomed to seeing Seattle as well as Tampa Bay in the standings where they'll be for the future"

The decision to place Seattle in the AFC West with Oakland, Denver, San Diego and Kansas City for 1977 season changes the NFL's Tuesday night announcement when Rozelle said Tampa Bay would be in the National Conference Central and Seattle would be in the AFC Central

Since the Seahawks will play all 13 AFC teams plus Tampa Bay in 1977 rather than home and home games against division opponents, the suggestion was made to move Seattle into its permanent home one year ahead of schedule, thereby listing both the Seahawks and Bucs in their permanent divisions at the same time

By a 23-5 vote, the NFL voted to cut the roster of training camp players to 60 on Aug 9, to reduce it to 52 on Aug 30, to put the maximum at 48 on Sept 6, and make the final cut to 43 active players on Sept 12 The regular season begins Sept 18

Another proposal, to install a cut to 40 players, then later allow the addition of three to the regular-season total of 43, was voted down by a 12-15 vote with one abstention That plan would have forced all teams to cut some players they might have kept—and given the weaker ones the opportunity to sign some players they now will not get a chance to sign

Jim Kensil, executive director of the league, also said the cutdown dates apply only to the 1977 season "because the teams want to take a closer look at the numbers and see how they might apply to 1978," when the league shifts from six exhibition games and 14 in the regular season to four preseason and 16 regular-season games.

The NFL also set Thursday, Sept 15, at 4 p m, EST, as the time each team must notify the league office of which players it is placing on its two-man inactive squad (often known as a taxi squad) Those two are in addition to the 43-man active roster. They can come from the active squad (in which case the team can replace them on that list) or they can come from available free agents around the league

There can be unlimited movement of players from the inactive to the active squad and the other way round, up to an hour prior to a regular-season or playoff game But a team may not sign a free agent within two days of an upcoming game

As in the past, the league decided Thursday that if a player is placed on the injured reserve list, he may not return to the same club for the remainder of the season, although he could be dealt or waived to another team, which could use him

Associated Press

David Thompson scored 33 points, including 11 in the fourth period, as the Denver Nuggets raced to a 110-95 win over the Buffalo Braves Thursday night in Denver

In other NBA action Thursday, the New York Knicks outscored Indiana 135-131 and Atlanta defeated the New York Nets 95-81

The Braves had moved to within five points on Bird Averitt's jump shot with four minutes to play, but Thompson and Mack Calvin combined to lead Denver's fast-break offense as the Nuggets pulled away in the closing minutes

Calvin had 19 points and Bobby Jones had 21 for Denver Rookie Adrian Dantley scored 20 points, before fouling out with 2 58 remaining, and Gus Gerard and Randy Smith added 16 each for Buffalo

At Indianapolis, Walt Frazier hit a season-high 41 points, handed out 11 assists and made six steals as the Knicks choked off a second-half Indiana rally and beat the Pacers

The Knicks built a 47-30 lead early in the second quarter, before Billy Knight and Dave Robisch rallied the Pacers to a one-point lead at the start of the final period

Knight, the league's second-leading scorer, also scored 41 points and Robisch matched his career high with 30 points Bob McAdoo contributed 30 points for the Knicks, who set a single-game high for the season with their 135 points

At Atlanta, John Drew hit three baskets in the last three minutes, to help the Hawks hand the Nets their 10th straight loss. Drew was the game's high scorer with 38 points

Ken Charles and Steve Hawes each had 15 points for Atlanta. New York was led by Jan van Breda Kolff with 19 Al Skinner and Mike Bantom each added 15 for the Nets

In a late game at Oakland, Rich Barry broke loose for 12 points in the final quarter and finished with 25 to lead the Golden State Warriors past the San Antonio Spurs 125-116

Jamaal Wilkes scored 24 and Clifford Ray had a season-high 23 for the Warriors George Gervin scored 28 points, 17 in the third quarter, for San Antonio

St. Cloud St. spoils NWU home opener

By Ken Hambleton
Star Sports Writer

St Cloud State has been forced to practice baseball inside since January And since starting on its season opening "southern trip" last Sunday the Huskies had been able to play only one of six scheduled games

So when Jim Stanek's club had an opportunity to play two games Thursday the team took advantage of the situation

The Huskies, from Minnesota, behind the two-hit pitching of junior righthander Dave Nilson, edged Nebraska Wesleyan 3-1, and then pounded the Plainsmen 9-3 in the nightcap of a doubleheader at Sherman Field in NWU's home opener

Nilson, a 6-5 210-pound fast and curve ball pitcher, held Nebraska Wesleyan hitless until the fourth inning of the opening game when Gerry Seitz singled

Wesleyan's only other hit was a 340-foot solo home run by NWU senior shortstop Scott Votava in the bottom of the seventh inning with two out

The Huskies scored their theree runs in the fifth off sophomore righthander Doug dawson, who had allowed just one hit in the first four innings

St Cloud State shortstop Bob Hegman led off the fifth inning with a single followed by Linus Dumont who singled and stole second Hegman then scored on an error and Gary Frericks doubled to right center field, bringing in two more runs

With two outs in the seventh, Votava blasted his fourth home run of the year and NWU first baseman Bruce Reed hit his first pitch over the right field wall but the ball curved foul just before the pole, and four pitches later Reed popped out to left field

"We almost let that one get away just like we did on Tuesday against Nebraska" said Stanke, referring to St Cloud s 11-7 loss to the Huskers, after the Minnesotans, held a 5-1 lead in the fifth inning of that game

"We ve been so anxious to get outside and play some games I guess we got a little over excited with the prospect of winning today," said Stanke

We were rained out of our opener last Monday against Northwest Missouri State, then had a doubleheader against Nebraska changed to a single game on Tuesday and rained out again on Wednesday," said Stanek "Even though it was cold today I don't think any of our players would have wanted to sit out another game"

St Cloud jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first inning off the second game on two hits and two errors, and scored two unearned runs in the second on two more errors and two singles

Freshman lefthander Jim Stubbs allowed just three baserunners, all on walks in the first three innings of the second game, before NWU designated hitter Greg Peterson doubled with bases loaded to close the score to 7-2 in the Huskies favor

Wesleyan scored one run in the fifth when Scott Votava doubled and scored on a single by Bruce Reed

John Svehla followed with a single, but Stubbs struck out the next two batters to end the inning

Stubbs picked up the win, pitching all seven innings, allowing six hits four walks and striking out 12 NWU batters

The Plainsmen committed seven errors and the three NWU pitchers gave up a total of 10 walks in the second game

"We got some good experience today not two losses," said NWU coach Ron Bachman "We ve got to hit better and there s got to be less mistakes

"But we got to pitch three freshmen in the second game and our batters got to face some very good pitching which should help us in our conference games," Bachman said

St Cloud State faces UNO in a doubleheader in Omaha Friday while Wesleyan opens its Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference season Saturday in a twinbill against Concordia Saturday at 1 p m at Sherman Field

Weather saves state waterfowl

By Michael Fowler
Associated Press Writer

The numbers of dead waterfowl in Nebraska's "rain basin area" have dwindled in the past few days, and wildlife officials hope that with warm weather, an "orderly migration" of ducks and geese out of the area will bring this winter's outbreak of fowl cholera to an end

But U S Fish and Wildlife Service scientist Dr Milton Friend says he fears the disease, which first appeared in the state three years ago, may become an annual epidemic — claiming birds "we can't afford to lose"

At least 4 000 birds, most of them white-fronted geese and Canada geese, mallards and pintail ducks were claimed by the quick-acting and fatal disease in the state's south-central lake region this year — a figure officials say is "quite conservative"

An early winter outbreak near the Wyoming border killed hundreds of others, and many more were reported dead along the Platte River, in areas where the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission was too short handed to stage major carcass pickup efforts, commission wildlife chief Ken Johnson says

Numbers of dead birds picked up by commission crews in the Sacramento-Wilcox Game Management Area south of the Platte River dwindled from more than 300 a day a week ago to 89 Wednesday, Johnson said

"If we get an orderly migration out of the area we can hopefully be out of the worst of it this year," Johnson said

The serious outbreak in the past few weeks was prolonged, Johnson said, by the recent blizzard Birds that had begun to migrate out of the area were turned back to the dense bird populations in Nebraska's southern lakes by the heavy snow to the north

Friend, director of the U S Fish and Wildlife Service laboratory in Madison, Wisc, who has been working with state officials for the three years Nebraska has suffered cholera outbreaks, said the cause of the disease "is a question nobody can answer"

But he said, it has spread because "of a deteriorating environment"

The water areas where the birds rest during their migrations have been reduced by development for farming, packing the fowl into ever smaller areas, he said In addition, deteriorating water quality has made it easier for cholera organism to breed

"The water basins are drained because they make excellent farmland, there are fewer places for the birds to go, and then you have more birds trying to use less water," he said

Diseased birds carry cholera to a lake packed with migrating birds, he said and the concentration of birds and water dirtied by siltation and other pollution spreads the disease around quickly he said

The drought has aggravated the problem, he said

Although fowl cholera epidemics are new to Nebraska they have become a nationwide problems since first showing up in central California in the 1940s, Friend said There he added, the outbreaks have become a yearly problem killing as many as 70,000 birds a year

Ridding Nebraska of the disease is vitally important he said, because the state is "a major staging area" for migrating waterfowl heading north to Canada — including the almost-extinct whooping crane

Florida racing hurt by deficits

Tallahassee, Fla. (AP) — The horse racing industry in Florida is currently operating at deficits which if allowed to continue would seriously jeopardize more than $20 million in state revenue, a Senate study reported Thursday.

The staff study made no specific recommendations on wha further relief the legislature should grant the ailing horse racing industry, but said there were a wide number of options.

In a cover letter with the report, Senate President Lew Brantley said problems in the thoroughbred industry must be addressed by the legislature in the upcoming session.

The Legislature in 1975 enacted several temporary relief measures including an additonal tax of .4 per cent on bettors and adding 28 racing days to provide tracks more revenue.

The Senate study said that without the benefit of those measures all the major thoroughbred tracks, including Calder, Tropical, Gulfstream and Hialeah, would have experienced a $423,648 operating loss.

The relief poured in a million dollars of revenue and thus eliminated all operating losses although it did not cover interest expenses of $2.2 million.

Whelan will present award

Lt. Gov. Gerald Whelan will present a special governor's award at Saturday night's Nebraska State Softball award's dinner. The event will start at 6:30 p.m. at the Lincoln Ramada Inn.

Whelan will present the award for Gov. J.J. Exon to a person or group which has made an outstanding contribution to softball in the State of Nebraska.

International World Softball president W.W. Kethan will be the featured speaker.

Reservation deadline is Friday. Tickets can be purchased from Wayne Gonyea or state softball commissioner O.W. (Bill) Smith, who will be available at the Ramda Inn Friday afternoon.

Briscoe TKO's Mateo in 10th

Paris (AP) — Benny Briscoe of Philadelphia beat France's Jean Mateo on a technical knockout when the referee stopped the middleweight fight at the start of the 10th round Thursday night with Mateo's right eye completely shut.

Briscoe and Mateo, who got his boxing start in Stockton, Calif., slugged it out before an estimated crowd of 2,000 at the Paris Pavillion.

Yanks sign Chambliss

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (AP) — First baseman Chris Chambliss, whose dramatic playoff homer enabled the New York Yankees to win the American League pennant last season, signed a five-year contract Thursday night for an estimated $1.2 million.

The signing was announced during the Yankees' exhibition game against the Atlanta Braves after a day-long meeting.

Hairstyler to slug it out in TV ring fight

New York (AP) — Bill Sharkey can style a woman's hair or redesign a man's nose.

It's the latter profession, prize fighting, that commands Sharkey's attention these days and Friday night he will demonstrate his abilty in a scheduled 10-round heavyweight fight.

Sharkey's bout against Mike Weaver of Los Angeles will be a co-feature of the World Television Champions tournament and will be held in Manhattan's Beacon Theater.

The show will be televised to most of the country on an independent network but will not be telecast in New York until Saturday night.

The other bout will be a scheduled super heavyweight match between Greg Johnson of New York and Joe Alexander of Thomas ville, Ga. In the World Television Champions scheme of things, the heavy-weight division ends at 200 pounds and the super heavy-weight class starts at 201.

"I did hairstyling for two years," said Sharkey who also has worked as a barber, welder, auto mechanic and mason.

Florida racing hurt by deficits

Tallahassee, Fla. (AP) — The horse racing industry in Florida is currently operating at deficits which if allowed to continue would seriously jeopardize more than $20 million in state revenue, a Senate study reported Thursday.

The staff study made no specific recommendations on wha further relief the legislature should grant the ailing horse racing industry, but said there were a wide number of options

In a cover letter with the report, Senate President Lew Brantley said problems in the thoroughbred industry must be addressed by the legislature in the upcoming session.

The Legislature in 1975 enacted several temporary relief measures including an additonal tax of .4 per cent on bettors and adding 28 racing days to provide tracks more revenue

The Senate study said that without the benefit of those measures all the major thoroughbred tracks, including Calder, Tropical, Gulfstream and Hialeah, would have experienced a $423.648 operating loss.

The relief poured in a million dollars of revenue and thus eliminated all operating losses although it did not cover interest expenses of $2.2 million.

Briscoe TKO's Mateo in 10th

Paris (AP) — Benny Briscoe of Philadelphia beat France's Jean Mateo on a technical knockout when the referee stopped the middleweight fight at the start of the 10th round Thursday night with Mateo's right eye completely shut.

Briscoe and Mateo, who got his boxing start in Stockton, Calif , slugged it out before an estimated crowd of 2,000 at the Paris Pavillion.

Yanks sign Chambliss

Fort Lauderdale, Fla. (AP) — First baseman Chris Chambliss, whose dramatic playoff homer enabled the New York Yankees to win the American League pennant last season, signed a five-year contract Thursday night for an estimated $1 2 million.

Holman rolls perfect game

Miami (AP) — Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., tossed a 300-game Thursday and took a commanding 238-pin lead as qualifying play ended in a $100,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

Holman, a 22-year-old three-time Professional Bowlers Association champion, added games of 213, 247, 211, 247 and 258 for a six-game block of 1,476 — a 246 average. His 18-game qualifying total was 4,391 — a 244 average.

Holman, pro bowling's fifth-leading money winner this season, is seeking his first title this year. He has led since the opening round.

In second place was five-time champion Mark Roth of New York, pro bowling's top money winner this season with $42,580 in the first 12 tournaments. His 18-game total pinfall was 4,153.

Bill Allen of Maitland, Fla , was third with 4,009 while Pete McCordic of Houston was fourth with 3,998.

Free agent trio to lead Angels' quest for AL West title

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

No matter how hard California Angels General Manager Harry Dalton tried. . .and there are some people who'll tell you he didn't try very hard. . .he simply couldn't get Paul Dade, Billy Smith and Tim Nordbrook to sign contracts.

So Dalton lost those three free agents and now the Angels will just have to get along with the trio they fished out of the free agent lake to replace them—Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor.

They'll survive, somehow.

Unlike the three minor leaguers California lost, the three replacements will be everyday players for the Angels. Rudi, who batted .270 at Oakland, will be in left field and Bobby Bonds, hoping to bounce back from an injury-shortened .265 year, opens in right. That leaves center probably for a combination of Bruce Bochte (.258) and Rusty Torres (.205).

Grich (.266 at Baltimore) becomes a shortstop after five years as the Orioles' regular season baseman. Jerry Remy (.263) will be the Angels second baseman. Baylor (.247, 15 homers and 52 stolen bases at Oakland) will split first base and designated hitter duties with Tony Solaita (.270). The third baseman will be either Ron Jackson (.227) or Dave Chalk (.217) with Terry Humphrey (.245) ticketed for most of the catching and player-coach Andy Etchebarren (.227) helping out.

The pitching is impressive when you start with Nolan Ryan (17-18) and Frank Tanana (19-10). Gary Ross (8-16), Paul Hartzell (7-4), Sid Monge (6-7), and Don Kirkwood (6-12) are the other main arms.

Manager Norm Sherry, starting his first full year on the job, thinks the Angels will be contenders all season. "I feel offensively we'll be better than any Angels team since the club moved to Anaheim in 1966," he said.

To win the West, the Angels must knock off the defending champion Kansas City Royals and the hopeful Texas Rangers. Youthful Minnesota could also challenge but the rest of the division—Oakland, Chicago and Seattle—seems doomed to also-ran status.

Kansas City's cast is much the same one that captured the AL West title last year. The Royals have the league's two best hitters in third baseman George Brett (.333) and designated hitter Hal McRae (.332). The supporting cast which includes outfielders Amos Otis (.279), Tom Poquette (.302) and Al Cowens (.265), and slugger John Mayberry (.232), isn't bad either.

The major off-season move was a trade with Milwaukee which added pithcer Jim Colborn 9-15 to a rotation that includes Paul Splittorff 11o-8, Dennis Leonard 17-10, Doug Bird 12-10. The same deal with the Brewers gave Kansas City catcher Darrell Porter .208.

"We know it is going to be tough to repeat," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "But then it wasn't easy to win last year."

Texas added a flock of new faces, the most important being free agent pickups Bert Campaneris and Doyle Alexander.

Campaneris, 35, will play shortstop. He batted .256 and stole 54 bases for Oakland last year and the Rangers hope age won't slow him up quite yet. Alexander developed into a quality pitcher for the New York Yankees last season with a 13-9 record and was an important enough arm for the AL champs to start the opening game of the World Series.

The Rangers surrendered slugger Jeff Burroughs to Atlanta for five players, all of whom should help. Carl Morton (4-9) joins Alexander, Bert Blyleven (13-16) and old pro Gaylord Perry (15-14) in the starting rotation. Adrian Devine (5-6) and Roger Moret (35) are ticketed for the bullpen along with Paul Lindblad (6-5 at Oakland) and Darold Knowles (5-7 with the Chicago Cubs) two other relievers picked up over the winter.

The acquisition of Campaneris moves Toby Harrah (.260) to third base. Rookie Bump Wills, son of ex-major leaguer Maury Wills, is set at second base. He hit .324 at Sacramento last year. Holdover Mike Hargrove (.287) is the first baseman.

Ken Henderson (.262 at Atlanta) inherits Burroughs job with Tom Grieve (.255 and 20 homers), Claudell Washington (.257 at Oakland) and Juan Beniquez (.255) completing the outfield.

"The Rangers will be better," said Manager Frank Lucchesi, "A lot better."

So will the Minnesota Twins, if you believe Manager Gene Mauch. "Our guys can match up with anybody," said Mauch.

It's true that the Twins have some of the American League's best young talent. They seem strongest in the outfield with Lyman Bostock (.323), Dan Ford (.267) and Larry Hisle (.272).

Youngsters like shortstop Roy Smalley (.259) and catcher Butch Wynegar (.260) could be headed for stardom and Minnesota still owns one of baseball's best bats in first baseman Rod Carew (.331).

The joke in Oakland is that Charley Finley's team has been renamed. Instead of the A's, now they're the Triple A's.

There is a distinctly minor league look about Oakland now that all the big name free agents are gone. The only familiar lineup names are outfielder Billy North, free-agent first baseman Dick Allen, who was ignored by the other 25 major league teams, veteran catcher-first baseman Earl Williams, picked up on waivers, and catcher Manny Sanguillen, acquired from Pittsburgh in exchange for Manager Chuck Tanner.

The pitching could be respectable with Vida Blue, Mike Torrez, Doc Medich, Dave Giusti, Stan Bahnsen, Jim Umbarger, Paul Mi.chell and Mike Norris.

The rest of the lineup will include a fistful of youngsters including outfielder Dennis Walling, infielders Wayne Gross and Larry Lintz and others.

"Sure, I'm optimistic," said freshman A's Manager Jack McKeon. "How could I be anything else?"

How, indeed.

Chicago also has a new manager in Hall of Famer Bob Lemon. They might be better off if he could still pitch for them. The White Sox shipped two of their most important hurlers, Terry Forster and Rich Gossage, to Pittsburgh over the winter in exchange for slugger Richie Zisk.

That leaves the pitching staff in the care of Ken Brett, Bart Johnson and aging Wilbur Wood, attempting a comeback from a broken kneecap. Also available are old hands like Lerrin LaGrow and Dave Hamilton and youngsters like Francisco Barrios, Ken Kravec, and Jack Kucek.

The Sox also had a field day with free agents, signing four of them. But don't confuse pitcher Steve Stone, outfielder Royle Stillman and infielders Tim Nordbrook and Eric Soderholm with the lottery's big names.

The lineup includes Ralph Garr, Jorge Orta, Bucky Dent and Jim Spencer, all major league bats. But there are precious few others available to Lemon.

The basement is reserved for Seattle's expansion team. The Mariners have some interesting names like young Ruppert Jones, their No. 1 draft choice, shortstop Craig Reynolds, outfielders Lee Stanton and Steve Braun, first baseman Dan Meyer and pitchers Stan Thomas, Dick Pole, Glenn Abbott, and Steve Barr.

Two years ago, Manager Darrell Johnson took the Boston Red Sox to the seventh game of the World Series. Now he'll learn about the other side of the coin with an expansion team that will be finished with its first season well before October.

Shotgun Pat wins feature

The 4-year-old colt scored his first 1977 victory to go with a second and a third.

Ridden by Wayne Anderson, Shotgun Pat toured the 6½-furlongs in 1:20 to defeat nine foes. He paid $10.20, $5.40 and $3.40 as the 4-1 second-choice with the crowd of 4,064.

Bill's Comet, ridden by Dan Switzer placed for $4.40 and $3.00. Mo-B-Jo Stable's Wild Wink rideen by Dave King and a neck behind Bill's Comet, showed for $4.40.

Jockey Perry Compton tallied three wins, coring with Robert Huss, et al's Bold Copper ($22.20) in the third, Robert Colvin's The Main Fella ($14.20) in the sixth and Ed Dringhawk's Restless Bourne ($17.40) in the ninth.

Outdoor report

PAHNHANEL — Fishermen on Red Willow and Nine Mile creeks have been having fair success on good-sized rainbow trout, hitting trout eggs, worms, minnows and artificials. The North Platte River from McGrew to Melbeta is producing catfish to 3 pounds on prepared bait, while the upper end of Lake McConaughy is yielding cats on shad.

At Lake Minatare, bank fishermen are taking a few 2-pound walleye on minnows.

SOUTHWEST — Fishermen have been taking a few walleye on jigs from Johnson Lake and canals in the Lexington area, and it's much the same story at Lake Maloney at North Platte and its associated canals, tailrace, and diversion. Harlan County Reservoir is giving up a few small walleye along the dam at night, mostly on artificials.

SAND HILLS — Trout fishermen on Long Pine Creek have been taking a few brown and rainbow trout from 9 to 14 inches on worms and minnows.

NORTHEAST — The tailwaters below Gavins Point Dam have been yielding some limits of walleye and sauger to 3 pounds, and an occasional white bass, both on minnows. Snaggers in the same area are still taking an occasional small paddlefish. Cottonwood Lake, also below the dam, has produced some 16-inch trout and a few walleye to 4 pounds, both taking minnows. The Elkhorn River in Cuming and northern Dodge counties has been producing some catfish to 2 pounds on chicken entrails and worms.

Farm ponds and sandpits in the Loup, Platte, and Elkhorn valleys offer fair success on crappie and bluegill taking minnows and worms. Fremont State Recreation Area was providing crappie, bass and perch on minnows, while Pibel Lake at Bartlett and Lake Ericson were both giving up occasional largemouth bass.

SOUTHEAST — Much of the fishing activity in the southeast focuses on the Salt Valley, where a few small walleye have been taken at various lakes. Bluegill and crappie have been hitting at Branched Oak Lake, and fishermen have also had some success on crappie at Conestoga and Pawnee Lakes. Catfishermen have been having some success on the Missouri River and at Burchard Lake.

Dollars lures new OSU coach

Pocatello, Idaho (AP) — Jim Killingsworth, who has never had a losing season in 28 years as a head basketball coach, was quoted Thursday as saying his decision to leave Idaho State to become head coach at Oklahoma State University was a financial one.

"Economics is the only reason I'm leaving," Killingsworth was quoted as saying in a university news release. "It's a financial opportunity I can't afford to pass up."

Oklahoma State signed Killingsworth, 52, to a four-year, $32,000-per year contract on Wednesday.

In going to Oklahoma State, Killingworth returns to the state where he grew up and coached high school basketball for 12 years.

Ozark finds lead off puzzler

Clearwater, Fla. (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies may have to place a want ad: "Wanted, ballplayer who is willing and able to bat in the leadoff position for a National League baseball pennant contender."

Manager Danny Ozark is finding it a little more difficult than he thought to replace Dave Cash, a 200-hit per year leadoff batter. He has tried two players, shortstop Larry Bowa and outfielder Gary Maddox.

The Bowa experiment failed. The little infielder doesn't have the patience nor the good bat contact it takes to swing at the top of the line-up. And he doesn't want to lead off. His ability to bunt and work the hit-and-run makes him an ideal second batter.

Maddox can, and is, doing the job Ozark wants from a leadoff man. But he is doing it under protest.

"I don't want to lead off," says Maddox, who hit .330, with 175 hits for the Eastern Division champions last year. "I'm a free swinger and I don't want to be restricted."

Maddox said Ozark asked him during the winter if the 27-year-old Gold Glove center fielder would lead off.

"I said 'no,' and he said he'd hit me sixth," Maddox recalled.

But Maddox has been leading off in recent exhibition games after Ozark decided Bowa wasn't the man for the job.

Ozark, sensing that Maddox isn't too happy about batting first, hedges on whether the training camp experiment will carry over to the regular season.

"I don't think I'll answer that until opening day," Ozark said.

Ozark said he hasn't talked with Maddox about leading off since last winter.

"Do you intend to talk with him?" he was asked.

"When I decide, then I'll talk with him and explain why," Ozark retorted.

But Ozark did everything but confirm his mind is made up in explaining why Maddox is ideal for the leadoff spot.

"Maddox and Bowa make a fine 1-2 situation," Ozark explained. "Bowa can sacrifice, and we don't lose too much at bat. Maddox makes good contact, has the speed."

Ozark said Maddox might become a Bobby Bonds type leadoff batter and hit 30 home runs. But he sees him more like a Felipe Alou model, a line drive, good contact hitter.

A comparison between Maddox and Cash, based on last year's statistics, indicates the manager is moving in the right direction. Cash reached base 243 times, struck out just 13 times, hit .284. He had 189 hits, including 14 doubles, one triple and one home run.

Maddox was the third best hitter in the National League at .330. He reached base 217 times, with 37 doubles, six triples and six homers. He stole 29 bases. The only big difference was 59 strikeouts compared to Cash's 13.

Free agent trio to lead Angels' quest for AL West title

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

No matter how hard California Angels General Manager Harry Dalton tried .and there are some people who'll tell you he didn't try very hard. . .he simply couldn't get Paul Dade, Billy Smith and Tim Nordbrook to sign contracts.

So Dalton lost those three free agents and now the Angels will just have to get along with the trio they fished out of the free agent lake to replace them—Joe Rudi, Bobby Grich and Don Baylor

They'll survive, somehow

Unlike the three minor leaguers California lost, the three replacements will be everyday players for the Angels. Rudi, who batted .270 at Oakland, will be in left field and Bobby Bonds, hoping to bounce back from an injury-shortened .265 year, opens in right. That leaves center probably for a combination of Bruce Bochte (.258) and Rusty Torres (.205).

Grich (266 at Baltimore) becomes a shortstop after five years as the Orioles' regular season baseman. Jerry Remy (263) will be the Angels second baseman. Baylor (.247, 15 homers and 52 stolen bases at Oakland) will split first base and designated hitter duties with Tony Solaita (.270). The third baseman will be either Ron Jackson (.227) or Dave Chalk (.217) with Terry Humphrey (245) ticketed for most of the catching and player-coach Andy Etchebarren (.227) helping out.

The pitching is impressive when you start with Nolan Ryan (17-18) and Frank Tanana (19-10). Gary Ross (8-16), Paul Hartzell (7-4), Sid Monge (6-7), and Don Kirkwood (6-12) are the other main arms

Manager Norm Sherry, starting his first full year on the job, thinks the Angels will be contenders all season "I feel offensively we'll be better than any Angels team since the club moved to Anaheim in 1966," he said.

To win the West, the Angels must knock off the defending champion Kansas City Royals and the hopeful Texas Rangers. Youthful Minnesota could also challenge but the rest of the division—Oakland, Chicago and Seattle—seems doomed to also-ran status.

Kansas City's cast is much the same one that captured the AL West title last year. The Royals have the league's two best hitters in third baseman George Brett (.333) and designated hitter Hal McRae (.332). The supporting cast which includes outfielders Amos Otis (.279), Tom Poquette (.302) and Al Cowens (.265), and slugger John Mayberry (232), isn't bad either.

The major off-season move was a trade with Milwaukee which added pithcer Jim Colborn 9-15 to a rotation that includes Paul Splittorff 11o-8, Dennis Leonard 17-10, Doug Bird 12-10. The same deal with the Brewers gave Kansas City catcher Darrell Porter .208.

"We know it is going to be tough to repeat," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog. "But then it wasn't easy to win last year."

Texas added a flock of new faces, the most important being free agent pickups Bert Campaneris and Doyle Alexander.

Campaneris, 35, will play shortstop He batted .256 and stole 54 bases for Oakland last year and the Rangers hope age won't slow him up quite yet. Alexander developed into a quality pitcher for the New York Yankees last season with a 13-9 record and was an important enough arm for the AL champs to start the opening game of the World Series.

The Rangers surrendered slugger Jeff Burroughs to Atlanta for five players, all of whom should help. Carl Morton (4-9) joins Alexander, Bert Blyleven (13-16) and old pro Gaylord Perry (15-14) in the starting rotation. Adrian Devine (5-6) and Roger Moret (35) are ticketed for the bullpen along with Paul Lindblad (6-5 at Oakland) and Darold Knowles (5-7 with the Chicago Cubs) two other relievers picked up over the winter

The acquisition of Campaneris moves Toby Harrah (.260) to third base. Rookie Bump Wills, son of ex-major leaguer Maury Wills, is set at second base. He hit .324 at Sacramento last year. Holdover Mike Hargrove (.287) is the first baseman.

Ken Henderson (.262 at Atlanta) inherits Burroughs job with Tom Grieve (.255 and 20 homers), Claudell Washington (.257 at Oakland) and Juan Beniquez (.255) completing the outfield

"The Rangers will be better," said Manager Frank Lucchesi, "A lot better."

So will the Minnesota Twins, if you believe Manager Gene Mauch. "Our guys can match up with anybody," said Mauch

It's true that the Twins have some of the American League's best young talent. They seem strongest in the outfield with Lyman Bostock (323), Dan Ford (.267) and Larry Hisle (272)

Youngsters like shortstop Roy Smalley (259) and catcher Butch Wynegar (.260) could be headed for stardom and Minnesota still owns one of baseball's best bats in first baseman Rod Carew (.331).

The joke in Oakland is that Charley Finley's team has been renamed. Instead of the A's, now they're the Triple A's

There is a distinctly minor league look about Oakland now that all the big name free agents are gone. The only familiar lineup names are outfielder Billy North, free-agent first baseman Dick Allen, who was ignored by the other 25 major league teams, veteran catcher-first baseman Earl Williams, picked up on waivers, and catcher Manny Sanguillen, acquired from Pittsburgh in exchange for Manager Chuck Tanner.

The pitching could be respectable with Vida Blue, Mike Torrez, Doc Medich, Dave Giusti, Stan Bahnsen, Jim Umbarger, Paul Mitchell and Mike Norris

The rest of the lineup will include a fistful of youngsters including outfielder Dennis Walling, infielders Wayne Gross and Larry Lintz and others.

"Sure, I'm optimistic," said freshman A's Manager Jack McKeon "How could I be anything else?"

How, indeed.

Chicago also has a new manager in Hall of Famer Bob Lemon They might be better off if he could still pitch for them. The White Sox shipped two of their most important hurlers, Terry Forster and Rich Gossage, to Pittsburgh over the winter in exchange for slugger Richie Zisk

That leaves the pitching staff in the care of Ken Brett, Bart Johnson and aging Wilbur Wood, attempting a comeback from a broken kneecap Also available are old hands like Lerrin LaGrow and Dave Hamilton and youngsters like Francisco Barrios, Ken Kravec, and Jack Kucek.

The Sox also had a field day with free agents, signing four of them. But don't confuse pitcher Steve Stone, outfielder Royle Stillman and infielders Tim Nordbrook and Eric Soderholm with the lottery's big names

The lineup includes Ralph Garr, Jorge Orta, Bucky Dent and Jim Spencer, all major league bats. But there are precious few others available to Lemon

The basement is reserved for Seattle's expansion team The Mariners have some interesting names like young Ruppert Jones, their No 1 draft choice, shortstop Craig Reynolds, outfielders Lee Stanton and Steve Braun, first baseman Dan Meyer and pitchers Stan Thomas, Dick Pole, Glenn Abbott, and Steve Barr

Two years ago, Manager Darrell Johnson took the Boston Red Sox to the seventh game of the World Series Now he'll learn about the other side of the coin with an expansion team that will be finished with its first season well before October.

Shotgun Pat wins feature

Grand Island — Robert Snell's Shotgun Pat scored a half-length decision over Larry Frazee's Bill's Comet to capture the featured seventh race here Thursday at Fonner Park.

The 4-year-old colt scored his first 1977 victory to go with a second and a third.

Ridden by Wayne Anderson, Shotgun Pat toured the 6½-furlongs in 1 20 to defeat nine foes He paid $10 20, $5 40 and $3 40 as the 4-1 second-choice with the crowd of 4,064

Bill's Comet, ridden by Dan Switzer placed for $4.40 and $3.00. Mo-B-Jo Stable's Wild Wink rideen by Dave King and a neck behind Bill's Comet, showed for $4.40.

Jockey Perry Compton tallied three wins, coring with Robert Huss, et al's Bold Copper ($22 20) in the third, Robert Colvin's The Main Fella ($14 20) in the sixth and Ed Dringhawk's Restless Bourne ($17.40) in the ninth.

Dollars lures new OSU coach

Pocatello, Idaho (AP) — Jim Killingsworth, who has never had a losing season in 28 years as a head basketball coach, was quoted Thursday as saying his decision to leave Idaho State to become head coach at Oklahoma State University was a financial one.

"Economics is the only reason I'm leaving." Killingsworth was quoted as saying in a university news release "It's a financial opportunity I can't afford to pass up."

Oklahoma State signed Killingsworth, 52, to a four-year, $32,000-per year contract on Wednesday.

In going to Oklahoma State, Killingworth returns to the state where he grew up and coached high school basketball for 12 years.

Ozark finds lead off puzzler

Clearwater, Fla (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies may have to place a want ad· "Wanted, ballplayer who is willing and able to bat in the leadoff position for a National League baseball pennant contender."

Manager Danny Ozark is finding it a little more difficult than he thought to replace Dave Cash, a 200-hit per year leadoff batter. He has tried two players, shortstop Larry Bowa and outfielder Gary Maddox

The Bowa experiment failed. The little infielder doesn't have the patience nor the good bat contact it takes to swing at the top of the line-up. And he doesn't want to lead off. His ability to bunt and work the hit-and-run makes him an ideal second batter.

Maddox can, and is, doing the job Ozark wants from a leadoff man. But he is doing it under protest

"I don't want to lead off," says Maddox, who hit 330, with 175 hits for the Eastern Division champions last year. "I'm a free swinger and I don't want to be restricted."

Maddox said Ozark asked him during the winter if the 27-year-old Gold Glove center fielder would lead off.

"I said 'no,' and he said he'd hit me sixth," Maddox recalled

But Maddox has been leading off in recent exhibition games after Ozark decided Bowa wasn't the man for the job

Ozark, sensing that Maddox isn't too happy about batting first, hedges on whether the training camp experiment will carry over to the regular season

"I don't think I'll answer that until opening day," Ozark said

Ozark said he hasn't talked with Maddox about leading off since last winter

'Do you intend to talk with him?" he was asked

' When I decide, then I'll talk with him and explain why," Ozark retorted

But Ozark did everything but confirm his mind is made up in explaining why Maddox is ideal for the leadoff spot.

"Maddox and Bowa make a fine 1-2 situation," Ozark explained. "Bowa can sacrifice, and we don't lose too much at bat Maddox makes good contact, has the speed."

Ozark said Maddox might become a Bobby Bonds type leadoff batter and hit 30 home runs. But he sees him more like a Felipe Alou model, a line drive, good contact hitter.

A comparison between Maddox and Cash, based on last year's statistics, indicates the manager is moving in the right direction. Cash reached base 243 times, struck out just 13 times, hit .284. He had 189 hits, including 14 doubles, one triple and one home run

Maddox was the third best hitter in the National League at .330. He reached base 217 times, with 37 doubles, six triples and six homers He stole 29 bases. The only big difference was 59 strikeouts compared to Cash's 13

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Lincoln, Nebraska has been designated by the U.S. Department of Labor to be a Prime Sponsor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA). Federal legislation has recently been enacted to provide funds to eligible Prime Sponsors to counter the continuing shortage of employment opportunities for persons experiencing long term unemployment and a low economic living standard.

The City of Lincoln has recently been advised that these funds will be channeled through the local CETA unit under Title VI, Public Service Employment of CETA. In preparation for the receipt and programming of these anticipated funds, a uniform package of solicitation of project proposals and the evaluation and ranking of them by the sub committee of the Mayor's Manpower Planning Council has been developed.

APPROACH

The approach intended for use in moving toward higher employment under the legislation will take the form of a project. The formal definition of a project and its activities is ". . . a definable task or group of related tasks which will be completed within a definable time period, . . . which has a public service objective, which results in a specific product or accomplishment when completed, and which would not otherwise be accomplished with existing funds". Upon approval, funds can be allocated to public or private non-profit agencies in the community to operate these projects.

GENERAL PROJECT GUIDELINES

Statements made here are broad in scope. They are made to give potential subcontractors a general understanding of the project concept.

1. Projects would meet a community need.
2. Project applications can be submitted by public or private nonprofit organizations.
3. Persons hired under a project must be certified eligible by the Nebraska Department of Labor, Division of Employment.
4. Reimbursement to subcontractors for project expenses are made monthly upon receipt of invoice.
5. Projects must terminate by March 31, 1978.
6. Proposals sent in should encompass the total project and its budget. However, projects will likely span two fiscal years (fiscal year begins October 1st) and a budget division will be required when subcontractor agreements are formalized. This is necessary to balance fiscal records at year's end and receive authority to obligate new fiscal monies for continuing the projects into the new year.
7. Wages paid cannot be less than the prevailing federal minimum wage nor exceed $4.80 per hour ($10,000 per annum). Rates in excess of this amount and pro rata benefits are to be borne by the subcontractor. Project wages should be commensurate with prevailing wages of comparable occupations within the community.
8. Proposals requiring more than one or two project employees will receive favorable consideration. However, all proposals will be considered.
9. Lincoln CETA reserves the right to negotiate slight proposal modifications with the submitting agencies in order to make proposals more operative and therefore acceptable. Given a finite budget from which projects are funded, it may be necessary to negotiate slight modifications in numerous proposals to fit within Lincoln CETA's overall budget limitations.
10. Specific details expanding the preceding statements can be found in the following sections.

ELIGIBLE SUB-CONTRACTING AGENTS

One of your early considerations necessary before applying for this project is to determine whether your agency is eligible to make an application. Agencies eligible must be able to fulfill the following two criteria:

1. Public Service Employment Projects may be operated by local, state, and county governmental units, educational institutions, and other non-profit public agencies, as well as those non-profit private agencies recognized as such by the Secretary of State.
2. Those agencies that meet the qualifications under item 1 should also be able to demonstrate their capabilities to operate and manage a project. They should have the capabilities of interviewing, hiring, providing fringe benefits, and possess capabilities to submit necessary reports and maintenance of planned activities through a sub-contracted arrangement. In addition, the agency should have the capabilities to enter into a project that will fulfill present unmet community needs. Examples of these needs are ones that are not being met because of lack of funds or other considerations.

ELIGIBLE PROJECT PARTICIPANTS

Title VI legislative requirements place emphasis on providing employment for the long term unemployed, veterans, and recipients of Welfare Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). Thus, eligible participants will be selected from these groups of people. The specific eligibility requirements for participants are as follows:

First: Live within the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln.

Second: Be a member of a family which has a total family income equal to or less than the allowable lower standard income level as follows:

Family Size	Annual Income	Family Size	Annual Income
1	$2420	4	$6710
2	$3960	5	$7920
3	$5440	6+	$9260

Third: Fit any one of the additional criteria:

a. Be a member of a family receiving Aid to Families of Dependent Children (AFDC); or,
b. Have been receiving unemployment compensation for fifteen weeks or more; or,
c. Be determined ineligible for unemployment compensation and have been unemployed for fifteen or more weeks; or,
d. Have exhausted all unemployment compensation benefits; or,
e. Be a veteran who has served for 180 days of active duty, was discharged or released from active duty for a service connected disability, providing such a veteran has not obtained employment between the time of discharge and the time the application for participation into Title VI project is taken.

Eligibility certification is being accomplished by the Job Service. All applicants found eligible will be sent with a referral form that will indicate the applicant is eligible for Title VI employment.

Interested parties may obtain solicitation proposals at:

CETA Offices
Room 241 Old Federal Building
129 No. 10th Street
Lincoln, NE 68508

or call for further information at 474-1328. Proposals must be submitted in the prescribed manner no later than 4:30 p.m., April 15, 1977.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Lincoln Nebraska has been designated by the U S Department of Labor to be a Prime Sponsor under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) Federal legislation has recently been enacted to provide funds to eligible Prime Sponsors to counter the continuing shortage of employment opportunities for persons experiencing long term unemployment and a low economic living standard

The City of Lincoln has recently been advised that these funds will be channeled through the local CETA unit under Title VI Public Service Employment of CETA In preparation for the receipt and programming of these anticipated funds a uniform package of solicitation of project proposals and the evaluation and ranking of them by the sub committee of the Mayor s Manpower Planning Council has been developed

The approach intended for use in moving toward higher employment under the legislation will take the form of a project The formal definition of a project and its activities is a definable task or group of related tasks which will be completed within a definable time period which has a public service objective which results in a specific product or accomplishment when completed and which would not otherwise be accomplished with existing funds Upon approval funds can be allocated to public or private non profit agencies in the community to operate these projects

GENERAL PROJECT GUIDELINES

Statements made here are broad in scope They are made to give potential subcontractors a general understanding of the project concept

1 Projects would meet a community need
2 Project applications can be submitted by public or private nonprofit organizations
3 Persons hired under a project must be certified eligible by the Nebraska Department of Labor Division of Employment
4 Reimbursement to subcontractors for project expenses are made monthly upon receipt of invoice
5 Projects must terminate by March 31 1978
6 Proposals sent in should encompass the total project and its budget However projects will likely span two fiscal years (fiscal year begins October 1st) and a budget division will be required when subcontractor agreements are formalized This is necessary to balance fiscal records at year s end and receive authority to obligate new fiscal monies for continuing the projects into the new year
7 Wages paid cannot be less than the prevailing federal minimum wage nor exceed $4 80 per hour ($10 000 per annum) Rates in excess of this amount and pro rata benefits are to be borne by the subcontractor Project wages should be commensurate with prevailing wages of comparable occupations within the community
8 Proposals requiring more than one or two project employees will receive favorable consideration However all proposals will be considered
9 Lincoln CETA reserves the right to negotiate slight proposal modifications with the submitting agencies in order to make proposals more operative and therefore acceptable Given a finite budget from which projects are funded it may be necessary to negotiate slight modifications in numerous proposals to fit within Lincoln CETA s overall budget limitations

ELIGIBLE SUB CONTRACTING AGENTS

One of the early considerations necessary before applying for this project is to determine whether your agency is eligible to make an application Agencies eligible must be able to fulfill the following two criteria

Robbery charges take man to trial

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha drug store owner Thursday identified a defendant seated in a courtroom as the person who pulled a handgun, demanded drugs and money and threatened to shoot him if the orders were not carried out.

John Trescott's testimony came durng a preliminary hearing for Kenneth A. Gibson, 30, of Omaha, charged with robery and using a firearm in commission of a felony in the March 20 incident at Varly Drug Store.

Virgina Johnson, a drug store employe, testified that Gibson threatened to "come back and blow (Trescott's) head off" if he wasn't given the drugs.

Trescott said the robber, who wore a ski mask half the time he was in the store, took about $400 in cash and $400 in barbituates, pain pills and "speed" pills.

After the testimony in the drug store case, Gibson's attorney, Anthony Troia of Omaha, waived Gibson's right to a preliminary hearing on two charges stemming from the March 28 holup of the American National Bank in Omaha.

None of the $48,000 taken in the robbery has been recovered and a warrant has been issued for another suspect in the case.

Municipal Court Judge William Ryan ordered Gibson to stand trial on both the drug store and bank holdups. Gibson remained in custody in lieu of $350,000 bond on a total of eight charges.

The charges are four each of robbery and of use of a firearm in commission of a felony.

In addition to the drug store and American National Bank charges, the others stem from the Jan. 23 robbery of a grocery store and the Feb. 2 robbery of the Cornhusker Bank in Omaha.

Gibson is scheduled to stand trial April 18 on the grocery store charges.

High court won't take Rice case

Omaha (UPI) — The attorney for David Rice said Thursday that the U.S. Supreme Court's decision not to review his client's case would create "chaos" and 50 different interpretations of the law.

"The decision is a throwback to the days of state's rights," said David Herzog of Omaha. "It causes so much polarity that it is bewildering for a defendant to know what the law is."

Rice was convicted in the 1970 bomb slaying of an Omaha policeman. His case was appealed to the nation's high court after his attorneys argued evidence used against Rice was confiscated unlawfully.

A U.S. District Court ruled that Rice should either be retried or set free.

"Federal law is usually supreme, and we assumed David Rice was going to get final word from the Supreme Court," Herzog said. "Instead, the high court said justices in Nebraska can interpret the Constitution as well as anyone else."

Tourism up

Caracas, Venezuela (UPI) — Official statistics from the state tourism corporation show that 426,182 foreign tourists visited Venezuela in 1975 compared to 116,962 in 1970.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed bids will be received in the office of the Purchasing Agent of the City of Lincoln, Nebraska in Room B367, County-City Building, up to the hour of 10:00 o'clock, a.m., on Wednesday, APRIL 13, 1977, for re-roofing digesters, control and pumping houses, for the City of Lincoln's Water Pollution Control Department in accordance with approved specifications which are on file.

Airport landscaping honored

The Lincoln Sertoma Club honored several groups for their efforts in improving the city's looks.

Those honored at the club's Environmental Awards luncheon Thursday in Lincoln include the Lincoln Airport Authority for the landscaping around the airport parking areas, and the Sahara Coal Co. for visual improvements to the parking lot at 14th and N Streets.

According to Sertoma Environment Committee chairman Daryl Klone, the club hopes the awards encourage all parking lot owners to properly landscape their lots.

The club also honored the Cliff Walstrom family for improvements on their farm

Robbery charges take man to trial

Omaha (UPI) — An Omaha drug store owner Thursday identified a defendant seated in a courtroom as the person who pulled a handgun, demanded drugs and money and threatened to shoot him if the orders were not carried out.

John Trescott's testimony came durng a preliminary hearing for Kenneth A. Gibson, 30, of Omaha, charged with robery and using a firearm in commission of a felony in the March 20 incident at Varly Drug Store.

Virgina Johnson, a drug store employe, testified that Gibson threatened to "come back and blow (Trescott's) head off" if he wasn't given the drugs.

Trescott said the robber, who wore a ski mask half the time he was in the store, took about $400 in cash and $400 in barbituates, pain pills and "speed" pills.

After the testimony in the drug store case, Gibson's attorney, Anthony Troia of Omaha, waived Gibson's right to a preliminary hearing on two charges stemming from the March 28 holup of the American National Bank in Omaha.

None of the $48,000 taken in the robbery has been recovered and a warrant has been issued for another suspect in the case.

Municipal Court Judge William Ryan ordered Gibson to stand trial on both the drug store and bank holdups. Gibson remained in custody in lieu of $350,000 bond on a total of eight charges.

The charges are four each of robbery and of use of a firearm in commission of a felony.

In addition to the drug store and American National Bank charges, the others stem from the Jan. 23 robbery of a grocery store and the Feb. 2 robbery of the Cornhusker Bank in Omaha.

Gibson is scheduled to stand trial April 18 on the grocery store charges.

Gibson is the son of Kenneth Kitts, who was convicted of numerous bank burglaries in the 1940s and 1950s in Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

Kitts was widely known for two escapes from custody.

High court won't take Rice case

Omaha (UPI) — The attorney for David Rice said Thursday that the U.S. Supreme Court's decision not to review his client's case would create "chaos" and 50 different interpretations of the law.

"The decision is a throwback to the days of state's rights," said David Herzog of Omaha. "It causes so much polarity that it is bewildering for a defendant to know what the law is."

Rice was convicted in the 1970 bomb slaying of an Omaha policeman. His case was appealed to the nation's high court after his attorneys argued evidence used against Rice was confiscated unlawfully.

A U.S. District Court ruled that Rice should either be retried or set free.

"Federal law is usually supreme, and we assumed David Rice was going to get final word from the Supreme Court," Herzog said. "Instead, the high court said justices in Nebraska can interpret the Constitution as well as anyone else."

Airport landscaping honored

The Lincoln Sertoma Club honored several groups for their efforts in improving the city's looks.

Those honored at the club's Environmental Awards luncheon Thursday in Lincoln include the Lincoln Airport Authority for the landscaping around the airport parking areas, and the Sahara Coal Co. for visual improvements to the parking lot at 14th and N Streets.

According to Sertoma Environment Committee chairman Daryl Klone, the club hopes the awards encourage all parking lot owners to properly landscape their lots.

The club also honored the Cliff Walstrom family for improvements on their farm

Market posts another loss

Dow. Ind. -2.08

New York (AP) — A hesitant stock market spent the final session of the first quarter bouncing up and down uncertainly, only to wind up Thursday with another loss.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up almost three points during the day, was off 2.08 at 919.13, hitting a 14-month low for the second straight day.

On Wednesday, the Dow fell 10.80 to 921.21, the lowest close since it finished at 912.94 on Jan. 13, 1976.

The average, which was 1004.65 at the end of 1976, closed out the first quarter of 1977 down 85.52 points.

The market fluctuated with little conviction, boosted some by Budget Director Bert Lance's comments in favor of eliminating double taxation of dividends.

"You went down a long way in a short period, so the market starts digging in its heels," said Larry Wachtel of Bache Halsey Stuart, referring to the market's recent sharp decline. "Then, instead of pounding it down any further you get this indifference — blipping up slightly and backing off."

Analysts disagreed about the implications of the Dow, the widely recognized average of 30 blue chips.

"A handful of stocks were responsible for pushing the Dow over 1,000. A few stocks made the average look that good back in 1972, and that same group is making the Dow look bad now. It really doesn't tell the whole story," noted Ralph Acampora of Smith Barney, Harris, Upham.

But most analysts agreed the market is still "running scared" on inflation and energy, in expectation of President Carter's conservation plan due April 20.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks hit a new low of 109.35, down .11, and S&P's 500-stock composite index slid .12 to a new low of 98.42.

Youth corps funds told for McCook college

McCook, (UPI) — McCook Community College will receive a $47,996 Bureau of Reclamation grant to operate a Youth Conservation Corp camp this summer.

In making the announcement from Washington, Sen. Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb., said the funding allows the camp to continue into its fifth year.

The college-administered camp provides employment for 30 teenagers for eight weeks to work in conservation related programs on federal reservoirs in southwest Nebraska.

The jobs include building picnic shelters, parking lots and boat docks, developing camping areas, painting buildings and assisting in wildlife surveys.

MacAllister cites need for higher phone rates

Omaha (AP) — Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. must continue to seek higher telephone rates as long as operating costs rise faster than revenues, President Jack MacAllister said Wednesday in the company's annual report.

Operating costs rose faster than revenues in 1976 for the third consecutive year, despite cost-control measures and rate hikes in the company's five-state operating area, MacAllister said.

Revenues in 1976 totaled $1.16 billion, up 11.5% from 1975. Operating expenses rose 11.7% to $724 million. About half the operating increase was due to higher wages and employe benefits.

MacAllister did not detail company plans for rate increases.

Northwestern Bell reduced its work force from 28,500 to 27,900 last year as a cost-cutting measure, MacAllister said.

Barrow, gilt trade active; prices steady

Omaha (AP) — Barrows and gilts were steady, with a few instances of 25 cents higher in active trade on the Omaha Livestock Market Thursday.

With 4,500 hogs on offer, U.S. 1-3 offerings weighing 200-324 pounds brought $36.00-$36.25. Sows were steady to 50 cents higher. Sows from 300-650 pounds brought $32.00-$34.25.

With only 300 cattle and calves on the market, there were not enough slaughter steers and heifers to afford a reliable market test.

Scattered sales, however, were fully steady, with cows firm. A load of choice 1,300-pound steers sold for $37.75.

Scattered confinements of good and choice 950-1,250 pound steers sold for $33.25-$37.00. A few good and choice heifers weighing between 900-1,025 pounds brought $32.00-$36.00.

Utility and commercial cows were going for $26.00-$27.00, a with a few bringing $27.25-$27.50. Canner and cutter grade animals sold for $22.00-$26.00.

No sheep were offered.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture estimated Friday's receipts at 1,300 cattle and calves, 1,000 of them feeders for the auction; 3,000 hogs; and no sheep.

4 suspected illegal aliens are reported

Dakota City, (UPI) — Four more suspected illegal aliens have been reported working at the farm products company in Dakota City, a spokesman for the federal Immigration Service said Wednesday.

The four suspected aliens were believed to be Mexicans and in their late 20s, the spokesman said. The suspects left work Tuesday morning during a break and were fired when they returned.

Four other illegal aliens, believed to be from Africa, were arrested earlier, but the investigating officer said it did not appear farm products was intentionally hiring illegal aliens.

OPPD gives check to Douglas County

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District Thursday gave Douglas County a check for $2.7 million, a 1976 in-lieu-of-tax payment that represented a rise of more than $2.4 million since 1967.

Oats, wheat, corn decline

Chicago (AP) — Oats, corn and wheat futures declined 1 to 2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybean, soybean meal and oil prices were narrowly mixed after modest gains in the first few minutes of trade. Deferred iced broiler options were up nearly ⅛ cents a pound, but the expiring April contract was a shade lower.

Travel costs were doubled

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — The cost of passports and permission to travel for Argentine residents has been doubled from about $5 to $10.

Argentines must renew their passports each year, and a new regulation of the federal police, who issue the passports, requires men to shave off beards for the photos required on the passport or identity cards.

Unless they are traveling to border countries, Argentines also need a certificate issued by police granting them permission to leave the country.

Volkswagen plant in U.S. gears up

Youngwood, Pa. (AP) — Volkswagen will start hiring at its New Stanton plant in July, with plans to have the first American-made Rabbit ready in April 1978.

Plant manager Richard Commins said that 4,500 to 5,500 workers will be on the job by this time next year.

53,300 employes share $84 million

Rochester, N.Y. (AP) — The Xerox Corp. distributed $84 million to about 53,300 of its employes under the firm's profit-sharing plan.

The company said the annual distribution amounted to about 10.2% of each participating employe's earnings in 1976.

Women make bigger market in insurance

New York (UPI) — Life insurance agents are pitching hard in an area they once ignored — life insurance coverage for women.

A publication, the family economist, notes that life insurance originally was designed to protect the family of the breadwinner, the father. But now, the publication notes, about two of every five women contribute to family income in U.S. households.

Between 1965 and 1975, insurance owned by women expanded 150% and currently women own about $350 billion of life insurance in force, the publication says.

Market posts another loss

Dow. Ind. -2.08

New York (AP) — A hesitant stock market spent the final session of the first quarter bouncing up and down uncertainly, only to wind up Thursday with another loss

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up almost three points during the day, was off 2 08 at 919 13, hitting a 14-month low for the second straight day

On Wednesday, the Dow fell 10 80 to 921 21, the lowest close since it finished at 912.94 on Jan 13, 1976

The average, which was 1004 65 at the end of 1976, closed out the first quarter of 1977 down 85 52 points

The market fluctuated with little conviction, boosted some by Budget Director Bert Lance's comments in favor of eliminating double taxation of dividends

"You went down a long way in a short period, so the market starts digging in its heels," said Larry Wachtel of Bache Halsey Stuart, referring to the market's recent sharp decline "Then, instead of pounding it down any further you get this indifference — blipping up slightly and backing off"

Analysts disagreed about the implications of the Dow, the widely recognized average of 30 blue chips

"A handful of stocks were responsible for pushing the Dow over 1,000 A few stocks made the average look that good back in 1972, and that same group is making the Dow look bad now It really doesn't tell the whole story," noted Ralph Acampora of Smith Barney, Harris, Upham

But most analysts agreed the market is still "running scared" on inflation and energy, in expectation of President Carter's conservation plan due April 20

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks hit a new low of 109 35, down 11, and S&P's 500-stock composite index slid 12 to a new low of 98 42

Youth corps funds told for McCook college

McCook, (UPI) — McCook Community College will receive a $47,996 Bureau of Reclamation grant to operate a Youth Conservation Corp camp this summer

In making the announcement from Washington, Sen Edward Zorinsky, D-Neb, said the funding allows the camp to continue into its fifth year

The college-administered camp provides employment for 30 teenagers for eight weeks to work in conservation related programs on federal reservoirs in southwest Nebraska

The jobs include building picnic shelters, parking lots and boat docks, developing camping areas, painting buildings and assisting in wildlife surveys

MacAllister cites need for higher phone rates

Omaha (AP) — Northwestern Bell Telephone Co must continue to seek higher telephone rates as long as operating costs rise faster than revenues, President Jack MacAllister said Wednesday in the company's annual report

Operating costs rose faster than revenues in 1976 for the third consecutive year, despite cost-control measures and rate hikes in the company's five-state operating area, MacAllister said.

Revenues in 1976 totaled $1 16 billion, up 11 5% from 1975 Operating expenses rose 11 7% to $724 million About half the operating increase was due to higher wages and employe benefits

MacAllister did not detail company plans for rate increases

Northwestern Bell reduced its work force from 28,500 to 27,900 last year as a cost-cutting measure, MacAllister said

4 suspected illegal aliens are reported

Dakota City, (UPI) — Four more suspected illegal aliens have been reported working at the farm products company in Dakota City, a spokesman for the federal Immigration Service said Wednesday.

The four suspected aliens were believed to be Mexicans and in their late 20s, the spokesman said The suspects left work Tuesday morning during a break and were fired when they returned

Four other illegal aliens, believed to be from Africa, were arrested earlier, but the investigating officer said it did not appear farm products was intentionally hiring illegal aliens

OPPD gives check to Douglas County

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha Public Power District Thursday gave Douglas County a check for $2 7 million, a 1976 in-lieu-of-tax payment that represented a rise of more than $2 4 million since 1967

Oats, wheat, corn decline

Chicago (AP) — Oats, corn and wheat futures declined 1 to 2 cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Soybean, soybean meal and oil prices were narrowly mixed after modest gains in the first few minutes of trade Deferred iced broiler options were up nearly ⅛ cents a pound, but the expiring April contract was a shade lower

Travel costs were doubled

Buenos Aires, Argentina (UPI) — The cost of passports and permission to travel for Argentine residents has been doubled from about $5 to $10

Argentines must renew their passports each year, and a new regulation of the federal police, who issue the passports, requires men to shave off beards for the photos required on the passport or identity cards

Unless they are traveling to border countries, Argentines also need a certificate issued by police granting them permission to leave the country

Volkswagen plant in U.S. gears up

Youngwood, Pa (AP) — Volkswagen will start hiring at its New Stanton plant in July, with plans to have the first American-made Rabbit ready in April 1978

Plant manager Richard Commins said that 4,500 to 5,500 workers will be on the job by this time next year

53,300 employes share $84 million

Rochester, N Y. (AP) — The Xerox Corp distributed $84 million to about 53,300 of its employes under the firm's profit-sharing plan.

The company said the annual distribution amounted to about 10 2% of each participating employe's earnings in 1976

Women make bigger market in insurance

New York (UPI) — Life insurance agents are pitching hard in an area they once ignored — life insurance coverage for women.

A publication, the family economist, notes that life insurance originally was designed to protect the family of the breadwinner, the father. But now, the publication notes, about two of every five women contribute to family income in U S households

Between 1965 and 1975, insurance owned by women expanded 150% and currently women own about $350 billion of life insurance in force, the publication says

Patrol still seeks 34 in drug arrests

The State Patrol said Thursday it still is looking for some of the people named in felony drug warrants issued Tuesday in the largest drug bust in the patrol's history.

Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, head of the patrol's drug division for eastern Nebraska, said Thursday, "We think we know where the majority of them are, it's just a matter of beating the bushes for them."

The patrol and other law enforcement officers in 10 counties have arrested 55 of the people named in 89 warrants. Patrol drug chief Capt. Lynn Parks said Wednesday the patrol knew six who fled the state since arrests started.

"There's probably more than that, really," Clinkenbeard said. "Now it's just a matter of singling out the individuals." He said the patrol fed information about those believed to have fled into the National Crime Information Center computer.

"It's just a matter now of getting it out to the states where they are," he added.

Police won't change policy of drug arrests at Pershing

Lincoln police will not change the way they enforce drug laws at rock music concerts at Pershing Auditorium.

That was the decision made during a Thursday meeting of Mayor Helen Boosalis, Police Chief George Hansen and auditorium officials. The mayor said the group agreed the police did not overreact in making 101 drug arrests at two recent Pershing concerts.

Patrol still seeks 34 in drug arrests

The State Patrol said Thursday it still is looking for some of the people named in felony drug warrants issued Tuesday in the largest drug bust in the patrol's history.

Lt. Bob Clinkenbeard, head of the patrol's drug division for eastern Nebraska, said Thursday, "We think we know where the majority of them are, it's just a matter of beating the bushes for them."

The patrol and other law enforcement officers in 10 counties have arrested 55 of the people named in 89 warrants. Patrol drug chief Capt. Lynn Parks said Wednesday the patrol knew six who fled the state since arrests started.

"There's probably more than that, really," Clinkenbeard said. "Now it's just a matter of singling out the individuals." He said the patrol fed information about those believed to have fled into the National Crime Information Center computer.

"It's just a matter now of getting it out to the states where they are," he added.

Police won't change policy of drug arrests at Pershing

Lincoln police will not change the way they enforce drug laws at rock music concerts at Pershing Auditorium.

That was the decision made during a Thursday meeting of Mayor Helen Boosalis, Police Chief George Hansen and auditorium officials. The mayor said the group agreed the police did not overreact in making 101 drug arrests at two recent Pershing concerts.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Change routine. Refuse to be painted into psychological corner. Don't permit wet blanket to engulf you in gloom. Make this a time for celebration. Avoid direct confrontation. Humor, versatility are now your most valuable allies.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): This is April Fool's Day, but member of opposite sex is serious. Know it and plan accordingly. If you are playing games, you'd better revise game plan. Affection, affairs of heart take precedence over other matters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Study Aries message for valid hint. Be analytical — change is necessary, but find reasons why. What had been considered secure may now require another look. Your most appealing qualities come to forefront — friendly persuasion aids in elevating position. Remember, however, that you get nothing for nothing. There is a price. No free lunch.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Adjust yourself to family situation which at first seems hostile. Actually, if diplomatic and patient, you will be more secure. Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. Relatives who battle each other may want you to become involved. Don't be foolish!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Avoid impulse buying — see what is actual, not what you wish product might be. Emphasis on what you have, how to protect assets, how to get most for your money. Pisces, Virgo persons figure prominently. A motion picture might play significant role in course you choose.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What had been speculation now looms as reality. Cycle is such that you get action — know it and don't ask for more than you can handle. Emphasis on personality, persons you attract, marital status. Older individual talks about investment. You might benefit from experience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What seemed a limitation could be product of your imagination — or negative side. Means you learn that potential is greater than immediately perceived. You will be rid of burden. There will be opportunity for wider recognition. Closed door meeting proves of ultimate benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take initiative — exercise independence of thought, action. Leo, Aquarius persons could figure prominently. Accent on friendship that is tested, love that survives a quarrel. Bring forth creative resources.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow through on hunch. You can know without knowing, you can sense what to do without completely understanding rules. Be confident of inner feelings. You are being guided. Promotion is due — means one at top has confidence in you despite sharp differences of opinion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take long range view — the sky is the limit! Know it and refuse to be held back by those of little faith — or imagination. Open lines of communication. Promote, write, publish — get message across in humorous, unique, dynamic manner you can do it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial guidance available. Don't permit pride to block progress. Check details — piece together bits of information for complete story. What was hidden now comes into view. Your sense of direction will be on target. Leo, Scorpio, Taurus persons figure in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Do more listening than asserting — plan, plant seeds, but avoid direct confrontations. Patience, keen observation are your allies. Make inquiries, ask questions, check telephone numbers, addresses. Virgo is very much in picture.

IF APRIL 1st IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attractive to opposite sex, somewhat domineering, original, independent, temperamental, impulsive. You also are romantic, creative. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. June could be your outstanding month of 1977, a year which sees you coordinating efforts with one who has your best interests at heart. If single, marriage could be on agenda. Married or single, you'll have more responsibility and earn more money.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE – Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Is constipation part of growing older?

It's true that as you get older, your body does slow down and regularity can become a problem. But it doesn't have to be.

You don't have to suffer from constipation…not when there's Serutan to help you.

Serutan is the laxative especially formulated to help a sluggish system back to regularity. That's because Serutan with its natural ingredients, adds the necessary moisture and bulk your system tends to lose as you get older.

Serutan gently nudges your slowed down system along, so you eliminate smoothly and comfortably. You no longer have to experience the discomfort of painful elimination.

Try Serutan. Because constipation doesn't have to be a part of growing older.

Read label for directions.

Men's Rights Groups Fight To Change Divorce Laws

by Daniel D. Molinoff

Seventeen years ago in California a former Army captain was advised by his lawyer not to contest his wife's action for divorce or to fight over alimony. Reuben P. Kidd was told, "The court will give her anything she wants—the moon if you can pay for it."

And Kidd paid. But he went home that day in 1960 and wrote to a Sacramento newspaper calling divorce a racket. The response to his letter was so great that Kidd started an organization called Divorce Racket Busters. The Men's Rights Movement in America was born.

Today there are active men's rights groups in at least 30 states, the District of Columbia and Canada, and the memberships—predominantly but not exclusively male—are growing.

In Virginia they call themselves Fathers United for Equal Rights; in New Jersey, Families United for Equal Rights; in Minnesota, the Men's Rights Association; in New York, Equal Rights for Fathers; in Texas, Fathers for Equal Rights, Wives and Grandparents Coalition. The names differ, the philosophies and tactics vary, but these self-help, nonprofit corporations have one common goal: to reform, state by state, the divorce and custody laws which they feel cripple so many families every year.

Charge courts discriminate

They are grassroots organizations, generally short on finances but long on anger. They hold meetings in school auditoriums and public libraries and work out of basements and storefronts. They picket courthouses, bring class action suits and are sued themselves. And at times they take the law into their own hands. For the most part they are outraged middle-class, middle-aged husbands and fathers who no longer accept the American way of divorce because they feel they have been discriminated against by the courts. They want decisions made on the merits of the individual case rather than have the courts make blanket awards of everything, including children, to the mother.

"The first shock comes when you expect to find justice at court and there is none," says Elliott H. Diamond, president of the Virginia men's group. "What you do find is that it's preordained—the woman gets the kids and everything else." Diamond, a staff engineer for a manufacturing company, lost custody of his three children. Anthony J. Gil, an accountant and founder of the New Jersey organization, also lost custody of his child "without any real hearing" and knew something had to be done.

DIVORCED MEN ARE BRANDED CRIMINALS

A New Jersey men's rights group protests discrimination against fathers and ex-husbands in divorce settlements.

W. L. Shelton Jr., founder and chairman of the Texas group, lost custody of his children after a jury trial in which six men and six women voted 10-2 in favor of his wife. "I polled the four men who voted against me," said Shelton, chief of the Civil Service Staffing Division in Dallas. "They said kids belong with their mothers."

"These fathers have become modern-day Davids," says New York attorney Doris L. Sassower, who has acted as counsel to both the New Jersey and New York groups. "They decided to confront a Goliath legal system that favors the mother, judges who believe fathers incapable of parenthood after divorce and members of the Bar who never heard of 'paternal deprivation.'"

The men's rights groups confront the system in a variety of ways. For an annual fee of around $25 they offer a multitude of services to their members.

"The courts will not defend your rights," says the brochure for the Virginia group, so the men are advised on how to defend themselves. The organizations hold clinics on how to compile evidence and how to become emotionally prepared for trial; they man divorce hot lines, sponsor lectures, set up rap sessions with family court judges, publish newsletters and even, in the case of the Minnesota association, have surveillance teams available. The Virginia group sells legal briefs and memorandums of law from recent men's rights cases; the New Jersey group sends observers to court.

One men's rights organization participates even more directly in marital disputes: on occasion it flies members across state lines to "kidnap" their own children. "Don't call it 'child-snatching,' call it 'child rescue,'" says the pilot involved in the operations. "When a father has a valid custody order from our state and the mother flees to a jurisdiction which doesn't recognize that order, we fly the father in to get his child. We don't like to do it, but the courts are no help."

One of the most crucial services offered by nearly all the groups is to provide lists of "approved" lawyers. A major complaint among male litigants seeking help is that—in return for paying exorbitant legal fees—all they can expect are court orders for limited visitation, high alimony and a lifetime of support payments. The men's rights groups recommend attorneys who charge reasonably and care about men's rights.

Saving in legal fees

Richard F. Doyle, president and founder of the Minnesota organization, claims that members of his group who were represented by "approved" attorneys saved an average of 50 percent in legal fees. Doyle, a former air traffic controller who lost custody of his three children, says his group wants, among other things, to help "restore integrity to the legal profession."

The Minnesota State Bar Association sought an injunction to prevent Doyle and his Men's Rights Association from "practicing law without a license." At his 1974 trial Doyle was found in contempt for invoking his Fifth Amendment rights against self-incrimination and was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse. In December 1976 the Supreme Court of Minnesota reversed the conviction.

"The way a men's rights group helps its members most," says New Jersey's Gil, "is just by being there. Our presence alone has created a new attitude in the courts." Charles E. Cornell, founder and president of the New York organization, agrees. "Because we exist," he says, "there is an increasing public awareness of discrimination against fathers." Cornell, a machine operator at a glass factory, was awarded custody of his two children for the summer months. He attributes his victory in part to the demand for due process brought by groups like his. "There is strength and hope in numbers," he says.

'They gave me courage'

One father who says he owes a great deal to a men's rights organization is Ira Victor, a member of a medical school faculty. "When you go through a divorce you feel a tremendous sense of isolation," says Victor, who sought aid from the New Jersey men's group. "They gave me the courage to go on and showed me how to fight." Appearing as his own attorney, Victor obtained rulings enforcing the visitation rights that had been withheld by his wife.
